Winding for two miles along the eastern bank of the River Humber sixty feet above the river basin, and less than three miles from the City of Toronto is the picturesque Village of Weston, with its six churches, spacicus public school and high school. This is the most beautiful of all the residential suburbs of the city.

At both ends of the village are excellent factory sites of from one to twenty acres, convenient sidings from the G.T.R. and C.P.R. easily obtainable. There are eighteen trains daily, nine on each railway to and from Toronto, timed to suit both business men and mechanics with monthly five-cent tickets to Union Station.

Streets and residences have electric light, gas is being arranged for, and an excellent waterworks system is now being installed, thus affording all modern conveniences. The suburban J.
