Farm For Sale

Farm of the late J. B. Bellamy consisting of 90 acres adjoining the village of North Augusta. Terms to suit purchaser. Apply to G. F. DONNELLY, Athens.

When the bread or cake or pastry comes from the oven light, crisp and appetizing, you are wont to say you have had good luck with your baking.

The "good luck" idea is a relic of the time when housekeepers pitted their competency against poor flour. To-day good baking isn't a matter of good luck in any home where

Royal Household Flour is intelligently used.

In the hands of competent housewives it never fails because it is the whitest, lightest, purest and best baking flour to be had.

If the goodness of your baking is due to chance, your grocer is giving you the wrong kind of flour. Ask for Ogilvie's Royal Household.

Ogilvie Flour Mills Co., Ltd.
Montreal.

"Ogilvie's Book for a Cook," contains 130 pages of excellent recipes, some never published before. Your grocer can tell you how to get it FREE.

REGRET REMOVAL OF MODELS

At the session of the counties council last week the Educational Committee recommended that grants of $250 each be given to the Gananogue, Athens and Kempsville high schools, and $50 each to the public schools of Westport, Merickville and Lyn in aid of the continuation classes, provided they are complying with the law in that respect. In concluding the committee expressed their regrets over the action of the government in discontinuing the county model schools, saying that it would deprive many young county residents of a professional education and divert it to the larger centres.

And that's where the committee hit the nail square on the head. The government's centralizing normal school policy will prevent many ambitious students, children of comparatively poor parents, from entering the teaching profession. Outside the educational faddists, many of them trained in model schools, there was no kick against the present order of things, and when our rural sections have to import high-salaried teachers there will be a kick that even a strong government may feel where it will do it the most good.

Masons at Church

On Sunday morning last about fifty members of Rising Sun Lodge A. F. and A. M. and visiting brethren attended service in the Methodist church.

After a brief introduction, in which he expressed his belief in the truly christian fundamentals of masonry, the pastor, Rev. S. J. Hughes, preached an excellent sermon from the words found in I Cor. 8: 10—"But let every man take heed how he buildeth thereupon." The foundation, he said, was alright, "For other foundation can no man lay," and he devoted his discourse to emphasizing the importance of using the right kind of material in the superstructure. It was an impressive and in every respect a most appropriate sermon. The choir gave an excellent song service, a pleasing feature of which was a solo by Mrs. Lamb.

For Better Sidewalks

Dear Mr. Editor,—Allow me, will you, a bit of your valuable space, in which to call attention to a public grievance, and that is the condition of our Athens sidewalks. I do not believe that there is a town in Ontario of the same size whose streets are as unsafe for the pedestrian. By day his way is beset with loose and broken planks, and by night darkness is added to these dangers. Recently, four members of my congregation, on their way to or from church, were tripped by loose planks and two of them so injured as to be laid up the next day.

If we cannot have what our neighboring villages are having, granolithic walks, then let us keep what we have got in repair and besides, we hope, have a few rods of granolithic added each year until the board walks be in time replaced by such a pavement.

In my native Western Ontario town, a like condition of affairs a few years ago involved the corporation in a suit for damages which cost some thousands of dollars, but was one of the best things that happened the town for it wakened it up to the necessity of the case.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, I am, yours,
R. B. Patterson.

The Milking Machine

As a Leeds County dairyman rises at 4 a.m. and surveys his twenty to forty cows waiting to be milked, his mind must frequently speculate on the possibilities of relief that the milking machine may be found to contain. In giving an account of the visit of Simcoe farmers to the O.A.C., Guelph, the report says:—

"At 4 o'clock the milking machine manufactured in Little Falls, New York, and which has been used in the college for five months, was put into operation. It works on the principle of suction, which with a sucking action on the teats caused the milk to flow through tubes to the pails. The outfit costs $400 for four pails—and a power is necessary to run the suction pump. They have an electric motor on the farm, and they milked only two cows at once in order to let all the crowd see the work. The work was done quickly and apparently to the gratification of the cow. The machine strips clean, prevents sore teats, and has proven to be more thorough than hand milking. Prof. Dean thinks it would pay where a herd consists of 25 or more cows and the farmers have power on the premises. The spectators were highly pleased with it."

