ROBIN HOOD FLOUR IS DIFFERENT

This is the Wonderful New Flour that has made such a sensation throughout Western Canada.
Made of highest grade Saskatchewan wheat, in the newest, best-equipped, largest mill on the prairies.
Made with the determination to give users better flour-value, greater certainty of baking-success, fuller satisfaction with the final result, whether with biscuits, cake or bread.
Housewives throughout all the West admit that Robin Hood Flour gives all this.
Therefore, Madam, it is the flour for you:
This flour cannot be described in an advertisement. We use this paper merely to give the introduction—to say:
"Let us make you acquainted with Robin Hood Flour."
It is the guaranteed flour. If you are not satisfied with it after two fair trials, ask your grocer for your money back. He will give it to you.
Add more water than usual when using Robin Hood Flour. Made of such hard, dry wheat, it absorbs more moisture—producing a larger, whiter loaf.
The difference between Robin Hood Flour and other flours you have to find out for yourself. That there is a difference every woman who now uses Robin Hood admits.

Man of Mystery.

Eccentric Squire's Double Life---Pioneer and Inventor--- He Revelled in Dust and Dined at Two O'clock in the Morning.

Mr. George Edward Dering, F.R.S., who died recently at his magnificent mansion, "Lockley," in the Herts village of Welwyn, was a wealthy and amazing old gentleman.
At the time of his death he was in his eightieth year, a venerable figure with a long white beard, and to all the contrary of very eccentric. Since May 1907 he had lived regularly at Lockley, but before that he came there only for a few days in each year.
Nobody suspected the real explanation of his mysterious absence. To the astonishment of all the visitors who had now been discovered that Mr. Dering was married, and formerly lived with his wife in another large house at Brighton. There he passed always under the name of Dr. Dale. His wife died in 1894.
It is a historic name, for Mr. Dering was able to trace his descent in unbroken line to Saxon times. The family had long been in possession of Lockley. There Mr. Dering was born. His father died in 1859, and there also his mother passed away a few years later.

to develop eccentric ways. For one thing, he took a great fancy to tight-rope walking, and one of his closest friends was the famous Blondin. Through the estate—which is over a thousand acres in extent and thickly wooded—flows a narrow stream, called the Mimram. It passes within a few yards of the mansion. The tight rope used by Mr. Dering and Blondin was fixed over this stream, and was about 100 yards in length.
"I often saw Blondin wheeling Mr. Dering in a barrow on this tight rope, and also carrying him on his back," said my informant. "Mr. Dering, dressed, of course in tight—was also very proficient on the rope."
To-day I saw the long balancing poles—now resting under the eaves of an outhouse at the back of the mansion—which the couple actually used.
Pioneer and Inventor.
But, as the distinction of F. R. S. fully testifies, tight-rope walking was only a small part of Mr. Dering's life. He was, in fact, an inventor of great attainments. Probably his genius for discovery explained his eccentricity.
Mr. Dering was one of the pioneers of telegraphy. It is recorded that in be in bed. But even though he had his dinner in the early morning, he always insisted on having his breakfast punctually at seven o'clock.

With such a short rest one can quite understand that he did not like to have it broken. Consequently he would never allow any animals in his park for fear they might disturb him. His most elaborate plan, however, to avoid noise was to divert the main road which ran close to his home by constructing a new one a little further away at a cost of £20,000.
How well he kept the secret of his marriage may be gathered from the fact that even a housemaid who had been in the service of the family for sixty years was unaware of it. Mr. Dering passed away rather suddenly without making any statement. It was only when his private documents came to be examined that the story of his double life was revealed.—London Chronicle.

George's Appearance.

A Barnes man, but lately married went out to post a letter, and, as the lamps had not been lit in the suburban road in which he dwelt, he could only dimly see his way. A short distance up the road he met, as he thought, his wife, who had been out to tea; and as he went past he just whispered:—"All right, my dear; I shall be with you in a minute."
Immediately after he had said these words he saw the lady turn a startled look upon him, and then hurry away; and the horrible idea occurred to him, that it was not his wife after all, and that in the darkness he had made a mistake. He decided to say nothing about the matter, and quickly disappeared.
When he returned home he found his wife waiting for him, and she at once greeted him with the words:—"Oh, George, I have had such a frightful experience! I was just coming down the road when a man tried to stop me, and said, 'All right, dear; I shall be with you in a minute.' I ran home, found you were out, and I've been so much alarmed."
George was just about to explain, when an idea came to him.
"What sort of a man was it?" he asked.
"Oh!" replied the young wife. "I saw him quite plainly, and a more villainous face I never beheld in my life. He was a perfect monster, with crime stamped upon every feature."
George decided it was best to say nothing, after all.

