Sarsayarilla is discrete to the medicine. Poculiar in combination, proportion and preparation of ingredients, Hood's Sarsayarilla possesses the full curative value of the best known semedies of the vegetable kingdom. Peculiar in its medicinal merit, Hood's Sarsayarilla accompilishes cures hitherto unknown. Peculiar in strength and economy — Hood's Sarsayarilla is the only medicine of which can truly be said, "Hood does one dollar," Medicines in larger and smaller bottles require larger doese, and do not produce as good results as Hood's Sarsayarilla. Peculiar in its "good name at home"—there is more of Hood's Sarsayarilla, sold in Lowell, where it is made, than of all other blood purifiers.

Peculiar in its phenomenal record of cales abroad, no other preparation has ever attained such popularity in so short a time. Do not be induced to take any other preparation. Besure to get

There is not the least chance of Nancy Hanks and Sunoi meeting in a race. Mr. Bonner says that he is too old to think of changing the firmly-established policy of via life. If, however, the daughter of Electioneer does well she will start at Eleveland against the 2:082 record of Maud S., and there is nothing to prevent Mr. Forbes from doing the same with Nancy Hanks.—[Turf, Field and Farm. Many people think that the trio of American riders who are going abroad next month, Messrs. Windle, Zimmerman and Murphy, will establish a number of new world's records when they strike the famous Herne Hill track in England. A great number of cyclists and trotting men who have studied the subject think that Sunol's trotting record of 2:08½ is in danger, while there seems no good reason why Windle, Zimmerman or Osmond, the lamous English rider, cannot beat Windle's last year's record of 2:15. The Jewish Passover.

To the Editor of the ADVERTISER:
The editor of the ADVERTISER:
The editor of the London Methodist Times lately witnessed the celebration of the Jewish Passover in that city, and at the close of the services said to the rabbit.
"May I ask with what kind of wine you have celebrated the Passover this evening?" The answer, promptly given, was: "With a non-intoxicating wine. Jews never use fermented wine in their synaggue services, and must not use it on the Passover, either for synaggue or home purposes.
Fermented liquer of any kind comes under the category of leaven, which is proscribed in so many places in the Old Testament. The wine which is used by the Jews during the week of Passover, is supplied to the community by those licensed by the chief Rabbi's board, and by those only. Each bottle is sealed in the presence of a representative of the ecclesiastical authorities. The bottle standing over on the sideboard, from which the wine used to-night was taken, was thus sealed. I may also mention that the poor Jews who cannot afford to buy this wine, make an unfermented wine of their own, which is nothing but an infusion of Valencia or Muscatel raisins. I have recently read that passage in Matthew in which the Paschal Supper is described. There can be no doubt whatever, that the wine used upon that occasion was unferemented. Jesus, as an observant Matthew in which the Paschal Supper is described. There can be no doubt whatever, that the wine used upon that occasion was unfermented. Jesus, as an observant Jew, would not only not have drunk fermented wine on the Passover, but would not have celebrated the Passover in any house from which everything fermented had not been removed. I may mention that the wine I use in the synagogue is an infusion of raisins.

You will allow me, perhaps, to express my surprise that Christians who profess to be followers of Jesus of Nazareth can take what he could not have possibly as a Jew—intoxicating wine—at so sacred a service as the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper."

Somnambulistic Madman Rushes Down Yonge Street in Terente at Midnight in an Almost Nude

St. Thomas, Jan. 12.—A young Englishman named Foster, about 20 years old, has since he was 5 years old bean the adopted son of R. B. Seriven, foreman tinsmith at J. Atkinson's store here. He is a handsome young fellow and strongly built, though only of medium size. About five years ago Seriven fell at Tilbury Center and struck his head, injuring himself severly. Last February the young man attended the Royal Military College, Toronto, and while there was taken with a severe epileptic fit and wandered about the institution in his sleep. In his somnambulism he had three or four severe gashes cut on his leg by some means or another, and on account of his suffering from these fits he was expelled from the institution. He had another severe fit in June, and was confined in a straight jacket in the general hospital, London. He has heen working at the trade of painting and paper hanging in Toronto since April last. A few weeks ago he made a holiday visit to his foster parents here.

since April last. A few weeks ago he made a holiday visit to his foster parents here.

Yesterday his friends were startled to learn that a few evenings ago two policemen in Toronto, standing on the corner of Yonge street and Wilton avenue, saw on Wilton avenue, running towards them, a stalwart young man with nothing on his body but a white cotton garment which reached to his knees. He appeared in the bright monlight to have come directly from the grave, and the gown he wore was not unlike a shroud, though somewhat short for the purpose. The thermometer stood nearly down to zero, and the breath of the runner curled up from his nostrils like that of a foaming steed on a freezing winter day. The two onlookers gazed in amazement, but only for a few moments, as the young man was upon them. Although his eyes were wide open he did not seem to be conscious of what he saw, and kept on running as fast as before. As he came along to the corner the constable stood almost in front of him, thinking he would stop. The body of the policeman came into contact with that of the runner, but this had only the effect of throwing the efficer some varks out into the street, heek.
