Care of the Baby In Summer

"Swat the fly!"

This legend should be written on the wall of every mother's room, to remind her constantly that one of the great services she can render her baby is to protect him and his food from flies.

Every female fly may lay about 120 eggs at a time, which hatch in ten days into full grown flies, so that every female fly which is not destroyed will be increased many million by the end of the season. It is an impossible task to destroy them at this stage or to protect the house and family against them. The only really effective results are secured when the eggs are destroyed.

The favorite breeding places of the common housefly is in horse manure. In a pile of a thousand pounds there may be half a million maggots ready to hatch, unless they are destroyed in the larval stage, as the eggs are called.

Various substances have been suggested for use upon horse manure in order to destroy the fly maggots. Among these are iron sulphate, kerosene, chloride of lime, hellebore and borax.

The United States department of agriculture has recently recommended powdered hellebore as a cheap, safe and effective substance for the treatment of manure. "One-half pound of powdered hellebore mixed with ten gallons of water is sufficient to kill the larvae in eight bushels, or ten cubic feet, of manure. In most places hellebore is obtained in 100 pound lots at a cost of 11 cents a pound. This makes the cost of the treatment a little less than seven-tenths of a cent per bushel of manure. A liberal estimate of the output of manure is two bushels a day per horse."

After the summer has advanced the effort must be made to keep each in-yard, which will serve the purpose temporarily.

Cleopatra Salad.

Despite its imposing name, Cleopatra salad is one that any family of moderate aspirations can indulge in frequently and with impunity. Its component parts are any leftover cooked vegetables, lima beans, corn, peas and bits of beet being especially eligible. Have all the ingredients very cold, cut in neat shapes, so they do not look "messy," and dish on lettuce leaves, either the crimped or brown edged being most decorative. Over them cut little ribbons of sweet red or green peppers. Serve with French dressing.

BLUNDERS IN BATTLE.

Cases Where Troops Have Fired Upon Their Own People.

It was at Beacon Hill during the Boer war that there happened one of the saddest incidents in the history of the British army. The East Surrey were in a hollow between two hills creeping up the valley. The West Surrey regiment, half a mile away, caught sight of the crouching figures and took them for Boers.

In a moment a heavy volley rang out and it was not until an officer, realizing the mistake, rushed out in front of the West Surreys that the firing ceased.

A nurse, writing afterward from the Estcourt hospital, said it was pitiful to see the West Surreys coming in one after another, bringing cigarettes, dainties, any present they could find, for the wounded men, then, hearing their groans, turn away, saying: "God forgive us! This is our work!"

One of the strangest cases of troops firing upon their own people occurred in Roumania in the year 1885. At that time Roumania was in a very disturbed condition, and bands of robbers—regular banditti—prowled over the country, raiding the villages and farms. The largest of these bands made its headquarters in the forest of Rhodope and gradually increased until it became 300 strong. It spread terror through the whole countryside, and at last the government sent a body of troops to hunt it down.

The robber band was located on top of a mountain, and the colonel in command of the troops split his forces and sent half up each side so as to attack from two points simultaneously.

A thick fog fell, and the robbers took advantage of it to sneak away quietly by a path known only to themselves. The troops, unaware of this maneuver, continued their ascent, and the two bodies, each crawling along under cover of rocks and brushwood, met at the top. They at once opened fire and fought desperately for a whole hour before the mistake was discovered. Eighty were killed and 300 wounded.—Philadelphia Ledger.

GOOD NATURED ELEPHANTS.

Peculiarities of Some of the Herds of West Africa.

In 1905 I found myself near the Inza river, an important affluent of the Kwilu, flowing through a fertile region which is infested by herds of elephants, a source of constant anxiety and frequent losses to the inhabitants.

In a country like this, where he is not hunted by man in the ordinary way and the only means for his destruction are cruel but easily avoided pitfalls, the elephant is decidedly good natured. We were told by the mission boys at Pana that in the rainless season, when their usual haunts are dried up, the elephants frequently wander near the river and attack the plantations. The natives try to drive them away with sticks!

