The Board regrets that our death rate this year has been 18 percent. In an institution of this kind delicate children are constantly being admitted. Are we to refuse admission to such so that we may be able to make a better showing at the end of the year? We say emphatically no. Some of the deaths occurred a few hours after admission. In looking over the causes of death, it will be seen that in many cases they are irremediable. We all try to do our best, but despite our best efforts the little spark of
