MISS YEOMANS' HEART

TO HEART TALK WITH

WOMEN OF CALGARY

Miss Yeomans never lectures—she just talks in a confidential heart to heart way, and thus she, the provincial probation officer from Edmonton, told the Calgary Business Women's club a Nowhere, she said, had she met so in the Public Library, in the first place she assured them that Alberta was the finest province in Canada for all matters pertaining to child welfare.

No where, she said, had she met so many broad-minded, intelligent and sympathetic women as in this province, to which also was due the honor of appointing the first provincial probation officer for boys and girls up to 18, but whose especial duty lies with girls.

Several large cities already have probation officers, whose care, however, these girls coming from the juvenile court are considered, the girls being found occupations with sympathetic women who are friends and guardians as well as employers. These officers strive to obtain the confidence of the girls and to keep it.

The provincial officer's duty, however, lies in a wider field—writing, lecturing, and organizing to any club in any city where she can be of use, the government she said.

Speaking of her own sheltered life Miss Yeomans said that the greatest satisfaction she has ever found was this present work of trying to meet the needs of people in trouble. It was very interesting, she said, to tour the country to find out girls' conditions and making provisions for them, in the hope of building up good citizens.

Though the parks and streets may be in good condition.

Poor One

To make good citizens, preventative and constructive work, and this the Children's Aid did; an able Business Girls' club must also help. Ninety per cent of the girls brought up to the juvenile court were for sex crimes, which usually are of the nature of desert, and other in their train. These girls should be put right, said Miss Yeomans, but women were often so cruel to each other, though in her opinion the woman's movement is a movement of kindness and helpfulness of each woman for the other. If the movement spread sympathy and taught mothers how to train their children it did much.

Case of Immigrants
In the case of immigrants coming from all countries, armed with a knowledge of only good wages and the high rate of living and difficulty of board, there was room for much work, said Miss Yeomans.

No girl could keep herself honestly on less than $10 per week, that being little enough, but as many girls had to do it, there was little wonder that they jump at the chance of entertainment when offered, forgetting that sooner or later every man demands his price.

Sometimes for the actual necessities of life a girl has to sell her body. So it is like hunger for weakening a man or a woman either. Loneliness also has its place and the stranger in an alien city is much to be pitied. People with money and influence, and a good deal to a new city feel this and to a poor girl hunting for employment and for lodgings the loneliness is intensified.

Supervisor Free Dance Halls

Miss Yeomans is strongly in favor of supervised free dance halls for girls, as they must have enjoyment of some sort. In Edmonton they had started free physical culture classes, social evening parties, nature studies, and excursions, all classes of girls taking part.

Domestic And Press Women
It was said that there was more class distinction outside of society than in it, but it Miss Yeomans's estimation a domestic who was a success was infinitely superior to a newspaper girl who was a poor devil at her work.

The domestic problem was always open she added, and it was often the fault of the mistress that so many prostitutes came from the servant class. They were treated as inferior, given the worst room in the house, and allowed nowhere to receive visitors. When they went out they were often tired and it depended largely on their men friends whether the places they visited were just right. Man leads to woman's downfall, but other women keep her down, and woman's inhumanity to woman is responsible for much misery in the world.

Although sheltered women were responsible for the fate of the non-sheltered ones they rarely could be made to see this, and so, concluded Miss Yeomans, the business side of its problems should be a leading power, and should help when possible by inviting all classes into their club and working out their salvation.

EXHIBITION PRIZES FOR ELDERLY WOMEN

One of the most interesting displays to be made in the women's section of the fair this year will be samples of work done by ladies who have reached the mature age of 80 years or over. There are two classes reserved for their handwork, one of embroidery and the other crocheted work and there are the usual prizes of $5, $3 and $1 offered which will prevail to the other work of a similar nature.

Much interest will no doubt be aroused in this work and already there are some old fingers busily engaged on fancy work which will be placed on exhibition later. According to the rule which governs these classes the display must be present day work.

The prize lists are not printed yet, but in a few days they will be ready for distribution both in the meantime

ANNOUNCING OUR Exposition of Summer Modes
IN MILLINERY, DRESSES, SUITS, COATS and ACCESSORIES -- COMMENCING TODAY

THE verge of a new season finds us in splendid readiness to show complete ranges of the late styles designed for summer wear, and shown exclusively here. It is with a great deal of pride that we draw the curtain today on displays of apparel that cannot be duplicated in the city; displays that will be of decided assistance to all women planning their summer wardrobe, for each individual garment introduces some new feature that has met with fashion's approval. The styles are all captivating, to say the least, so that we are sure that many women will avail themselves of this opportunity of viewing the new fashions in all the freshness of a first showing.

Today, then, and all this week, we invite you to this summer style show, to which our windows and departments concerned have given appropriate setting.

Chic Styles in Summer Millinery

Many women have been awaiting this announcement that they might lay aside their spring hats and don the daintier styles that we have prepared for summer wear.

For these women we have a pleasant surprise in the millinery salon today. They will be greeted by a new order of hats. The straight lines and vivid colorings which were a feature of the spring styles have given way to softer lines and delicate summer tints, the straws and mounts for styles developed in lace, ribbon, and flowers.

We have imported a great number of models especially for this summer opening and from our own workrooms we display beautiful creations that portray correctly the latest style ideas.

There is necessarily such a wide diversity of styles that only a visit to this section can convey a true conception of the beauty and charm of Glanville's summer millinery.

Women's Charms Will Not Suffer Any Through Contact With These Handsome Dresses

Graceful lines, dainty colorings, and individual styles, are outstanding points of an array of summer gowns that portray the latest designed fashions which will receive their initial showing today.

There is no set style to the new summer dresses, rather every dress has its own individual features to make it different and pleasing. Pretty creations developed in the popular ratine are here in great variety; then the new embroidered voiles and voile flouncings are in evidence, and handsome linen dresses, to say nothing of the myriads of styles in fancy wash fabrics.

The use of heavy lace for trimming is noticeable, and glass or crocheted buttons, and many of the dresses have a girdle or sash of crushed ribbons in bright self color or Bulgarian tones to give a striking finish to the costume.

Several styles chosen at random are mentioned below:

DRESSES OF WHITE VOILE—Inserted with wide lace panels, girdle of Nell rose taffeta ribbon, yoke of bebe Irish, finished with tiny red and black buttons. Price $15.00
