The girl said: "Soldiers passed the house and were singing. I exclaimed:

'They go as merrily as if they had retaken Port Arthur.' "The crowd heard me and hissed the soldiers. I walked on. The soldiers rushed after me and I ran to the door of my house and crouched in the corner of the hall in terror. One of the soldiers said, 'There she is,' and another dragged me out. Although I implored them that I might go to the police station, I was taken to the barracks. On my arrival an officer asked: 'Who is this?' and said, 'Send her to the police.' "Another said, 'No, take her to the stables.' "I refused to go and the officer held a pistol to my head. I thought I would be shot and I prayed. "I was forced to the stables. I knelt and kissed the officer's hand and implored mercy, but I was hurrled to a stall and my hands were tied to a manger. The officer ordered 25 strokes says: of the lash, and several soldiers armed When it reaches the utmost point there tongues bound with wire. Two young officers lolled at the door. The first soldier, like a furious beast, gave me three blows, and I fainted. What I did afterwards I don't know, but I found myself in the street so dazed that I wandered in the wrong direction, but finally got home, where mother put compresses on my back and a doctor was sent for. "My brother was white as death when he saw my state. Blood glued my clothes to my body." The brother, Vassili, a young workman, formerly a disciple of Father Gapon, said: "I shall try every legal means to bring my sister's tormentors to justice. If I fail my fellow workmen will avenge this awful deed.'

Nippon Residents There Resent Supervi ior Attitude of the Whites.

Honolulu, Aug. 21. - A series of inflammatory articles in English have been appearing in the Japanese Daily Chronicle, published in Honolulu. These articles express a feeling prevalent among the Japanese that they are held in contempt by the white and dominant element of the community, and that their presence here is resented and would be dispensed with altogether: An article of this series, after recounting a number of recent events to prove the ill-feeling toward the Japanese will be a collision between the two races, and it may lead to the disturbance of peace of two nations. "We believe it is important for our Government to follow the example of Great Britain and the United States to dispatch her war vessels to foreign ports where most of her subjects reside and protect any rights and interests which they already have by conditions of treaty; especially to countries like Hawaii, where the white people treat the Nipponese with insolence and where this is getting worse every day, the Government should keep a war vessel here continually, so that it may attract the attention of these ignorant, discourteous and impolite people of Had
