

A judge in East Dubeque, Ill. decided to award custody of two girls, aged 10 and 11, to their father. Three years ago, the father strangled the girls' mother in front of them.

Last year, the staff at the Stockholm city zoo held a national competition to find a name for a bear cub (Molly). In the fall, after the cub became one of the zoo's biggest attractions, the staff decided to shoot her to save space. They then raffled off the meat amongst themselves and ate her.

An experienced parachutist filmed his own 3 km death plunge after he fell from an airplane while carrying a video camera but no parachute, investigators said on Tuesday. Sheriff Capt. Ralph Brown said there was no indication that Ivan McGuire, 35, committed suicide, although "a man who has jumped 800 times ought to remember his parachute."

Two people collecting signatures for a petition against Quebec's language law were pelted with eggs Tuesday. Tom Hudson and Dave Parson said they have collected over 1500 signatures. Hudson also said that a passerby told him that a local French radio announcer had been advising listeners for about an hour to show "the square heads in the square truck with the square signs" how they felt about the crusade.

The pair have been using a decrepit truck covered with signs to attract attention.

A typing error may cost the Montreal Urban Community over $80 000 dollars. Gloria Augustus filed suit against the MUC and police constable Allan Gosset for the fatal shooting of her son last November.

Last week, the lawyer for the MUC and Gosset answered Augustus' suit with a five page written plea denying responsibility. Unfortunately, the MUC lawyer concluded that Augustus' suit "is well founded in fact and in law," when he meant to say "not" founded in fact or law.

The problem should be cleared up today.

University adopts AIDS policy to educate employees, and students.

The University of New Brunswick has adopted a policy on AIDS and has appointed an AIDS resource person to oversee the implementation of the policy.

At its meeting on March 25, the UNB Board of Governors approved the policy and the appointment of Gracie Getty, a nursing professor, as the person responsible for providing education about AIDS to students, faculty and staff on the Fredericton and Saint John campuses.

The UNB AIDS policy is as follows:

The University of New Brunswick recognizes that AIDS is one of the most serious health problems facing society today.

Accordingly, the university, to assist its employees and students, will:

- provide current information on AIDS to students and employees;
- develop and implement education programs for the university community;

- develop and implement safety procedures for use on both campuses; and

- provide a specific counselling service to meet the needs of those who have the AIDS virus and others who are concerned about AIDS.

To protect the rights of individuals who have contracted AIDS, cases related to the AIDS virus on campus will be handled in a confidential manner. Current medical information supports the position that individuals with AIDS or the AIDS virus need not be separated from their normal working and learning environments.

Because it is expected that more and more individuals will unknowingly become AIDS carriers, everyone must act on the premise that anyone may have the AIDS virus. The university endorses the position that each individual must assume responsibility for ensuring that he/she avoids contact with the AIDS virus.

The university plans to hold information sessions on the prevention of AIDS for all groups on both campuses. In the past few months, personnel services has held seminars for residence staff, physical plant cleaning staff and campus security. An information session was also held for the board of deans; a similar session will be held for administrators on the Saint John campus.

Seminars have also been held for students in the residence system and a pamphlet on AIDS has been distributed to them. Prof. Getty is now adapting that brochure for all students.

On another front, Doug Smith, safety co-ordinator on the Fredericton campus, is planning to equip 40 first aid kits with rubber gloves and resuscitators. Three other comprehensive first aid kits will contain these items plus rubber boots and gowns.

The Peter Portfolio

"Peter Sabat: Selections from the Portfolio" - a collection of paintings and drawings first shown at the Ontario College of Art two weeks ago - is presented in an exhibition, sponsored by Gallery 78, opening on Friday, April 8, 5:30 p.m., at le Centre Communautaire Ste. Anne.

The exhibit will be officially opened by Ian Lumsden, director of the Beaverbrook Art Gallery who, over the years, has observed and offered encouragement to the creative directions and development of the young artist.

His exhibit, opening at le Centre Communautaire Ste. Anne on April 8th, will focus on selections from this submission, overviewing the last two years of his work. From a few early examples of minimal dry brush watercolor sketches, "Selections from the Portfolio" will concentrate on his painterly and dynamic use of watercolors, a style that has dramatically directed his vision since his last solo exhibition two years ago.

Peter Sabat has been painting for many years, achieving critical attention and recognition at an early age. He was 13 when two of his works were selected for the 1984 N.B. Bicentennial Juried Exhibition at the Beaverbrook Art Gallery. Five years earlier, a large solo exhibit of his multimedia works was mounted by the N.B. Museum, and he was included in an international juried show of children's art at the Montreal Museum of Fine Arts. He was profiled on several CBC-TV programs, one of which received national broadcast on April 5, 1986.

"Peter Sabat: Selections from the Portfolio" exhibition will be shown in the theatre foyer gallery at le Centre Communautaire Ste. Anne during the month of April. It is open to the public daily (including weekends) from 8:30 a.m. to 11 p.m.

The "portfolio" exhibit marks a significant stage in Peter Sabat's commitment to art.
