those days was a very different affair to the show of the present. Then the show was a thing of infrequent occurrence. It was looked forward to by many as the one day's outling of the year, and but two or three shows were easily reachable in each district by the means of locomotion which were confined to sparsely-inhabited districts. The programs at the earlier shows did not cover a wide range; the prizes, even at the more important ones, were of small value; and the midday luncheon, with its speeches and toasts, or the early dinner, held immediately at the conclusion of the show, was a much more valued function than it is at present. In those days the agricultural show was the great agricultural holiday of the year. It was fixed so as to miss a busy time, and land-owners and their families, farmers and their wives, and as many of the farm hands as could be spared, attended regularly, and made up the principal bulk of the attendance. As showing increased and as neighboring districts began to get up shows in rivalry, it became a matter of importance to add to the prize money. And in-order to do this it became necessary to organize the shows better, so as to attract a larger gate. It also became expedient to further increase the receipts by the erection of stands.

One of the first of the attractions to suggest itself was the riding of hunters in the ding, and classes were added for hunters i vears old and upwards, the showing of which proved a great attraction to the outside public. Then, after classes for hunters to be ridden in the ring were introduced, classes for gentlemen's hacks and ladies' hacks were soon added, and the way to classes and driving classes and ibitions more or less of the circus order was soon bridged over.

The history of some of these attractions rendered necessary by the increased amount of money which must be given in prizes, may prove of interest. It is probably known to only a few that the leaping of hunters originated at the Cleveland Show, and that it was a very different and much more seriles was the control of the to only a few that the leaping of hunters originated at the Cleveland Show, and that it was a very different and much more serious matter than the jumping classes of the present day. It was made a condition that a horse shown in the 4-year-old class should jump a thorn hedge to the satisfaction of the judges. And be it remembered that the a horse shown in the 4-year-old class should jump a thorn hedge to the satisfaction of the judges. And be it remembered that the post and rail in those days was fast. I remember in 1860 seeing large classes of horses negotiate these fences successfully, and on that occasion Mr. Thomas Parring ton's King Charming won in the class for geldings, and Lady Bennett, then owned by Mr. Robert Brunton, a hard-riding farmer and butcher, residing at Marton, in Clevelland, jumped one of the most formidable fences ever seen in the show ring. This was at Durham County Show held at Stock ton-on-Tees. Lady Bennett, who was a "handful," was regularly hacked by her owner, and there was no attempt made to "get her up," as is the case with show horses for show is an art of modern development. These was a large class on the occasion referred to, some 16 or 17 horses entering the ring. But Lady Bennett was the only one who would face the timber, a stiff and fast rail, 5 feet high, and she took it in her stride, so winning hands down.

It was soon recognized that the showyard hunter, with the possibilities which were before him, was too valuable an animal to incur such risks as the jumping class as it is now known was introduced. Curiously enough, I think the driving classes which have become so popular, also had their rise at the Cleveland Show. In 1866, when the show was held at Thornaby, then known as South Stockton, there were not any cattle or sheep classes, owing to had their rise at the Cleveland Show. In 1866, when the show was held at Thornaby, then known as South Stockton, there were not any cattle or sheep classes, owing to the prevalence of rinderpest, so the council, to add to the attractiveness of the show, gave prizes for saddles and harness (cart harness included), and for the best pair of carriage horses. There was not a very large classes the letter but the auxility reas. class of the latter, but the quality was ex-cellent. Sir Joseph (then Mr.) Pease won with a pair of black-browns, a color to with a pair of black-browns, a color to which he has always been partial, and Mr. John Skene, who then did a good business as a horse dealer at Stockton, was second with a pair of hunting-like dappled browns by The British Yeoman, which he had bought out of Cumberland. I think this was the first time pairs of carriage horses were shown in harness, but if it was not actually the first time such a thing had taken place, it was certainly looked upon as a novelty and was a great attraction.

Since 1860 I have attended the principal shows regularly, and I have seen many curious attractions admitted to show

Leaping and driving, however, are legitimate enough, and a varied programe in each section can be, and frequently is, offered. At the same time, whilst recognizing that such attractions are necessary to bring money to the coffers of the various societies. LOCAL LIVE STOCK.

The receipts of live stock at the Western Cattle Market were fair—71 car loads, composed of 1075 cattle, 1001 sheep and lambs, 1400 hogs and 60 calves.

The quality of the fat cattle offered -was fairly good, and on account of light deliveries last week, which had the effect of cleaning up the market, trade was inclined to be active.

Prices for exporters were slightly easter, the bulk selling from $4.25 to $4.50, with one or two choice loads going at 10c more, per owt.

Loads of good butchers' and exporters, mixed, sold at $4 to $4.20 per cwt.

New York Gossip.

Henry A. King & Co., 12 King-street east, received the following despatch to-day from New York:

London prices were somewhat lower, and a sharp reaction in Spanish fours led to belief that Spanish reply might be unsatisfactory. This brought considerable selling of the active stocks in the early dealings, and especially the Grangers, on which prices sold off. The only feature of strength was Leather, which was advanced I to 142. A sharp advance in People's Gas in the affernoon gave a better tone to the declines, but realizing continued, and in the last hour the market sold at about the lowest of the day. Bull leaders were quoted as saying that there was no change in the situation, and that the reaction was only natural after several days' advances.

Oats—As before stated, are threshing out very poorly: Small quantity and light in quality, with a fairly good demand.
The provision pit was almost deserted, except by the packers and their representatives. They seemed to be free sellers on any hard spots, and stepped in to sustain the market on the slumps. The outside speculator is somewhat conspicuous by his absence.
