CHAPTER XXXV.

"No, I have no time," he said. He went in and tried to eat his breakfast, but failed. Something seemed to be drawing him to the place at which the misery of his life had commenced. He went out and ordered the horse round, leaped into the saddle, and rode in the direction of the Grange, as if fearful that if he hesitated or slackened rein he should yield to the temptation that beset him to gallop straight for the Calderon.

It was the day before his marriage with one of the loveliest, one of the wealthiest women in England. All his thoughts ought to be of her, and yet—and yet. He pulled up and looked around. In his absence of mind, his mental agitation, he had lost the thread of the direction to the Grange which the landlord had most carefully given him. He looked from side to side, then rode on again slowly, hoping to come upon a finger-post.

But, the country got wilder, the road rougher. He had lost his way, just as he had done months ago near this very place. There was nothing for it but to ride on and

WOMAN SICK
 FOURTEEN YEARS

Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Elkhart, Ind.: "I suffered for fourteen years from organic inflammation, female weakness, pain and irregularities. The pains in my sides were increased by walking or standing on my feet and I had such awful bearing down feelings, was depressed in spirits and became thin and pale with dull heavy eyes. I had six doctors from whom I received only temporary relief. I decided to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial and also the Sanative Wash. I have now used the remedies for four months and cannot express my thanks for what they have done for me.

"If these lines will be of any benefit you have my permission to publish them."—Mrs. SADIE WILLIAMS, 455 James Street, Elkhart, Indiana.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record of being the most successful remedy for female ills we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., seem to prove this fact.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

wilderness, her hand gripped the skirt of her habit.

"You know—you know that I have!" he repeated, with painful agitation. "Oh, Nora, Nora! how could you be so heartless? How could you leave me without a word of explanation? When we parted that night—" He looked at her with deep reproach. "Have you forgotten that night—how happy you had made me, how you had promised to be my wife?"

She uttered a faint cry, and shrinking from his vehemence, sunk on to the rock on which she had been sitting when he descended to the beach.

"You promised to be my wife. You deceived me—Yes, I know—I understand," he went on hurriedly, for she had opened her trembling lips as if to speak. "I know why you made that promise; I can understand that the excitement of the moment—and my urging you compelled you to say what was not true. I know all that now; but why did you leave me without a word? Was it kind—was it, Nora? I thought I knew you. I would not have left you like that. She gazed at him as he stood before her, her face as white as his own, his eyes seeking hers with a coming of reproach and infinite tenderness. "If you had waited till the morning and told me that—that the reason why you could not marry me to you think I would have held you to your promise—that I would not have released you? You knew—you must have known—how dearly I loved you."

She spoke at last.

"You—loved me?"

He stared at her.

"You know I loved you—I told you so! Do you think I—I lied to you so you think I was trying to deceive you? Oh, Nora, 'Nora!' you have been very cruel to me, my girl."

"Cruel to you?"

She echoed the words as if she failed to grasp their meaning.

"Yes," he said, with deep emphasis—"most cruel! Why did you not trust me? You trusted—you confided in Senley Tyers. Why did you not tell me what you told him? Did you think I should be so mean as to force you to marry me—that I wouldn't have been your friend still? Go and forgive you, Nora! I don't think you can ever guess the misery you have caused me." She looked at him a painfully trying to follow and understand him. "For months I have been searching for you. Day and night, with scarcely any rest, I have been looking for you. For months ever lay dead to sleep but I saw on lying dead or—" He shuddered. "But you know—you must know how loving you as I did, I must have suffered." He drew his hand across his row. "But that's all over," he said looking at her. "You—you are well now? I—I am glad of that. Will you tell me—you won't refuse to tell me—where you have been hiding—how you managed to keep out of the way? Good God! where have I looked for you, Nora?"

She leaned her head on her hand as if too confused and bewildered to grasp his meaning for a moment or two, then she looked up at him.

"You did not know where I was first, but—but later you did."

