THE HOUSE BEAUTIFUL.

Advice in Lecture Given to Household Economic Association.

"When you build this ideal home of yours," said Mr. Vaux Chadwick recently, in an address to the Canadian Household Economic Association in Toronto, "buy more land and cheaper, rather than be cramped for space and have your rooms darkened by the nearness of the next dwelling."

In planning a house, the speaker thought, the start should be made at the dining-room, which should be sunny in the morning, to have an uplifting effect on the household throughout the day. It was a mistake to have a drawing-room in such a light color scheme that it could not be in daily use and so full of bric-a-brac that the man of the house was like a bull in a china shop in it; rather the living-room where there was plenty of sun in the afternoon, usable furniture, carpets which need not fear the sun, good pictures, and a fireplace—a fireplace with a real fire, no gas logs, lump of clay, or asbestos sheet.

In a small house it was better not to give too much space to hall and stairway. In the kitchen there must be space, air, and light; there must be serving pantry, closet for pots, a larder, a convenient coal bin, not too much woodwork, windows placed where there might be a good draft, when necessary, and a good light for the worker, and everything must be arranged to make labor as light and steps as few as possible. If the size of the house would allow, it was a good thing to have a sitting-room for the maid.

The cellar must be light and airy, and the furnace and coal be in a room by themselves.

The bedrooms should have ample means of ventilation, and at least one bedroom in the house should have a fireplace. It was a good idea to have the linen closet off the sewing-room, and shelves for this closet were advised.

Mr. Chadwick advocated the casement window, with hinged transom, to act as ventilator, and entirely disapproved of double windows. "It is better," he said, "to use two transoms, one in a year and dispense with the other." The verandah should be at the side of the house, rather than the front, for the sake of privacy. It was a pity, the speaker thought, for anyone to buy a house, one of many, put up in job lots by the speculator, when for the same price he might build one that would express the owner's individuality and have some character of its own. The speculator was not in business for his health.

Then followed advice as to wall covering and furnishing, the gist of which was that elaboration should be avoided, simplicity should prevail. Colors should be carefully studied. Yellow was cheerful, gay, reds and greens should only be used in a well-lighted room; tan and golden brown were best suited for a hall, as they would harmonize with all colors. The ever-manual of the stick designs was usually of atrocious design; better a simple affair like the woodwork of the room.

Valances and drapes at the window were to be avoided; light, cheap muslin and nets were pleasing, and heavy curtains should fall in straight lines. In furniture, good design and workmanship should be sought for, whether old or new, and the hideous imitations of hideous designs might well be passed by, shining with varnish fresh from the departmental store.

An Interesting Skull.

Prof. Montgomery of the Toronto University has recently received a cast of the skull of the animal between man and the ape, remains of which were found by Dubois a few years ago in the island of Java. The skull shows a greater brain capacity and a higher intellectual conformation than the skull of either the Chimpanzee or the Gibbon, the highest of the existing apes. A thigh-bone and two teeth were also found by Dubois in the same rocks and within a short distance of the spot where the skull was discovered. The thigh-bone indicates that the animal walked in an erect position. The expert anatomists who examined the remains at Leyden, where Dr. Dubois had brought them by the authority of the Dutch Government, gave the opinion that they were those of a creature very little lower than man, and a step in advance of the Simian or ape-man. Several of them also expressed an opinion that the remains were those of Pithecanthropus, as proved by the collection of other fossils taken therefrom, they being similar to those occurring in the Pliocene of the Swath Hills of India. As to the capacity of the skull, this animal, which has been named Pithecanthropus erectus, was very close to the fossil man known as Spy number one found in Belgium. Prof. Haeuser of Paris, Sir William Flower, Haeuser and the late Prof. Marsh were among the eminent scientists who viewed the remains of this creature along with the other collections made by Dubois and exhibited to the congress of zoologists and paleontologists in Leyden.

A Dangerous Town.

Barney Oldfield, the automobilist, was talking about a trip that he had once made through Manitoba.

"The most dangerous town in Manitoba," he said, "is Brandon. Hargrave is near Brandon, and on the outskirts of Hargrave, in front of a little inn, I dismounted."

"I found in the inn the landlord and another man. They sat side by side on a bench. They were both very old."

"Excuse me, landlord," I said, "but can you tell me how far it is to Brandon?"

"The old man jumped up and hobbled behind the bar."

"Brandy," he said, in a thin quaver. "Yes, indeed, sir, and very fine brandy it is."

"He put a bottle and glass before me."

"I asked you," I said more loudly, "how far it is to Brandon?"

"The best brandy, of course, sir," he answered. "I don't keep nothing but the best."