"But it is no good hitting them or throwing stones at them," I was told. "They generally refuse to take any notice. Sometimes a mother with a calf will turn on us and chase us for a hundred yards or so, but no real harm is meant and the animal is not really angry, for all the signs of fury—spread ears and raised trunk—are absent. All the same, we do run away, although we know there is no danger. One day a boy fell when thus pursued, but the elephant only threw sand on him."

As I have myself seen a man just pushed out of the way by one of these good natured monsters, when the animal had more than enough provocation to kill him, I was inclined to accept this account as true.—Wide World Magazine.

Poaching an Egg.

The food value of an egg is enormous, but an invalid tires of eggs served in the ordinary way. Here is a method involving some trouble, but worth it for the sick person's sake. Break an egg into a flat dish of cold water and let it remain covered with muslin for twelve hours. Then pour the water off very gently indeed, so as to prevent the egg going with it. Now poach the latter in boiling water, adding just a tiny pinch of salt. This, nicely served, can be eaten by any one, for it melts in the mouth literally. Two might be cooked, for done in this way, one egg is not much.—Buffalo News.

Craze For Calendars

The craze for calendars has grown immensely during the past few years, so much so, that it would be well for the merchant if he would sit down and figure out whether, from a business getting viewpoint, the expense is warranted, or whether it is just an expensive vanity to connect his name with a pretty picture. All advertising is good advertising, but as the aim of the ordinary merchant is to get the most business for the least outlay in money, we have grave doubts that the use of the calendar is giving him return at all commensurate with cost. In many cases calendars are sought by those anxious to secure a pretty picture. Once obtained the advertisement is cut off and the picture tacked up or given the children as a plaything. The main purpose for which it was intended is thus frustrated, though the merchant knows nothing of it, and soothes himself for incurring the expense by fondly imagining his advertisement on the wall of every customer's home. Some day they will wake up to a realization of their cherished delusion.—Comber Herald.

Price of Bread Drops

The recent slump in the price of flour has brought the price of bread down a little. In St. Thomas bakers are now selling, from the wagons, 17 loaves weighing 24 ounces each, for $1, in place of 15 for $1, and 32 small loaves weighing 12 ounces each for $1. The small loaves retail at the stores for 5c per loaf. The price of bread has taken a considerable drop in other Ontario cities. Brantford now sells 24 ounce loaves for 6c instead of 7c.

Do not allow worms to sap the vitality of your children. If not attended to, worms may work irreparable harm to the constitution of the infant. The little sufferers cannot voice their ailment, but there are many signs by which mothers are made aware that a dose of Miller's Worm Powder is necessary. These powders act quickly and will expel worms from the system without any inconvenience to the child.

To die for a woman may be an act of bravery, but the man who leads her to the marriage altar and agrees to earn a living for her is a real hero.

A HAPPY BABY IS ONE PROTECTED FROM THE FLIES.

dividual home as free from the pest as can be done with screens, fly papers, traps and swatters.

Garbage pails must be kept covered, and no refuse of any sort should be allowed to accumulate about the premises to provide breeding and feeding places. As in most other things, prevention is far better than cure. The time for preventive measures to be most effective is in April and May, when the fly crop is small.

Fly swatters should be used continually if flies get into the house, and poisonous and sticky fly papers will help to rid it of these pests. There are a great many kinds of fly traps on the market. Such traps can be made at home with little trouble, and the department of agriculture, Washington, will send directions upon request not only for traps, but for methods of destroying the eggs before they hatch into flies. (A homemade fly trap and a copy of Bulletin 245 are sent for 20 cents.)

It is certain that typhoid fever is distributed by flies, and it is probable also that the germs of other diseases are carried in this way. It is, therefore, possible that the fly which falls into the milk or walks over the baby's mouth or alights on the nipple of the bottle may leave there the germs.

"The baby, like the rest of the family, should be protected by having the doors and windows of the whole house screened, if possible, and by having a screened porch on which to play and sleep. If this cannot be done at least the bedroom should be screened. If wire screens are too expensive cotton netting may be had for a few cents a
