

In conclusion it may be stated that the material closely resembles retort carbon, and as far as can be ascertained from small scale laboratory tests, incandescent pieces thrown out from the smoke stack of a locomotive would be but little more likely to cause fires than similar pieces of incandescent non-combustible material.

(Sgd.) EDGAR STANSFIELD

January 16th, 1913