HENRY GEORGE, JR. Who takes his father's place on the Jeffersonian ticket.

accused of stealing the liver of wool to serve political purposes, and it is alleged that the foremost of the cold-bloodedness and lack of human sympathy. All has been said that need be of the effect on the result of Mr. George's death—namely, that it is in doubt, with the probabilities in favor of greater accessions to Tammany than to either of the other parties, headed respectively by Low and Tracy. The betting is in favor of the Democrats, and the latest quotations are as follows:—Van Wyck vs. field, 5 to 2; Van Wyck vs. Low, 11 to 6; Van Wyck vs. Tracy, 7 to 1; Low vs. Tracy, 2 to 1. These odds are regarded as more closely indicative of public feeling than any that have been posted before. The World fund for a monument to Henry George reached $1,150 within ten hours after his death was generally known. A certified substituting Henry George, Jr. to fill the vacancy on the ticket of the Democratic party was proposed by the Sons of the Republic, a large number of those heavily-Republican districts in which the citizens' union has conviction that the second Henry George will lead to victory a greater best than even his father would have made.

CAUGHT AT LAST.

Thence He Held an Open Jack-Knife and a Club in His Hand—He Declared He Intended to Hang Himself With a Rope Which He Had in His Possession. Chatham, Ont., Oct. 31.—John Glassford, the assaulter, who was arrested near London about two weeks ago for assaulting a farmer's daughter, and who later escaped from the London jail, was captured on the 6th concession of Harwich, about five miles from here, this afternoon, by Constables McReener and McGregor. Chief Young, of Chatham, learned this morning that Glassford was in this vicinity, and sent the two constables to hunt him up. They left about eleven o'clock and scoured the country for him. Farmers in the vicinity furnished them with clues, and a boy informed them that a man was seen looking through a church window a short distance up the creek. Later in the afternoon the two constables obtained sight of Glassford on the road, but every time he cut across the country, he hid in bushes and swamps. He thus eluded the constables until he was seen entering a bush. Here he was found hidden behind a tree, with an open jack-knife in his hand. Constable McGregor immediately covered him with his revolver, demanding his surrender. Glassford offered no resistance, and admitting his guilt, was brought to this city. He says that he passed through this city about seven o'clock this morning. When arrested Glassford had a club in his possession, but he was disarmed before he could use it. He also had two aprons, which he said he stole, and a rope, with which he said he intended to hang himself. When being driven in he continually kept his face over the side of the buggy, but he found himself too closely watched for escape.