"To despair I turned from this deaf veteran to the other old man on the bench."

"Look here," I said, "can you tell me how far it is to Brandon?"

"The other old man, with a grateful look, rose and limped hastily up to the bar."

"Thanks," he said, "I don't care if I do."—New Orleans States.

Pain Across the Kidneys For Three Years.

Suffered Great Agony. Could Not Stoop or Bend.

No disease is so quiet and stealthy in its approach as kidney disease. That is why it is so dangerous. It may become deep-seated before you realize the danger. It is therefore of great importance to recognize the early warning symptoms, because in its early stage kidney disease is easily curable. Pain or dull ache in the back is one of the first signs. So are bladder pains, bearing-down pains, smarting sensation when urinating, frequent or suppressed urination, and gravel or sediment in the urine, etc. You cannot be well if your kidneys are not performing their functions properly. In all ordinary cases of any derangement of the kidneys, a few doses of

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS will put the patient right; in old or chronic cases, the treatment should be persisted in.

Mr. Michael A. McNamee, Woodbine, Marion Bridge, N.S., tells of his experience: "For the last three years I suffered great agony with pain across my kidneys, and was so bad that I could not stoop or bend. I consulted and had several doctors treat me, but I got none the better. On the advice of a friend I procured a box of that valuable life-giving remedy, Doan's Kidney Pills, and to my surprise and benefit I immediately became better. In my opinion Doan's Kidney Pills are equal to a cure for any form of kidney disease."

Price 50 cents per box, or $1 for $1.25. All dealers, or direct by mail.

Smiles Keep Affection.

No matter what the novelist says against her, the smiling wife is an improvement on her stern browed sister, and the smiling mother is the one who gathers her babies most tenderly in her arms.

"She talked kind, but she looked cross," said a little boy of a new teacher as a reason for his refusal to go to school. And big people are affected much more than they realize by the expressions of the faces that they meet in the street.

"She was so pleasant," is the inscription on a moss mottled stone in a country churchyard. "She was so pleasant" is not a bad epitaph for any one when the book of life is closed.

Outmeal For Children.

Lecturing in London on "The Food of the People," Dr. Robert Hutchinson declared oatmeal to be "one of the most excellent articles of diet, particularly for children." He pointed out that it is rich in fat, iron and phosphates, and, properly prepared, to his mind it was food presented in a most finished and digestible form. A great deal had been written against it of late, the lecturer said, but the writers were wholly and entirely wrong. If it had been so bad, the Scotch race would have long since died out.

Cleaning Pillows.

The New England way of cleaning pillows at home is probably as good as any. Put the pillows out on the line during a hard rain. Fasten them securely by one end, using three or four clothespins to each pillow. Turn them end for end every three or four hours. Unless very dirty, one day's hard rain will clean the ticks. Let them dry on the line, turning as before. When dry and the feathers beaten up they are as good as new.

MISS BEULAH LOGAN.

An American Girl Who Labors For the South Sea Islanders.

Miss Beulah Logan of Micronesia has without doubt lived one of the most interesting and noble lives of any American girl in the twentieth century. Miss Logan was born in San Francisco. When two weeks old she was taken by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Logan, who went as missionaries to the Caroline Islands. The natives of these islands are Malay and are classed in the lowest scale of civilization. Miss Logan and a younger brother remained with her parents here until she was twelve years old, enduring untold hardships and sufferings.

On her return to this country Miss Logan was educated in New York City and later graduated from Oberlin college. In 1896 she returned to the islands, feeling more confident to undertake the great life work which she had planned for herself.

The Logans were among the first white people to land on the Caroline Islands. Mr. Logan reduced the native language to writing. Today his grave is a sacred spot on one of the islands, and his memory is still held dear in the hearts of the people for whom he lived and among whom he died. The mother was soon to follow.

The young girl, left alone with a task before her which might well stagger the heart of a strong man, took up a work which we in civilized America can hardly realize.

In 1904, while Miss Logan was touring the islands, a storm came up, the boat was capsized, and all were thrown out. Miss Logan, although an expert swimmer, was injured by a blow from a spar, but was rescued by some natives. For nine months she lay without medical attention. When she became stronger she was taken to Australia, where, with good medical attention, she recovered sufficiently to travel to America. Realizing that she cannot yet endure the heat of the islands, Miss Logan is making a tour of the states under the auspices of the women's board of foreign missions of Chicago, thinking with her lectures to arouse an interest in "her people" and still be working for them, although not in their midst.—Detroit Tribune.

The Nervous Baby.

