THIS MORNING

THIS MORNING.

A much larger audience than that which greeted the chorus and orchestra at yesterday's rehearaal was present this morning, upwards of four hundred persons attending. Much of the earlier portion of the time was devoted to orchestra work alone, and from both the selections themselves and their interpretation by the orchestra the indications are that in this line tonight's concert will be even more enjoyable than that of last evening. Among the selections chosen for this evening's concert is Wagner's Overture Verspoil, one of the finest works of this eminent composer. A number of solos by Madame Bouton and Mr. Archambault were rehearsed this morning, and also a duet by the two, which was especially worthy of note.

The work of the chorus was not up to the standard on account of the absence of quite a number of members.

THIS EVENING.

THIS EVENING. This evening will be entirely devoted to operatic selections.

Miss Howe and Gwilym Miles will each appear twice, and the orchestra will give four selections.

YESTERDAY AFTERNOON.

To those present at the first concert of Mr. Chapman's festival series, the scamty attendance seemed a far from favorable augury for the success of the scheme. But St. John has little experience of afternoon concerts, and less leisure for them. Her mea are engaged in their offices and the type of young lady which crowds the matinees in American cities has small representation here. But if the audience was small, it was appreciative, and it soon In those present at the first concert of Mr. Chapman's festival series, the scarnty attendance seemed a far from favorable augury for the success of the scheme. But St. John has little experience of afternoon concerts, and less leisure for them. Her man are engaged in their offices and the type of young lady which crowds the matinees in Araerican ctiles has small representation here. But if the audience was small, it was appreciative, and it soon realized that an excellent programme was presented. The music of Berlioz is certainly not of the popular order, yet the Carnaval Romain, with its intense local coloring, its irresistible movement and vigorous orchestration, made an admirable commencement. Sullivan's well-known chorus from Iolanthe, displayed the local singers under no very painful trial of skill, and it is just to say that they came excellently through it. Mr. Chapman's vigorous, and perhaps slightly demonstrative beat, was well suited to its purpose and suffered no slackening of requisite spirt and movement. The tennor solo by Mr. Johnson, which followed (Verdi's Celeste Alda), afforded much pleasure. Mr. Johnson has an agreeable if limited register and uses the faisetto with remarkable skill. He appeared to more advantage in this plece than later in his excerpts from Mendelssohrs' Psalm. Miss Fry gave a very brilliant rendering of Ophelia's great air in Thomas's opera. Like her colleague she was compelied to yield to an encore to the hearty applause which greeted her effort. The first part terminated with a rather uninteresting suite for the violascello, played with admirable tone and execution by Herrolle. In these conditions, Mrs. Green, D. French, Messer, Alex. D. Misses Balley, Balloch, Mrs. Barty, Mrs. Colled, Mrs. Cooper, Mrs. Circle, Mrs. Cooper, Mrs. Wilson, Hugher Compensation, Mrs. Green, P. D. Kirkpatrick, Dr. J. E. March, Messer, Alex. J. C. minated with a rather uninteresting suite for the violizacello, played with admirable tone and execution by Herr Kronold.

In thes econd part the most interesting feature was the selection from Tchaikowsky, a composer heard for the first time, we believe, in St. John; at all events as represented by an orchestral work. The Russian composer, it is well known, has so completely captivated Engitsh lovers of music, that it has been calculated that there is a daily performance of the Pathetic Symphony in London. No more characteristic specimens than those given yesterday could have been chosen; but a very unmistakeable desire for a repetition of the Andante could not prevail upon the inexorable conductor to relent. For some recondite reason, the excepts from the 8th Psalm, as arranged by Mendelssohn, were divided by the curious interpolation of Goundo's lively vocal waits from Mireille. It suggested to the older musicians memories of church music in the bygone days, when it was the custom of organists to revive the interest of worshippers, during the singing of lengthy portions of Tate and Brady, by executing a sprightly improvisation known as an "interlude," before the last verse. At any rate, both the Psalm and the waits were well executed, and the programme found an effective conclusion in Goldmark's March from the "Queen of Sheba." It need hardly be said that the orchestra fully came up to its reputation. It is a liberal education for us in St. John to hear such music, and we only hope that next year Mr. Chapman may give a programme a little less popular in character. He will have educated us, surely, up to general appreciation of a complete work, such as a Hayden symphony, if not one of Heethoven's immortal nine. It is quite right to keep several popular numbers in a prothe inclusion of a waits by Strauss if the general programme, to relieve the strain upon the attentior of the mind. But there in such a thing as to underestimate an audience's capacity, and it may be claimed for St. John audiences that they can appreciate good and classica music, even though their opportunities for hearing it are few and far between We trust that Mr. Chapman's enterprise will be rewarded, and that his efforts in New Brunswick will be renewed from year to year.

LAST EVENING.

At the evening concert the performers, encouraged by the attending crowd, threw themselves into the music with even more vigor than during the afternoon. The first selection, Rossind's William Tell, was the finest piece of orchestration by far, ever heard in this city. The piece, difficult as it is, was executed under Mr. Chapman's direction, with a dash and repressed energy that drew unrestrained appliance.

applause.

