KEEP COOL.

These are the merry, merry days of June, when the birds sing, the bees buzz and the little morning glory hides its head early in the day to escape the stress of the noon-day sun. Wilted collars, moist brows and cooling beverages are the order of the day, and every household is planning its es-cape from the sizzling heat of the city streets and seek a refuge beneath cool, branches in the country, or take refreshing dips in the briny ocean or