Our dairymen must be patient. The milking machine of the near future is not going to cost $400, nor is it going to require any extraordinary power to run it. Leading inventors are now wrestling with this problem that will undoubtedly be solved in a way that will give farmers a simple, practical machine at a moderate cost. Have patience; it will come. And in the meantime because cheese is high, do not keep so many cows that your life and that of your wife and children is one round of constant drudgery. There is only one life to live—to-morrow's sun for us may never rise—so let us live in the present, which is ours, in such manner as will best enable us to strike at the close of each day an even balance of joys and sorrows, leaving to future hours the future cares that to them belong.

Additional Locals

This morning Rev. L. M. and Mrs. Weeks and Miss Emma Hayes left for Ottawa.

Rev. P. A. McEwan, B.A. of Toronto, will occupy the Baptist pulpit next Sabbath evening. This is the first visit of Mr. McEwan to Athens, and those who hear him will be amply repaid.

The retail merchants of Brookville last year established the Wednesday half-holiday during the summer months and found it such a benefit to themselves and their clerks that they have established it this year.

—On Friday next, June 29th, the Glen Elbe Sunday-school will hold its annual picnic at the Delta park, going by regular morning train. Return tickets from Forthton, Glen Elbe and Athens, 30c for adults and 10c for children. The general public invited.

An interesting family of red squirrels have taken up residence on Reid street and have been very kindly treated by residents in that unbragous residential section. The robins view their presence with great disfavor and a fierce fight occurs every time a squirrel climbs a tree in which a robin's nest is located. Having driven the squirrel away from the tree they pursue it on the ground, swooping down and pecking at it viciously. There is probably some good reason for this display of animosity, but we are loath to believe the charges of robbery, to satisfy a carnivorous appetite, brought against the squirrel.

Rev. W. Henderson of Frankville and Toledo circuit had his last pastoral visit in Valleyfield. The Press intimates that the Presbyterian pastor and congregation there closed the church and attended his last service. A testimonial given to Mr. and Mrs. Henderson stated, "All the departments of the church are much more prosperous than they were four years ago."

Mr. Robt. Wright, in the interests of Brookville's greatest store, started last week on a tour of the British and continental markets. Direct purchase of goods from the makers, under the syndicate order system, followed by direct importation, is what enables the firm of Robert Wright & Co. to place constantly on sale a line of superior goods at very attractive prices.

Successful Pupils

All the pupils of Miss Marie Weeks who tried the Toronto College of Music examinations this year were successful. Primary Piano, First class Honors—Ira Dunham, Honors—Bessie Weeks (Mabel Broese and Winnie Halladay, equal). First year—Zelda E. Frye, pass.

The Toronto College of music is in affiliation with the University of Toronto and the standard is high.

In one of the best friends that any family has, but there are often sudden and acute attacks of some painful disease that require immediate treatment, such as rheumatism, neuralgia, lame back, etc. Tuck's Rheumatic Bone Oil makes the calling of the doctor unnecessary. It will give relief before he could answer the call and if faithfully used will cure the most stubborn attacks of rheumatism, neuralgia, lumbago, pain in the chest or back, soreness, sprains or strains. It is a powerful, penetrating oil that goes straight to the seat of the trouble and roots out the cause. It relaxes the stiffened joints, soothes the affected part and allays the inflammation which produces the torturing pain. It is therefore a valuable remedy not only for rheumatism and kindred diseases, but is equally good for croup, bronchitis and quinsy. One father writes that it cured his child of a violent attack of croup in five minutes. A mother writes that her boy was subject to quinsy and two or three times each year was confined to his bed and could not speak. When threatened with another attack last fall she rubbed his throat and chest with Bone Oil and by three applications ward off the attack. The wonderful curative powers of this remarkable remedy are being talked about by everyone. A bottle should be in every home. For sale by all medicine dealers at 50c. A bottle or will be sent prepaid on receipt of 50c. by the Tuck Bone Oil Co., Limited, Smith's Falls. Money refunded if not satisfied.

The King is Taller Than King.
There is hardly a King in Christendom to-day whose wife does not overtop him by a head.

King Edward is quite six inches shorter than Queen Alexandra.

The Queen is overtopped a full head by the German Empress.

Kaiser Wilhelm is of the medium height, but the German Empress is tall, and that is why the proud Kaiser will never consent to be photographed beside his wife, unless she sits while he stands.

The King of Italy, short and squat, hardly comes up to the shoulders of the tall, athletic Queen Helena.

