

The Parsonage

The main building was erected by Kennedy and Lancaster at a cost of $748.

The kitchen was built during the pastorate of Rev. C. H. Coon. Carpenters, Hill Brothers, Mason, Vickers Cosh.

The Sunday School Room

Built during the pastorate of Rev. H. W. Foley, at a cost of $1,200, of which amount Miss McCannus donated $500. Carpenter, R. J. Hill. Mason, Vickers, Cosh. Roofed by Spurgeon Cosh.

A Third Remodelling

1918.—The present pastor assumed charge of this old historic Circuit.

The Church was reshingled and the interior renovated. The Cosh family donated a new pulpit in memory of their parents, William and Helen Cosh.

Mrs. Geo. Bick and family donated the centre pulpit chair in memory of the late Geo. Bick.

Messrs. H. Seymour, I. Lewis, and John Bick and sons, donated one of the side chairs, while the other was provided by Mrs. John Van Valkenburg and a number of ladies.

Other Donations

Communion Set—Miss Sarah Wright.

Collection plates—Miss Blanche Wright.

Chandeliers—Gordon and Clara Dunn.

Fixtures for Lights—R. J. Kelsey, Jas. Simpson.

Stands—Misses Hazel and Frances Hill.

Hymn Board—Misses Della and Nola Patterson.

The decorating was done by the Ladies' Aid.

The reopening services was conducted by the Pastor on July 28th, 1918, and on Monday, July 29th, he gave his lecture on "Life in the Lumber Camps."

The Church is now in a flourishing condition. Last year $500 was raised for Missions, and $3,600 for the National Campaign, and the minimum salary was paid in full.

A good congregation, splendid S. S., Mission Circle, W. M. S., and Ladies' Aid make the work very encouraging for the Pastor and people.
