R. E. CORNELL, Clerk. An Acknowledgment. We are pleased to learn through the medium of the following letter that the plebiscite on the delivery of the Rev. W. Warren Giles, with which Athenians have been delighted and instructed, have received a deserved recognition. The announcement that Mr. Giles would preach has always proved a source of interest and a greater audience than in any church in the village could comfortably accommodate. The cause of his popularity is not far to seek. The elegance of his address, the clearness of his language, the simplicity of his style, and the earnestness of his words, are all appreciated by all, while his forceful, manly presentation of the truth serves to dispel in-judicious scepticism, and create in the minds of the most careless and indifferent a respect for the Christian religion. The following letters are self explanatory:—

ATHENS, JAN., 5TH, 1897. REV. W. WARREN GILES. DEAR BROTHER—Please accept the enclosed as a slight token of appreciation of your kind services in preaching several times in the Athens Methodist church from some of the members of the congregation and the pastor. Your sermons have already done very good and the result will be abiding.

Yours Sincerely, J. SCANLON. CHARLESTON, JAN. 7TH, 1897. DEAR BROTHER—Accept my best thanks, not a simply for the enclosed, but for the whole of your sermon, which was entirely unexpected, probably undeserved, but for the spirit of gratitude and appreciation witnessed by the congregation. Permit me through you to express my thanks to the members of the congregation and the pastor, for the kind and anxious care of you in the mission work in the Diocese of Ontario. An offering will be taken up at each service for the mission fund. The general public heartily witness.

Door-Examining At Athens. On the south side of the Delta road, there is a woods of about four hundred acres, and in this sheltered and secluded place two deer found a refuge last year. During the past summer, evidence of their presence was noticed by observant farmers living near the woods, and with the first snowfall the evidence was clearly confirmed by the tracks of the deer. Those who knew of the presence of the deer kept it to themselves, and would have been pleased had these backward visitors been allowed to establish a permanent home on the confines of their farms; but such apparently was not to be. On Monday of last week a party of local hunters were running foxes in the woods when their dogs struck the trail of the deer. The strongest scent followed the deer. After a short run, the deer left the woods and started across country through the open fields. On reaching the railway track it apparently miscalculated the strength of the barbed-wire fence and attempted to break through. The attempt proved a failure and doubling back on its track it re-entered the woods and, judging by subsequent sounds, succeeded in throwing the dogs off the scent. Early on Tuesday morning the hunters returned and in a short time the dogs again led off, it is believed, in pursuit of the deer. After a short run the report of a gun was heard and the deer reached the vicinity in which the hunters were fired their coaxed giving tongue, plainly showing that the hunters had brought down the game.

Now, of course, when a man is hunting foxes and gets a chance to shoot a deer, he is strongly tempted to take advantage of the opportunity; but it must be remembered that the law forbids the killing of deer in close season applies as well to the county of Leeds as to the rest of the province. We are assured, that in respect to this particular deer the law will be rigidly enforced.