The famous Hallelujah Chorus was finely given by the chorus and was followed by Archambault's solo, the Church Scene from Faust. To a hearty encore he responded with a selection with which he won great favor here before—The Two Grenadiers.

encore he responded with a selection with which he won great favor here before—The Two Grenadiers.

The chorus dashingly executed another bit from the favorite Iolanthe, Johnson repeated with even greater success his solo of the afternoon and the chorus appearing again, scored their success of the day in their execution of the jubilant chorus from Carmen. Is this they received splendid support from the orchestra and were warmly encored.

Then came Mary Howe and sent the sweetness of her voice twining around the hearts of her hearers until they fairly arose in their places and cheered. Her piece was the famous and difficult Grand Aria from Verdi's Traviata, and she sang it as nothing has been sung in St. John before. In the middle of her selection she was interrupted by a storm of involuntary applause. In response to repeated recalls she gave an encore, simpler, but none the less beautiful.

Miss Howe, who is making her first appearance on this side the Atlantic, cannot be classed with any singer ever heard in this city before. She has a wonderful voice—rich, warm, fiexible, incomparably sympathetic; of splendid range and power; sweet and full of color in the lower tones and clear and true as a silver string in the upper notes. Her phrasing is perfect and her technique a revelation. To crown it all, she has a queenly beauty and a manner that wins her the hearts of her hearers even before she opens her lips for the notes of honey and gold. Her reception last night was an ovation.

For a duet in which Archambault and Johnson were to take part, a selection, Liszt's Polonaise, by the orchestra was substituted. The balance of the programme was a rendition of Mendelssohn's 95th Psaim, in which the chorus were assisted by Johnson, Miss Fry and Madame Bouton, a duet in which the last two took part was charming.

The chorus is made upon follows:

OPPOSITION CONVETIONS.

in Campbellton Last Evening.

One Held in Fairville and the Other in Campbellion Last evening.

The opposition convention in the Temperance Hall, Fairville, last evening was quite largely attended, and among those present were many former supporters of the government. Councillor W. J. Dean of Musquush was appointed chairman, and Robert H. Catherwood secretary. The meeting idd not select a candidate, but chose a nominating committee of five electors from each parish with Councillor Dean of Musquush as chairman, and these will select a candidate whose name will be announced at a future meeting. Addresses were delivered by Fred. M. Sproul, F. M. Anderson of St. Martins, Geo. V. McInerney and Alderman Baxter. M. E. Agar said a few words at the close, and the meeting ended with cheers for the king. The various speakers dealt with the record of the government in plain language. Mr. Sproul, among other things, discussed the Rothesay forgery. Mr. Anderson set forth the duty of liberals who oppose this government and referred espesially to the Muskoka deal, which was also discussed at length by Mr. McInerney, Mr. McInerney also sharply criticised Attorney General Pugsley for drawing his salary while some other lawyer conducts the criminal business. Alderman Baxter referred to the necessity of a change in the law with respect to voting at provincial elections, and described the government as an organization of men hanging to gether for riutual interest. The various speakers were heartily applauded by the assembled electors.

At Campbellton last evening an opposition convention was held, with Mayor Alexander chairman and John Montgomery secretary. The convention appointed a strong nominating committee to select candidates and report to a convention to be held next Monday evening. The speakers of the evening were M. McDade, Mr. Mott, M. P. P., O. M. Melanson, M. P. P., and J. D. Hazen, leader of the opposition. Mr. Mott set forth clearly his position, and the recsons why he should not longer support this government. Mr. Hazen's speech is described as o two to ten per cent. The greatest loss was sustained by Louisville and Nashville. Disappointment regarding the probable disposition of the read as much as anything else is supposed to have caused the present break.

Other features that combined to unsettle the market were disquieting reports concerning the president's condition, the prolongation of the strike and the indubitable fact that London and the continent are unloading 'Americans' in large blocks. Practically all the money loaned on call today came from trust companies and out of town corporations and private individuals. The banks of the clearing house association stood aloof and made virtually no loans for speculative purposes. Moreover, the so-called substantial interests offered no support to the market, which with few exceptions, including Atchison and St. Paul, closed at the lowest level.

BOSTON, Sept. 29.—Liquidation of stocks in the New York stock market was only sympathetically followed here until during the last hair hour, and only a few stocks were hard hit. Liquidation was not heavy, as Boston did not have many stocks to unload. Dominion Iron and Steel dropped 41-2 to 66, and this was the worst break on the local list.

THE OLD LADY AND THE INCUB-

ATOR.

An old lady visiting an exhibition went to see some incubators which were on showl and, complaining of the expense of keeping fowls, said that if they were cheaper she would buy an egg hatching machine. After she had saked various questions the gentleman in attendance proceeded to show her the drawer in which were deposited the eggs in different stages. On these the old lady looked in astonishment. "What!" she exclaimed indignantly, "Do you use eggs?" "Certainly," was the attendant's astonished answer. "Well," said she, "I consider it a perfect swindle to pick the pockets of honest, hardworking folks by selling them those frauds! Why anybody can hatch chickens with eggs! I can do it myself!"—London Globe.
