MANUFACTURER'S SALE

OF WOMEN'S HIGH-GRADE WINTER GARMENTS

At Prices That Represent Manufacturer's
Absolute Bone-Cost of Production

36 to 38 KING STREET WEST

Modes That Typify the Hourly Touch of Fashion in Every Artistic Ideal

This morning promptly at 9.30 o'clock, the doors of the John Kay Building, at 36-38 King Street West, swing open to the most important sale of Women's Winter Garments ever featured in this city. This is a manufacturer's sale of hundreds of fine grade garments—not a collection of ODD lines bought for mere sale purposes. The garments come from one of the foremost manufacturing concerns of women's ready-to-wear garments. A house of national reputation and noted for the superior quality of its product. Every garment offered in this sale will bear the maker's name and be exactly as represented here.

The circumstances which have brought about this unusual event is due to the remarkably fine weather of the past few months, which has twisted commercial conditions into a Gordian knot and broken the very backbone of business traditions. In brief, production has exceeded demand and left the manufacturer with an excess of stock that it is now too late to dispose of to the retail trade. This excess must be converted into CASH as quickly as possible. Profits are not considered—the stock must be cleared and this is the method the firm have decided upon. That is the story in short and the real reason for this epochal merchandising event.
