New York, April 29—Americans in London irregular with active fractional lower.
Bank statement shows actual reserves of $10,677,000.
Disinflation will be filed against the Harvester Company this week, as it was unable to reach an agreement about reorganization.
The Taft-Roosevelt fight goes on in Massachusetts today with both of them making whitening trips. The vote comes tomorrow.
Steel statement tomorrow about half past three p. m.
Brooklyn Union Gas will make extra dividends for the next four years to make up to stockholders six per cent since 1905.
The street will be watching for a coal trust decision today. Mondays of late have shown some reaction tendency, but reasons for further advances in stocks are many and affect a great number of issues.
The banking interests do not seem opposed to a higher range for securities. Traders are buying Rock Island believing that will be put up.
Steel likely to be irregular; short interest is large. Reading will probably be nervous waiting for the coal decision. The market holds well and still looks a purchase on reactions.

In Montreal Today.
Montreal, April 29—After the sharp advance in the last few days of the week, steel was due for a reaction and it was held on Saturday that the stock had acted well. Forecasts as to the course of the stock this week are mixed, although the general opinion at the moment seems to be that there is nothing in the news to put the stock much higher at the moment.

PERPETUAL MOTION IN FINANCING

Remarkable French Case is To Be Tried Again After Four Years

POLITICS IN IT, TOO.

Appeal Court Has Decided That Rochette, a Young Napoleon of Finance, Must Undergo Trial Once More—Rise From Waiter's Position

Paris, April 28—The famous Rochette case, which four years ago created such excitement in financial, judicial and parliamentary circles, and which the general public had almost forgotten, is about to be revived. For something like four years a commission has been inquiring into it, and now the Court of Cassation, the supreme court of appeal in France, has decided that the whole case is to be tried over again.

Rochette, an exceedingly intelligent young man, had been for some time a waiter in Moulins, and then clerk in a small banker's office. The banker's business came to an end, and Rochette brought up whatever interests there were for a few francs. He was clever, and started to work the market in his own way. He soon found capitalists in Paris who induced certain customers to subscribe a few thousand francs to one of Rochette's ventures. He handled the money well, and in the space of four years founded a mining bank, which had made the coal mines of Lorraine, Liat, Carbay, and Val d'Aran.

What was the value of these mines? The court will finally decide, but Rochette's most ambitious scheme was to found the Spanish Bank, with a capital of $4,000,000. Rochette was the head of financial concerns in 1908 amounting in nominal or real capital to more than $20,000,000. The legal counsel of his company was a well-known deputy, M. Rabier.

Suddenly Rochette was arrested. He was accused of having raised one company only to pay up the capital of another, and to have started a sort of perpetual motion scheme. The police had received numerous communications, and it was by the express order of M. Leprieux that the case was investigated by detectives. The police, convinced that there was something wrong, were accused of having framed a charge, forward a fictitious plaintiff in order to have Rochette arrested. His companies were declared bankrupt, and official receivers were appointed.

The case came before parliament, M. Leprieux himself having acted as prosecutor. Rochette, after a year, was sentenced to imprisonment by the correctional court, and then the public prosecutor appealed, with the result that the whole case was sent back to the court of appeal, and then to the court of cassation.

But, at the same time, political interest in the case was not waned, and deputies are using it to fling strange charges against each other, with the result that nobody knows where the truth will ultimately be found, if it ever comes to light. A curious feature about Rochette is that his most ardent defenders are his own customers, whom he is alleged to have swindled, and who insisted on having the order for the liquidation of the companies revoked.

In the Pro-Cathedral in Chatham, on Tuesday, Miss Lily Owen of Chatham and Frank A. Blaquiere, of Nelson, were married.

It is not likely, however, that the price will be allowed to sag off to the low levels touched in the last two months, and the next movement will probably be to a considerably higher level than the one started last week.

GOOD GIN!

How it can be Recognized.

Canadian Red Cross Gin is produced by the transformation of grain into sugar, which, after fermentation, is combined with Juniper Berries and when distilled becomes the famous