Nervous mothers make nervous babies. Suppose a child is fretful and nervous either by pain or after excitement of any kind. What does the average mother do? Rock, toss, shake, rattle, show a light—anything to keep the baby awake and excited. It is voted "cruel indifference" to "let a baby cry." It is true that sometimes the jumping and joggling operations will enable a child to throw off the wind that causes pain in the stomach—the result of improper digestion or overloading the stomach, says an exchange.

Aside from this it is hard to think of any emergency which requires the familiar joggling, after you have made sure that there is no colic (colic is best relieved by teaspoonfuls of hot water) or that there is no tight garment or an irritated place where the clothing chafes the little body or no wicked pin it usually does no harm to let the baby cry. It is often a relief to overwrought feelings in the same way in which the mother, overwrought and wearied, feels better if she has her cry out. A healthy baby kept in a restful atmosphere will rarely cry.

The Scrim Laundry Bag.

No one can know the comfort that is to be found in the laundry bag until she tries one. As soon as a kerchief or a collar is soiled into the bag it goes, and when wash day comes there is no skurrying about for the soiled clothing.

The best and the cheapest bag is the one that can itself be laundered. Take two lengths of linen scrim, whatever length the bag is to be, and sew them together at the bottom and almost to the top. Wind with white tape two embroidery hoops. Over these hoops hem the upper ends of the bag. Line the scrim with a washable color or with plain white. If ribbon is used for winding the hoops match it to the color of the lining and make four tiny bows to ornament the top.

When the rings are separated the bag should open wide enough to take in a good sized garment. It is an easy matter to close the bag by hanging the rings over a hook.

The bags lined with color are particularly pretty for the baby's clothing.

Are You Too Plump?

How to become slender! Let the maid-inclined to embonpoint follow this advice, and her form should become as willowy as she could wish: Rise early and take a cold bath, rubbing vigorously afterward with a coarse towel or flesh brush. Take a cupful of water before breakfast. Take one small cup of tea at breakfast, some dry toast, boiled fish or a small omelet and a baked apple or a little fruit. At dinner, which should be at midday, take white fish or meat, dry toast or stale bread, vegetables or fruit (either fresh or stewed); for supper, toast, salad, fruit and six ounces of wine or water. Hot water with lemon juice in it is also good for supper. When you have followed all these rules and find yourself fairer in proportion than you may begin to contemplate smart clothes such as only the slender can wear.

Your Shoes.

"Lax in their gaiters, lax in their gait" is an old saying which applies well to the modern shoe and its wearer. No shoe will keep in shape long unless it is put on a tree when out of use. These "trees" are very cheap, but most women look upon them as an extravagance. Another rule of the carefully shod woman is to rest her shoes for a day or so and always wear a different pair indoors. Low shoes are better for house wear, as they permit ventilation. Select a strong calfskin for a walking boot, keep it well oiled, and your pedestrian trips will be made in perfect comfort. Keep an old pair of shoes to wear under rubbers, as the perspiration which India rubber excites ruins good leather.—Chicago News.

He Will Cure You First Then You Pay Him

The physician, who has not sufficient confidence in his own ability to cure his patient, and receives his pay in advance, is not the man to cure the man who is in search of honest treatment.

Dr. Goldberger has 14 diplomas and certificates from the various colleges and state boards of medical examiners, which should be sufficient guarantee as to his standing and ability. It makes no difference who has failed to cure you, it will be to your advantage to get the doctor's opinion of your case free of charge. He wants to hear from patients who have been unable to get cured, as he guarantees a positive cure for all chronic, nervous, blood and skin diseases, which he accepts for treatment. He not only cures the condition itself, but likewise all the complications, such as rheumatism, bladder or kidney troubles, blood poison, physical and nervous debility, lack of vitality, stomach trouble, etc. All medicines for patients are prepared in his own laboratory to meet the requirements of each individual case. He will send a booklet on the subject, which contains the 14 diplomas and certificates, entirely free. Address him simply, Dr. S. Goldberger, 306 Woodward Ave., Suite 511, Detroit, Michigan.

value he has given the patient, but he expects to prove his worth and show positive and satisfactory results before he asks for the fee. So, should he fail to make the cure, the patient loses nothing, while the doctor, when he cures the patient, has given him what is worth much more than money—he has given him his health back. Dr. Goldberger is the first specialist in the United States or Canada, who has had sufficient confidence in his ability to cure the afflicted that not a dollar need be paid until cured.

There is no guesswork, no experiment about his method. He is a known expert in his chosen specialty, and offers you the best, and only the best treatment. When your life or your health is at stake, inferior treatment (which leaves after-effects worse than the disease itself) is dangerous.