How I Made My Hair Grow

Woman With Marvelously Beautiful Hair Gives Simple Home Prescription Which She Used With Remarkable Results.
I was greatly troubled with dandruff and falling hair. I tried many advertised hair preparations and various prescriptions, but they all signally failed; many of them made my hair greasy so it was impossible to comb it or do it up properly. I think that many of the things I tried were positively injurious and from my own experience I cannot too strongly caution you against using preparations containing wood alcohol and other poisonous substances. I believe they injure the roots of the hair. After my long list of failures, I finally found a simple prescription which I can unhesitatingly state is beyond doubt the most wonderful thing for the hair I have ever seen. Many of my friends have also used it, and obtained wonderful effects therefrom. It not only is a powerful stimulant to the growth of the hair and for restoring gray hair to its natural color, but it is equally good for removing dandruff, giving the hair life and brilliancy, etc., and for the purpose of keeping the scalp in first class condition. It also makes the hair easier to comb and arrange in nice form. I have a friend who used it two months and during that time it has not only stopped the falling of his hair and wonderfully increased its growth, but it practically restored all of his hair to its natural color. You can obtain the ingredients for making this wonderful preparation from almost any druggist. The prescription is as follows:
Bay Rum, 6 oz.; Menthol Crystals, 1/2 drachm; Lavona de Compose, 2 oz. If you like it perfumed add a few drops of To-Kalon Perfume, which mixes perfectly with the other ingredients. This, however, is not necessary.
Apply eight and morning; rub thoroughly into the scalp.
Go to your druggist and ask for an eight ounce bottle containing six ounces of Bay Rum; also one-half drachm of Menthol Crystals, and a two-ounce bottle of Lavona de Compose. Mix the ingredients yourself at your own home. Add the Menthol Crystals to the Bay Rum and then pour in the Lavona de Compose and add the To-Kalon Perfume. Let it stand one-half hour and it is ready for use.

Lecture by Dr. Whalen

The Passion Play at Ober-Ammergau was the subject of a lecture delivered at Bay Roberts on Wednesday night by the Rev. Dr. Whalen, Parish Priest of the District.
The lecturer, who was greeted with a capacity house, spoke from an intimate and comprehensive knowledge of the subject gained at the very scene of the Passion Play, the village of Ober-Ammergau itself, which he had visited in September with thousands of other people from all parts of the world. The lecture was divided into four parts, the intervening spaces being appropriately filled with sacred solos, choruses and duets by the pupils of the Superior School, trained for the purpose by the lady Principal, Miss Kitty Flynn. The musical programme was ambitious to a degree, containing such choruses as the "Marvellous Works" and the "Hallelujah Chorus," the rendition of which by the children (assisted in the bass and tenor by some ladies and gentlemen of Bay Roberts), was a most delightful surprise. The accompanist was Miss Madeline Cody, of the Hr. Grace Cathedral choir.
The lecturer by way of introduction to the main part of his subject gave an interesting account of his trip from London to Munich, and thence by a train journey of four hours to Ober-Ammergau. The village nestles at the foot of a mountain and contains about 400 families, whose pretty cottages are clustered around the theatre—that central point of interest so inseparably associated with the name and fame of Ober-Ammergau. The villagers are virtuous, simple folk, engaged for the most part in farming and wood-carving. The only ambition of their lives is to continue in their generation, every 10 years, the vivid and faithful portrayal of the tragic drama of the Saviour's Passion and Death.

The Passion Play was first acted in 1634 in fulfillment of a vow made by the villagers, and continued every 10 years down to 1830, when it was reconstructed and improved by the then Parish Priest, Alois Dalsenberger, so as to connect by tableau and choral aid the types, figures and prophecies of the Old Testament, incident by incident, with the Passion of our Lord. During the season of the Passion Play every house in Ober-Ammergau is converted into a miniature hotel for the accommodation of the stream of humanity coming in from all parts of the world. Last year the number were 300,000, two-thirds of which were Americans.

In dealing with the actual scenes of the Passion Play, as stage after stage they passed before his eyes in all their tragical reality, the lecturer explored the impossibility of words to justice to the subject.
"Language fails to convey more than a mere shadowy outline, either of the grim reality of the drama or of the intense emotion with which it gripped the hearts of the 4,000 spectators who witnessed it."

The lecturer then gave a vivid description of the Play, and carried his audience along with him, silent and deeply attentive through every phase of the wonderful drama. For the time being they were indeed translated, in so far as it is possible to do it by clever word painting, to Ober-Ammergau itself, and were kept there during the eight hours that elapsed from the rise of the curtain for the hosannas of Palm Sunday to the closing tableau of our Lord's glorious ascension into Heaven, and the thrilling and triumphant strains of the hallelujah chorus.

The four particular points emphasized by the lecturer as making, in his estimation, the deepest and most intense impression of the audience at Ober-Ammergau were: The parting of Christ from his Mother; their next meeting on the road to Calvary; the despair, soliloquy and tragic death of Judas; the crucifixion.
In these, as in fact all the scenes, the acting of the simple peasant performers was so perfect as to make the audience forget the dramatic illusion and to consider themselves really and truly in the presence of the harrowing scenes of the grim and dreadful tragedy of 2,000 years ago.
To say that the lecture was a complete success is to give a tame criticism of a rare literary treat. Those who wish to enjoy it once more will do well to attend its repetition at North River on Monday night.