"RED CROSS" GIN

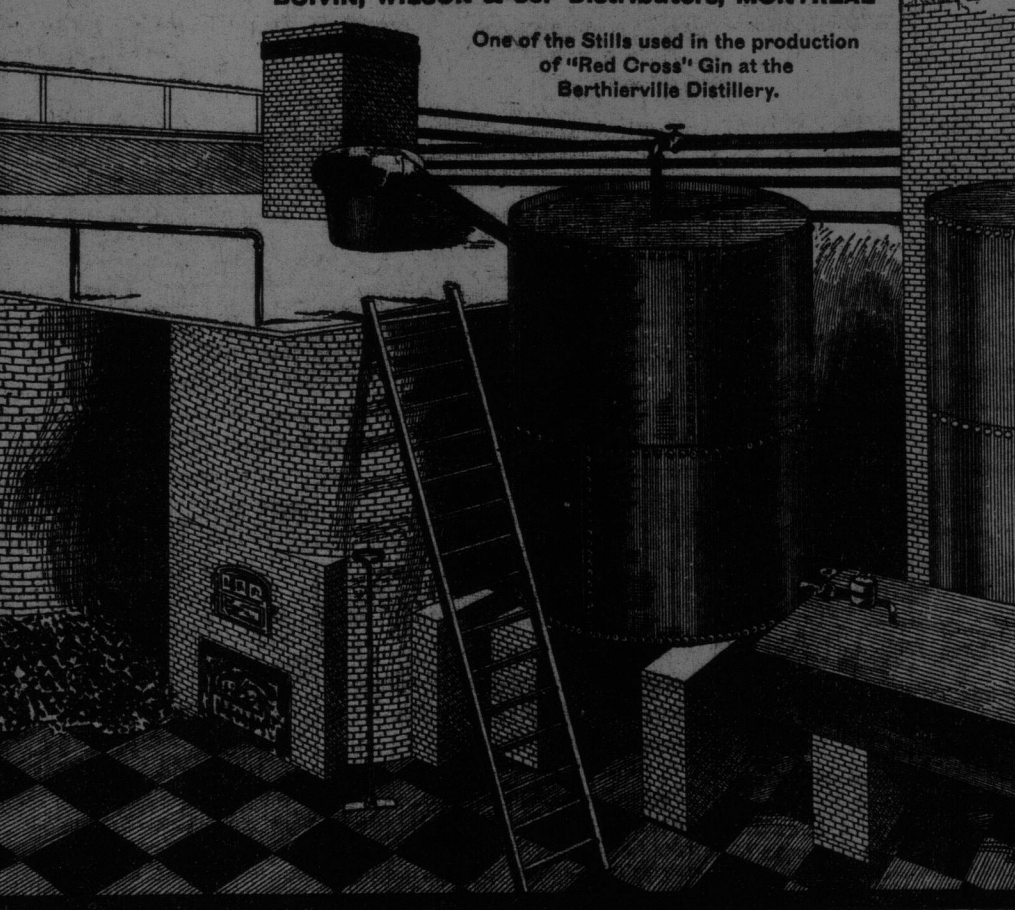

Red Cross Gin is submitted to the rigorous inspection of the excise officers, seven in number, who are present at all the various stages of its manufacture from the weighing of the grain, following the various operations of distillation, the rendering into alcohol, the aging in bonded warehouses, until "Red Cross" Gin is distributed in its officially sealed bottles.

There is no other food product in the world so carefully and constantly inspected. The public therefore possesses the absolute guarantee of the age, purity and maturity of "Red Cross" Gin, whereas imported Gins cannot offer the slightest guarantee, as they are submitted to no official inspection before exportation, and are not tested as to quality, purity and healthfulness on their importation here.

How can the Consumer hesitate between Canadian Gin and Imported Gin?

We shall leave the public judge.

SPANISH GIANT IN NEW YORK

Nearly Eight Feet High, Can Lift 1,000 Pounds and Drive Fist Through Board

Believed to be the tallest man Spain ever produced, Fernan Arrudi, seven feet high, and weighing 255 pounds, arrived in New York on the steamer San Juan this week.

Senor Arrudi is a musician, and while he denies the report that he has invaded the United States for exhibition purposes, he modestly admitted to a Herald reporter that he knows a little about boxing and that he may yet challenge "Jack" Johnson and prove to be "the white man's hope."

Senor Arrudi finds his height a handicap when the question of personal comfort is considered. When he was on board the steamer San Juan he was forced to sleep on deck because the berths in the ordinary cabins were more than two feet too small to accommodate him. When he goes through ordinary doorways he is compelled to make a sidle, but sometimes he forgets to stoop more than a foot or so and he gets a bump. Even these mishaps do not disturb his serenity. He is said by his friends to be one of the strongest and gentlest of men.

When it comes to test Senor Arrudi can probably exhibit the largest record. From head to toe his feet measure seven feet, his arms are six feet five inches in circumference when relaxed and twenty inches when he doubles his fists. His chest measurement is four feet five inches, with an additional six inches of expansion. His feet measure a little more than sixteen inches when clinched and he can drive it through a board fence without difficulty.

Capable of lifting 1,000 pounds from the floor without straining Senor Arrudi easily lifts a man of 170 pounds off the floor by placing the fore and middle finger of each hand under the man's arms. A boy he picks up with thumb and forefinger and holds him at arm's length. Two double beds are required when he sleeps with comfort, and he lies across both on an angle. Even then he must double himself up or suffer his feet to go uncovered, as no double blanket covers him when he is stretched at full length.

