

BOTH FACTIONS WILL HAVE TO BE CONSIDERED

The Madrid Representatives Submit Plan for Settlement of Troubles at Nicaragua.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—General Sebastian Salinas and Dr. Modesto Barrios, representatives here of the Madrid faction in Nicaragua, had an interview at the state department today with Acting Secretary of State Wilson and submitted a formal representation, which, if accepted, would in their opinion bring about a settlement of the troubles which have been seething in the Central American republic.

No arguments which they presented, however, can change in the least the fixed policy of the United States in regard to the Nicaraguan situation was made absolutely plain at the department. Attention was called to the fact that in a settlement of the complicated problem both factions will have to be considered. That the Estrada faction, now more than ever, has claims which must be considered was insisted by the fact that the revolutionists now hold, not only the east coast, but also the Province of Chontales in the interior, and some territory not far from Managua, the capital.

Dr. Barrios and Dr. Salinas will be recognized by the state department as an authorized channel for such unofficial communications as from time to time pass between the department and the Madrid faction in Nicaragua.

PREVENTION OF ACCIDENTS.

Editor World: Too much praise cannot be given the controllers for their prompt action in calling a public meeting to prevent similar tragedies to that on Thursday night. We hope the same controllers will use some of their experience in street railway accidents, where cars run the ways in the year, almost 24 hours daily, where people have been run over and killed and injured in all kinds of ways which could be greatly remedied. If the board of control would only exercise some of the power given them by the Whitney bill, it would reduce the number of accidents in Toronto by 50 per cent.

NEARLY ANOTHER COLLISION

Launch Almost Had Fate of Yacht "Director".

It has come to light that only an hour before the Mayflower could have with the yacht Director on Thursday night, resulting in the triple drowning, the Steamer Turbina narrowly escaped running in a similar accident.

As the steamer was plying her way towards the western gap on her return trip to Hamilton, a gasoline launch, containing two men and three girls, attempted to cross her path when their motor gave out and it stopped midway.

The girls screamed in terror, for the steamer's bow seemed on the very verge of crushing them. Engines were reversed, but it was impossible to control the boat's momentum, and only the timely tact of the man at the helm, who deftly steered the Turbina out of her course was a serious catastrophe averted. Captain Bonard says it was the closest shave he ever saw.

ARGUMENT FOR TARIFF REFORM.

In an old country paper, the "Halifax Guardian," is published an interview with a Yorkshireman, who has, in short time in Toronto as a carpet weaver, earned sufficient to pay a holiday visit to his home, and who will soon be on his way back to Toronto again, bringing his wife and family. The object of the interview was to learn a workingman's opinions on life in Canada, and incidentally, his views on its protective tariff.

The carpet weaver spoke in glowing terms of the opportunities for employment here, and citing his own case, said he arrived in Toronto on a Saturday and began work on Monday. Passing on he expressed unbounded admiration for the climate and country. The people he found exceptionally nice and he advised anyone without regular employment to come over here and follow his example.

As to a protective tariff, he said, it is an absolute necessity to England, if its industries are to be preserved. He spoke of his experience. He had worked in the old country and in a protected country, and had seen the difference an adverse tariff made. This man is in the employ of the Toronto Carpet Company. His is not an isolated case, and yet free traders refuse to permit the mere suggestion that their policy is not the best for the welfare of this country. "Wait and see."

HERE'S BOOST FOR CITY

LOTS OF WORK AND MONEY

Yorkshireman Tells Halifax Guardian That Toronto is a Sort of Eldorado.

The Halifax (Eng.) Guardian, a tariff reform paper, publishes an interview with a Yorkshireman who spent some time in Toronto. It reads:

"J. H. S." is a typical Yorkshireman. He is a sturdy chap, and gives you a shake of the hand that does you good, for it is the very embodiment of wholeheartedness and geniality.

These were the characteristics that a Guardian representative found when he called on "J. H. S." for a chat on Thursday evening. The object of this visit was to learn "J. H. S.'s" opinions of life in the Dominion of Canada, and, incidentally, as Canada is one of the "terrible" protected countries which our free trade friends tell us are such fearful places for the workingman, to gain his views on the subject.

