From the Owen Sound Times. In this connection the Toronto World, which has always been sound in its views on railway matters, has an article which puts the genuine ituation so forcibly that we copy it entire.

In his two performances so far, in Mathias, a remorse-pursued murderer, and in Shylock, the exactful Jew, Irving so interprets the characters as to gain for them the sympathy of the audience. You are sorry for Mathias all the time, and instead of hating the Hebrew you feel rather that it is he that has been wronged, and that he has been cheated out of his due on a quibble.

A Pointer to Toronto Preachers. From the Hamilton Spectator

The Toronto preachers are probably right their conclusion; but it is not surprisingly evident that the expense of funerals ingly evident that the expense of functals is a matter with which the ministerial as-sociation ought to meddle. The Toronto preachers would very likely be highly in-dignant were a convention of undertakers to pass resolutions denouncing the extrava-gance of expensive churches and high-salaried clergymen.

The case of Brown v.