Senor Arrudi was of a normal size in his early youth, but at the age of fourteen years he began to grow. His growth was worked on by his father's farm until his great size began to attract attention, and then he went to South America, where he made his living by singing and by playing a guitar. When he was in Buenos Ayres a watchmaker gave him a watch with a five inch dial, which is about the size of an ordinary alarm clock, and he uses it at all times. His case is five feet high and weighs twenty pounds.

The giant eats three times what the normal man does. When he is real hungry he makes a meal of a leg of mutton, with five or six dozen eggs, not to speak of various vegetables of which he is fond. He drinks about a gallon of wine without feeling it in the slightest. One day in Argentina he spent a few hours on a ranch, and there was nothing to eat except eggs. He ate eleven dozen and regretted there were no more, for he was still hungry. Senor Arrudi is married and has a daughter nine years old.

NORTH SHORE EXERCISED OVER DOHERTY VERDICT

Public Meeting Tonight in Campbellton as Protest Against it—Crown Cause Criticized

The recent verdict of a Campbellton jury, acquitting Doctor Doherty, who had caused the death of D. J. Bruce, has been followed by a storm of protest. The Campbellton Graphic, which denounced the verdict in a former issue prints the following in its issue of last Friday:

"His Worship Mayor Murray in capacity of first citizen of the town has convened a public meeting to be held on Monday, the 29th inst., in the Opera House. This meeting will be in the nature of a public protest against the recent verdict in the Doherty case and it is probable that further action may be the outcome of this gathering. Already steps have been taken which show the trend of popular opinion on the subject and already one town on the North Shore has had an indignation meeting and will send a petition to the lieutenant governor. The steps which remain on the agenda are to be removed, and it appears that united action will be taken backed by the public bodies which should go a long way towards clearing away this terrible injustice."

Thos. P. Drumm, in a long letter to the Graphic, says:

"The case of our citizens feel that an investigation should be called for at once and an opportunity will be given them shortly to express their feelings and demand that the crown representative of the law should not be allowed to escape. It is felt that the crown representative did not have sufficient information to enable him to properly deal with the case. Arriving the day before the trial, how could he be expected to have a mastery of all the details or to have sufficient knowledge of the juryman to make any objections. Against him there was Mr. Powell, one of the ablest lawyers in this part of the province, and this gentleman had been over the ground carefully, he had been present at the preliminary hearing—why was the crown representative not on the case from the commencement? I know that a representative of the crown was present but why was the same lawyer not retained all through the proceedings?"

The Chatham World says:

"Two of the juryman who attended the public by a verdict of not guilty in the Doherty murder trial have publicly apologized by explaining that they simply meant not guilty of murder, and did not know that their verdict would set the prisoner free. Their minds were confused by the multiplicity of words from counsel and judge. It was the rankest verdict—directly contrary to the evidence that ever disgraced a New Brunswick court."

INVASION OF WESTBY SIBERIAN WOLVES IS TALE TOLD IN ENGLAND

Is Attributed to Canadian in Old Land Arranging to Bring Out Settlers

(Times Special Correspondence.)
London, April 16—Here is a cheerful story for prospective settlers in Canada, purporting to come from a Saskatchewan delegate attracting people to the dominion, and published under the caption "Canada Invaded by Wolves."

The invasion of Canada has at last come to pass; not, however, from the south, but from the north, and the attacking force is an army of wolves. This grim migration is a trapper's tale, and Saskatchewan is threatened with an invasion of a particularly menacing nature. Several years ago a terribly cold winter drove many thousands of the great grey wolves of the Siberian steppes across the frozen sea into the warmer clime of Northern Canada. Through the Canadian pine forests of the uninhabited north they have steadily come east, until there opened out before them the plain which terminated the north in the rich prize wheat belt of the Saskatchewan valley.

"According to Mr. Wood, a Saskatchewan

van delegate, who is now in London organizing a party of emigrants, hunger is driving these terrible animals steadily toward the settlers. Terrible they are, indeed, for while the lighter Canadian brown timber wolf attacks a man only on provocation and warns with a saving bark before he leaps, his Siberian kinsman steals on his victim without a sound and is an infinitely fiercer and grimmer antagonist. The Saskatchewan government think enough of the danger to have set a price of £20 and over on the heads of these unrelenting visitors, and wolf hunts are being organized in many places to secure the bounties.

"There is one point very much in the settlers' favor, however; the Siberian wolf does not, as a rule, travel in packs, but hunts singly or with his mate. In fact, in a general way, he is a strict individualist—a fact which has done much to ease the hearts of the Saskatchewan sheepshooters."