The King of Portugal, though fatter, is less tall than his Queen.

Even the Prince of Wales is shorter a good four inches than the Princesses. The young King of Spain is several inches shorter than his new bride.

The Queen of Denmark towers above her royal spouse.

In Bonny Scotland.
Pressing business engagements made it highly important that a tourist in Scotland should catch the 6 o'clock train for the south on Monday morning.

Bots was interviewed on Sunday night, a hansom administered, perhaps incautiously, and a solemn promise received of an early call. Next morning the tourist awoke of his own accord at half-past seven and aroused the boots, who listened to the torrent of anger that was poured upon him in mild surprise. "Got bless me, sir, you was not so bad at all! The man in the next room to you was to catch the 5 o'clock boat, and he's now wakened yet."

Australia's Empty Spaces.
Richard Arthur, M. P., president of the Immigration League of Australia, has been pointing out some startling facts in reference to the lack of population in the Commonwealth. In the vast northern territory there are only 820 white or one inhabitant to every 700 square miles. The immense empty spaces, he says, cry out for population. The world has grown so small that the only solid title to any part of its surface is effective occupation. Methods of transit have brought the vast, unoccupied northern territory of Australia within easy reach of the teeming Asiatic people.

THE PRINCE IN INDIA.

In a Ceremonial Series the Tour Has Been Attended With Complete Success—Display of Loyalty.

The closing scenes of the Prince and Princess of Wales' visit to India have been fully in keeping with the spirit which has made their progress remarkable even among royal journeys. In the ceremonial sense the tour has been attended with complete success. With the exception of the tiger-hunt in Nepal the long and exacting program has been carried out without a single hitch. The presence of the Prince and Princess has evoked a display of enthusiasm and affectionate loyalty from all classes of the King-Emperor's subjects. That outburst of feeling has been due in no small degree to the tact and sympathy characteristic indeed of all members of the royal family, and not least of our future King and Queen. Practically every important centre of the Indian Empire has been visited. The Prince's drive up the Khyber Pass without any guard except an escort of Afridis will remain an especially memorable incident, and the confidence which he thereby reposed in the chivalry of the hill-tribes is among the most valuable political results of the tour. But if in its ceremonial aspect the royal progress has been thus singularly felicitous, other consequences to which it is bound to give rise are almost more significant. People in England are apt to overlook the fact that in the last resort the dominant factor in our Indian administration is the personal relation between the government and the governed. In this country the vicissitudes of political life give color to the impression that the fortunes of our great dependency are determined, at least to a large extent, by the Minister who by the suffrages of his fellow countrymen finds himself temporarily in charge of the Indian Office. In a great measure this is of course true, but it is nevertheless a consideration which is seldom or never present to the minds of the majority of our fellow-subjects in India. In their eyes the raison d'être of the Government, to which they stand in a relation of almost unquestioning obedience, is the rule of the Emperor of India. Personal sovereignty is, in short, the source of the only power which they recognize or which indeed they are able to understand. In this sense the person of the King-Emperor acts as a connecting link between India and this country, without which our dominion would at once cease to be intelligible. The loyalty and affection with which this personal rule is associated in the eyes of the great masses of Hindoos is due in the first instance to the veneration with which they regard the late Queen, the first Empress of India. Although Queen Victoria was never able to visit her dominions in Asia, the sympathy which she never failed to display in the fortunes of her subjects in that continent, her efforts to learn their language, and her constant reliance on her Indian attendants secured for her a regard indistinguishable from the closest personal ties. To the millions who dwell in India the death of the Queen was a loss which they could only compare to the loss of a mother. The affection with which Queen Victoria was regarded by her Indian subjects has been extended without diminution to King Edward. The memory of his visit, as Prince of Wales, is still green in the memories of a people singularly alive to the qualities of sympathy and justice. It is well, therefore, that the traditions of English sovereignty in India should have been worthily continued at the hands of the Prince of Wales. The experience he has gained can hardly fail to be of the utmost value when he in turn is called upon to wield the sceptre over the millions who will hail him as their Emperor. The outcome of his journey was well expressed in the concluding words of his speech at Karachi in which he referred to the figures of Peace and Justice at the base of Queen Victoria's statue. "You do well," said the Prince, "to connect them with the memory of Queen Victoria, for she greatly desired that her Indian subjects should ever enjoy these blessings."
