

GERMAN-ENGLISH DICTIONARY.

Lang's German-English Dictionary of Terms used in Medicine and the Allied Sciences. Second edition. Edited and revised by Milton K. Meyers, M.D., Neurologist to the Jewish Hospital Dispensary, and to St. Agnes Hospital Dispensary, Philadelphia, etc. Philadelphia: P. Blakiston' Son and Company, 1012 Walnut Street. 1913. Price, $5.00 net.

There are now many physicians who read German, and to such this book will prove most valuable. We have given close attention to its pages and can recommend it with the utmost confidence. The type is very clear and of modern form. The paper and binding are excellent. The author, editor and publishers are to be congratulated upon the result of their united efforts.

THE DRUG BILL.

How to Cut the Drug Bill. By A. Herbert Hart, M.S., M.D. London: John Bale, Sons and Danielsson, Oxford House, 83 Great Titchfield Street, Oxford Street. 1913. Price, 2s. 6d.

This neat little book of 122 pages will prove of unique interest to those who carry a supply of drugs, and do some dispensing. It points out in what way economy can be combined with efficiency. The book deals with apparatus, acids, disinfectants, invalid foods, etc., etc. There is a good deal of useful information on the composition of the leading mineral waters and many of the trade preparations on the market. The book will prove useful to a large number of readers.

THE SCHOOL DENTIST'S SOCIETY.

Affiliated to the Child Study Society and the National League for Physical Education and Improvement. Its Objects and Aims. Second edition, published for the School Dentists' Society, by W. Michael and Son, Watford. Eng. Price, 1s.

This little book goes into the importance of the care of the teeth, the steps that are being taken to induce attention to this subject in schools, and the status of dental education in many countries. For those who are engaged in public school hygiene this little book is a very timely one.
