 September 27, 1924.
 To Any Prospective Investor:
 When the Gordon plan of the "Gordon Silver Black Fox Ranches" was first presented to me and the guarantee explained, at once the "Ponzen Scheme" flashed through my mind, but upon careful consideration of the possibilities and a study of their methods checked against the U. S. Government pamphlet on Fox raising and a report from a Mercantile Agency check on Dr. Gordon, along with a bank letter stating the financial standing of the Ranches in Maine, the writer was convinced of the soundness of the proposition and bought Foxes. Since receiving my dividend I have bought more Foxes and expect to continue to buy until the pelt corporation is founded, for one must realize that at that time there will be no chance to buy stock in this corporation.
 I have all confidence personally in Dr. Gordon, his sincerity in the Gordon Plan and believe it is absolutely "on the level."

Pleasing Presentation
 On Tuesday night some thirty of the employees of Knowling's West End stores waited on Miss Josephine Howlett, who leaves shortly for New York to enter the nursing profession, at her residence, Southside, and presented her with a handsome traveling set, bearing her monogram. The presentation was made by Mr. R. Owen, and an address read by Miss Priddle. Refreshments were then served after which an enjoyable time was spent, songs being rendered by Miss Foley, Messrs. Owens, Russell, Whitten and a dialogue by Misses Foley and Priddle.

Bill's dead—pass the hat!

"SO poor old Bill is dead! I'm downright sorry. He was one of the best of fellows—a great spender and one of the biggest-hearted men that ever lived. Sure, I'll chip in."

"How much have you got there—$242? My! that won't go far with the widow and three children. Only $242! Poor old Bill!"

Your name may not be Bill—but if you dropped off to-morrow, would your family be provided for? Or, would some kind friend have to pass the hat?

You don't care what happens after you're gone? Yes, you do. You don't want to leave your loved ones to the tender care of friends or relatives who probably have troubles of their own. And you don't need to. If you are now in good health and will agree to deposit with us a portion of your savings for a few years we will undertake to pay a regular monthly income to your widow—an income which will commence at your death and continue as long as she lives.

Just write your name and address on the coupon and mail it to us. Then we'll send you our booklet which tells all about it. There's no obligation involved.

Warming the Floors First

Dr. D. Fraser Harris writing in the Times, says:—
 "The opening up recently of several Roman dwellings in this country has brought vividly before some of us the lost art of heating a house."
 "The Romans warmed their houses by the pleasantest and most scientific method—namely, that of heating the floors of the rooms by means of hot air which passed continually below them. The hot air of the hypocaust, besides warming the floors of the rooms of these one-storied Roman villas, also heated the water for the bath. Medieval Europe lost this art; it forgot how to heat houses and it neglected to provide baths. On the cold earthen floors of the gloomy castles rulers were spread presumably to keep the feet of the lords and ladies warm, for the fire in the vast chimney of the banqueting hall must have been a most inefficient heater of that great apartment. We all know that if our feet are warm we are warm or, at least, comfortable all over, and that if the floors are warm all is well, colorfully speaking, with the house."

deed, contemplating something of the kind, a return to the long-forgotten good old Roman system."

Fads and Fashions.

Every dress should have its own length, as some models do not look well too short.
 Long blouses of crepe de chine are very much bunched and girdled at a low waistline.
 The square-crowned hat looks best when worn with tailored, slightly mannish costumes.
