2 SUNDAY MORNING

the point where, since last week, the Germans have been endeavor-ing to get thru. Many despatches speak of a stream of German re-inforcements and the allies, in their official statements, have taken ARMENIAN BANDS regnizance of the changed complexion of those fresh troops. It is sounded out that vast numbers of raw men may have proven inferior to a smaller and better trained force as the repulse of the German mixed forces along the Yser would indicate and that the use of more first line troops in Flanders may mean less prodigality and more heavy fighting than seems to have characterized the former German runkes.

150,000 FRESH TROOPS COMING. A hundred and fifty thousand Germans, it is said, will be moved to Belgium from Muenster, Prussia, next week while troops who fought near Sedan already are in West Flanders. COUNTLESS DEAD ARE LEFT.

The German attempt to reach the Straits of Dover appeared today to have relaxed temporarily. Along the now famous Yser, from the sands of the North Sea coast to the ruined Town of Dixfrom the sands of the North Sea coast to the ruined Town of Dix-mude, the situation today in the unemotional language of the French war office, was "relatively quiet." The fighting there has all but ceased, and the tide of battle has rolled southward, leaving behind it the countless dead, whose torn bodies are stretched thickly over many a field. South of Ypres on the line extending down over the French border to Arras, the Germans are preparing another furious onslaught, spurred on by their emperor. The main battle there, upon which depends so much for the Germans and allies alike, has not yet begun.

ADVANTAGES TO THE ALLIES.

Along the rest of the battle line which stretches across France, ortant advantages are said to have been won by the allies. Today's official French statement says that the British and French forces have repulsed German attacks along almost the entire front and that northeast of Verdun, where the territory has long been disputed with exceptional ferocity, two villages have been captured by the allies.

THE FALL OF TSINGTAU.

THE FALL OF TSINGTAU. Pending decisive developments on any of the European fields of to battle, the fall of Tsingtau held first place in the attention of military men today. Official reports from Tokio show that it was not without desperate resistance that the German garrison gave up the fight. For days the German forces had been subjected to a withering fire from land and sea. At last the central fort fell before the impetuous attack of the Japanese, whose bravery, says Tokio, rivalled that dis-played in the historic charges on Port Arthur. "Suddenly" says the official report from Tokio. "the flag of

"Suddenly" says the official report from Tokio, "the flag of oder ran up in the morning breeze on the weather bureau mount, towering above the sea and land."

Tokio today is celebrating with an outburst of popular enthusi-asm the fall of Tsingtau, which occurred after a siege of about three weeks. The vice minister of the navy states that Japan will hold Tsingtau until the war is over, when she will "open negotiations" with China.

With the fighting at Tsingtau at an end, the question is raised as to what Japan will do next. It is suggested that she will now inaugurate an offensive naval campaign on the Pacific employing the fleet released from the bombardment of Tsingtau in an attempt to run down the German warships which wrought such havoc to the British shipping interests. Notwithstanding Russian claims to an overwhelming success in Austrian the east, there is nothing to show that the German and Austrian forces have met great disaster and altho they were compelled to re-treat they apparently were able to fall back upon strongly fortified positions selected in advance.

amount. The probability that they are safe in these positions, for the present at least, leads London to suggest that German troops will be withdrawn and rushed to the west to bolster up the battered forces there for a su-preme effort to pierce the allied line to the south of Ypres. two days heavy cannonading has been under way and this is believed to be preliminary to the main German attack. Over the remainder of the battle line thru France there are no de-distry changes. Altho today's official French statement asserts that the Germans have been driven back at various points, the situation in the main apparently is practically the same as has been the case for several weeks, so far as the general line of battle is concerned. ### TURKEY SEIZES VESSELS.

Of the fighting on land and sea brought about by Turkey's entrance into the war little was learned today. Turkish officials at Smyrna are said to have made further seizures of vessels of hostile countries, and the said to have made further seizures of vessels of hostile countries, and the Russian general staff in Caucasia reports that the Turkish forces which attempted an offensive movement have been driven back with heavy losses. Paris suggests that the Germans are making an important change in their military tactics. Mass formation is said to have been abandoned in the fighting in Flanders, infantrymen attacking in open order and seeking all available cover.

ENTIRE GERMAN UNITS CAPTURED.

During the action against the positions on what is known as the Grand Crown of Nancy, according to a French semi-official announcement issued in Paris today, one German battalion alone left 300 dead on the battlefield. Many prisoners yesterday were made along the whole front, in some instances entire units being captured. In the district of Lens, where a thick fog prevailed, two German deaents took the opportunity to surrender voluntarily. One of them factured an officer, three non-commissioned officers and fifty men. The Germans were weary of the hardships and fatigue imposed upon them and they were confident that they would be well treated by the French. LATEST CASUAL/TY LIST.

The latest list of casualties includes in the roll of wounded: Lord Ardee, acting colonel of the Irish Guards, eldest son of Lord Meath, seriously injured and now in a hospital at Boulogne; Lord Francis Scott, son of the Duke of Buccleuch.

Scott, son of the Duke of Buccleuch. Viscount Henry William Crichton, eldest son of the Earl of Erne. and major of the Royal Horse Guards, and Hugh Grosvenor, brother of the Duke of Westminster, have been captured by the kaiser's forces. The Hon. Chas. Douglas-Pennant is wounded and a prisoner.

BECAUSE: The larger flues in the "Sovereign" provide a more open draft, and bring the fire into contact with a greater area of the metal walls, which contain the water carrying heat to the Radiators. The wide flues in the "Sovereign" will draw a maximum amount of heat from a hard coal fire, or, when the dampers are opened, soft coal or wood, or any burnable waste material may be used to advantage in the milder season of the year when a heavy hard coal fire is not necessary.
