

elements of French Literature, History of France and England, Pedagogy. All the pupils take a share of household work, and learn needle-work, crochet and mending. Mrs. Roux is endeavoring to help in buying several articles of furniture much needed just now, most of all a carpet for the parlor. Intellectually, our pupils are on the whole doing very creditably. In a moral point of view, we are quietly gaining ground. In spite of difficulties and occasional failures it is a noble work, if only we could remember that we are the servants of God, in awakening the dormant faculties of immortal souls to a lively sense of their responsibility to God.

Good many of our pupils are connected with churches, and we are happy to say that those who are members of our mission churches are our best pupils, the most conscientious, those who help us most effectually in every department of our work.

Among those who are not as yet connected with any church by a personal act of their own, several are trying hard to do God's will, and we have no doubt will, ere long, publicly confess their faith in Jesus. Among our youngest pupils are some but recently rescued from the deleterious influence of popery, and belonging to very respectable families and connected with ecclesiastical dignitaries. If only Christians, who have the means, would sufficiently provide for such a noble institution, destined to do so much good in this country, so that laborers might work with less anxiety and more cheerfully, a great deal more would be accomplished. As it is, the missionary laborer is too often hindered and almost discouraged by the care of providing for the material wants of the establishment.

The present staff of teachers are :—Rev. C. Roux, Director, has the higher branches, such as Grammar, History, Literature, &c.; Mrs. Roux, Writing, Drawing, General French Superintendent; Miss Lore, Preparatory Class and Mathematics; Miss Goodwin, English and Music. Rev. Mr. Lafleur, of Montreal, is pastor of the Institute, and preaches more or less regularly in the place, according to the facilities of crossing the river, and when the general interest of the Society and the cause do not absolutely demand his services.

MONTREAL STATION.

We may safely say that our labors here, during the year, have not been in vain. Every Sunday the little chapel is filled, some-
