So the magistrate wrote a concilatory proclamation, delaying the time a few days Then he resorted to the method of appointing a great gathering of Chinese of all sorts, especially the scidiers, at the Kashing Fu School.

The only requirement for entrance was a "queueless head." About 1,000 were present. The Fu himself with his officers appeared before the people and then gave an account of the history of the Kuh-mintang movements in Kashing. One of the most interesting features of the occasion was the presentation to the volunteers of a number of goodly presents, from rice in quantity to dressed pigs and other delicacies of all sorts.