Make a plain syrup by mixing two cups of granulated sugar and one cup of warm water and stir for two minutes. Put 2½ ounces of pure Pinex (fifty cents worth) in a 16-ounce bottle, and fill it up with the Sugar Syrup. This gives you a family supply of the best cough syrup at a saving of $2. It never spoils. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

The effectiveness of this simple remedy is surprising. It seems to take hold instantly, and will usually stop the most obstinate cough in 24 hours. It tones up the jaded appetite and is just as helpful in a cough, and has a pleasant taste. Also excellent for bronchial trouble, throat tickle, sore lungs and asthma, and an unequalled remedy for whooping cough and croup.

This recipe for making cough remedy with Pinex and Sugar Syrup for strains (Pinex) is a prime favorite in thousands of homes in the United States and Canada. The plan has been imitated, though never successfully. If you try it, use only genuine Pinex, which is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway pine extract, and is rich in gualonic acid, the natural healing pine element. Other preparations will not work in the recipe.

A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, money promptly refunded, goes with a recipe. Your druggist has Pinex, or we get it for you. If not, send to The Pine Co., Toronto, Ont.

He looked at her with an expression of anxiety. A fear lest the vision should melt into thin air, and she should again escape him, mingled with his almost overwhelming joy at her presence, and he drew near to her slowly, hesitatingly.

"How—how did you come here?" he asked, breathlessly. "How is it that I find you here alone? Where have you been hiding—where—"

He put his hand to his head, as if half stunned by the suddenness of his discovery.

"Hiding?" She echoed the word with faint wonder, and her lips trembled. "Hiding?"

"Yes," he exclaimed. "You know—you must know—that I have been searching for you all these weary months."

"You have been searching for me?" Her brows grew straight with be-

GIN PILLS Brought Relief

Larder Lake, Ont., March 26th.

"I had been suffering for some time with my Kidneys and Urine. I was constantly passing water, which was very scanty, sometimes as many as thirty times a day. Each time the pain was something awful, and no rest at night.

"I heard of your GIN PILLS and decided to give them a trial at once. I sent my chum 50 miles to get them and I am pleased to inform you that in less than six hours, I felt relief.

"In two days, the pain had left me entirely. I took about half a box and today I feel as well as ever and my kidneys are acting quite natural again."

"No!" he exclaimed, vehemently. "Not from the time you ran away from me until this moment have I ever heard where you have been. I do not know it now."

She half rose, then sunk down again, as if too agitated to stand.

"You knew I was at Vale Hall," she said, in a low voice of reproach, as it struck him.

"You—at Vale Hall? No! Why—why should you be there? How should I know it?"

"They wrote, they told you—they must have told you," she said.

He stared at her.

"They—who? I don't understand. What does this mean? You at Vale Hall? Why did you go there? It is the last place, the very last place in the whole world I should have thought of looking for you."

She trembled and uttered a low moan of bewilderment.

"You knew that—that I am its mistress," she faltered, her eyes on his; "that—that they found I was Reuben Vale's daughter."

He said not a word, but signed to her to go on.

"They—the lawyers—wrote and told you that they had found me; that it was I who had stepped in between you and the estates—and the wretched money."

"Merciful Heaven!" he breathed. "Nora, I never read those papers!"

She started and held her breath.

"I knew that my uncle's daughter had been found, that all had been left to her; but I took no interest in her. I never read the papers or saw your name—the name of Nora Trevanion. I yielded her claim, not knowing or caring who she was or anything about her history. Do you know why? It was because my heart was too full of misery for the loss of you, for me to care about anything else."

HOW EYESTRAIN CAUSES EYE DISEASES.

Eyestrain is the first cause of most eye diseases. It produces irritation and congestion and a consequent general weakness of all the nerves and muscles of the eye. In this way any eye disease, such as Cataract, Optic Nerve Paralysis, Ulcers, Glaucoma, Granulated Lidia, etc., may be produced. Any of these diseases, if neglected, may result in blindness. The best time to treat the eye diseases is in the "eyestrain stage." If you are having any trouble whatever with your eyes, no matter how slight, consult us.