For many years, he said, he worked at Dean Clough Mills. During the earlier part of his life he had full employment, for the mills were constantly running. Then came the imposition of the heavy American tariff on manufactured carpets. Dean Clough soon after the close of this, and a year ago "J. H. S." found himself working short time, which brought his wages down to something under a week.

The Lure of Toronto.

It was about this time that a friend, who had "struck oil" in Toronto, wrote and told him that work was there for good men. With things in the state they were in at home, "J. H. S." decided he could not be much worse off, so on September 10 last he sailed, leaving behind his wife and grown-up family.

Straight for Toronto he made and arrived on a Saturday. He commenced work on Monday in the Toronto Carpet Factory, which is surrounded by well-kept gardens, and not at all like the surroundings of the Halifax mills.

Not only did he start on regular work, but he got good pay. This week he averaged $28 to $30 a fortnight, English money £5 16s 8d to £5 18s 4d.

"Did you find any scarcity of work while you were there?" "J. H. S." was asked.

"Not in my line of business," was the reply.

Going on with his narrative, he said of course it depended on the man. If he was a good man at carpet weaving he need not be without a job. The work at the factory was increasing and they now had some 200 men at work. Fresh ones were being put down, and he mentioned incidentally that some had been brought from Dean Clough.

Cost of Living.

"Did you not find your living expenses were much heavier than in England?" was the next question put by our representative.

"J. H. S." replied in detail. He had to pay $2.50 (10s 6d) for 21 meals, and $1 (4s 2d) for sleeping accommodation. If you were by yourself you had a separate room, but if you shared a room with a friend it cost 40 to 50 cents a week, i.e. 1s 8d to 2s 10d. Taking it altogether, he thought, 2s a week would amply cover cover a good living in Toronto, and he added, you escape all the worry caused by not having regular and full work. Clothing costs very much about the same as it did in this country. If you wanted an expensive suit you could get it, but you could obtain it at all prices.

"You can afford to pay a good price when you have good pay and regular work," interposed the "Guardian" man.

"J. H. S." assented, and went on to say that he had only been in Canada nine months, his wages as a carpet weaver had been so good that he had been able to keep himself, send £1 a week over to "Mrs. J. H. S." and save enough money to pay his passage to England and back.

"Are you going back then?" was asked by our representative.

"J. H. S." answered that he only came over to fetch his wife. He was having a three months' holiday, but really he wanted to get back and would probably stay here five or six weeks.

"How many," he asked a question in his turn, "men in the factory at Halifax can save in a year more than sufficient to pay for a week's holiday?"

Passing on, "J. H. S." expressed unbounded admiration for the climate and the country round Toronto. The people he found exceptionally nice and ready to be friendly to him, and he advised anyone who could not get regular employment here to go over there.

"You are speaking of skilled factory hands, not of clerks?" asked the Guardian interviewer.

"That is so. I do not know anything about them. There seem to be too many already. I think a good man in my line can, if he likes to, get employment at once, with good pay. You have to work, but no one minds work if the pay is good. In short, his advice to all men in the position he was in is to follow his example.

Tariff reform, he continued, was in his opinion, an absolute necessity for this country, if her industries were to be preserved. He spoke from experience. He had worked at Dean Clough, and had seen the difference an adverse tariff had made, and he had worked in a protected country.

A question as to the hours of labor led to our representative being informed that the hours were from 7-12, 1-6, except on Saturdays, when work ceased at noon. This works out at 51 1/2 hours a week.

Lots of Money Going.

Among other interesting chat "J. H. S." mentioned that the salaries of the licensed houses are called—closed from 7 o'clock Saturday evenings to 6 on Sunday mornings. There was plenty of money and the people were not niggardly with it. People seem to go about their business better off there; it was not customary to see so many loafers as in the case of this country, tho, of course, there had in any other place. There were about ten other Halifax men working in the same mill as he was, and they all agreed with his views on life in Canada. Some emigrants, of course, went out and returned without giving the country a fair chance. A skilled carpenter could, however, go and providing he was prepared to work, find not the slightest difficulty in securing employment. The same conditions as he had described as existing in Toronto.
