DIGBY MAY HAVE ANOTHER HANGING.

Walden Harris of St. John Has Skull Fractured By Negro at Gordon, N. S., Yesterday

Digby, N. S., July 23.—While hundreds of people were walking around the court house and jail yards today, with the hope that they might get a glance at John Olive Tebo, to be hanged tomorrow for the murder of Edward McGregor, or a glance through the jail yard enclosure to see the scaffold, word reached the authorities that another terrible crime had been committed today noon at Jordan, a town within a couple of miles of the scene of the McGregor tragedy.

Chief of Police Bowles, accompanied by your correspondent, rushed to the place in an automobile and arrested a colored man named William Owens, who endeavored to escape. Chief Bowles being compelled to fire five shots before he captured the prisoner.

In a little house nearby lies Walden Harris, with a fractured skull, it being doubtful if he will live till morning.

Your correspondent obtained the following story of the crime from Mrs. Harris, wife of the dying man. She said that she and her husband, who resided in Union street, St. John, arrived here yesterday, Harris to remain over Sunday, and she to stay a week. This morning she and her husband went to call on Mr. Leopold, a near neighbor, to where they were staying. As they entered the house Owens stood behind the door and struck Harris in the head with a hammer.

It is said this is the result of an old quarrel and that Owens had been heard to make threats.

The prisoner, when first met by Chief Bowles, said his name was Harris, that he was a cousin to the injured man and that Bill Owens lived on a back road some distance from the place. When searched at the jail the prisoner had cartridges, knife, etc., in his pockets. He has old scars about the head.
