LOOKS LIKE A STRIKE

Mitchell Intimates That the Miners Will Go Out Again.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 7. — The joint conference of coal miners and operators of the central competitive districts adjourned Saturday, without reaching an agreement as to the scale of wages for the year beginning April 1. This is the second failure to agree. The operators are leaving for their homes. The $800 miner delegates will meet Monday in national convention, when a statement of the miners' position will be made. The final agreement and adjournment came after a day devoted to consideration of the ultimatum of the operators, which was that a two years' scale be signed at a reduction of 5 per cent. from the present scale. At an executive session of miners, President Mitchell, Vice-President Lewis and Secretary Wilson advised acceptance of the operators' proposition. A test rising vote showed that the miners would not accept this advice. If the test fails, the operators say a strike is inevitable, as they will not make further concessions. Opinion among the miners was divided. President Mitchell said: "The adjournment of the convention means practically a disruption of the inter-state movement, and points strongly towards a strike in the competitive districts April 1. The miners will meet again Monday, when the resolution defining the miners' attitude, which, it is hoped, will be ratified."

Are You Troubled By Sleeplessness?

OVERWROUGHT NERVES CAUSE THE TROUBLE. BUILD UP, FORTIFY THE NERVOUS SYSTEM WITH FERROZINE—THEN YOU WILL SLEEP SOUNDLY.

"There is probably no remedy that soothes the nerves and drives away those long nights of wakefulness like Ferrozine. Every person whose sleep is restless should take Ferrozine, like Mr. J. H. McGaw, who writes from Saskatoon, as follows:

"I was bothered with insomnia last summer to such an extent that my health almost broke down. I was frightfully nervous. If it had gone on much longer I would have been a physical wreck. I read about Ferrozine, and was the sort of remedy I needed. I bought six boxes, and took one tablet with every meal. A change was at once made at once. I was no longer bothered with insomnia, and was able to take things more quietly. Ferrozine improved my digestion, I picked up in spirits, and took my seat in a comparatively short time sleep came the minute my head touched the pillow. Ferrozine completely relieved my system, and has made me a different sort of man altogether."

Don't wait until your condition becomes nervous prostration; it's hard to cure. Take Ferrozine regularly and the cause of your sleepless nights will be removed. It always cures insomnia.

Ferrozine is the greatest health-giver, the most valuable tonic, that money can buy. It will bring you strength, vigor and health, at small cost. Only Ferrozine can do this, so be sure that no dishonest dealer substitutes something represented "just as good." No other remedy is so good as Ferrozine, price 50 cents per box, or six boxes for $2.50, at all druggists, or N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

Living for years is well, but living each year well is better

Old age requires no pity when it is accompanied by good health. Eat proper food and you will not only live long, but enjoy every year you live. It stands to reason that if you give the proper food in Nature's exact proportions to each element in your body they will always be healthy and vigorous. Now the whole wheat grain contains every element the body requires to build it up. The only foods in which you can get the whole of the wheat are

WHERE BIRDS JAPAN PLAYED PREY ON DEAD RUSSIA'S GAME

Parsees of India Give Corpses to Vultures.

HOLD THE METHOD IS HUMANE THE NEW JAP PARLIAMENT

Bones Scattered From the Towers of Silence—Ceremonies of Funeral Pyre.

Bombay, March 7. — While the Parsees teach pure and lofty morality, and are famous for their integrity, benevolence, good thoughts, good words and good deeds, their method of disposing of their dead is revolting. For, stripped of every thread of clothing, the bodies of their nearest and dearest are exposed to dozens of hungry vultures, which quickly tear the flesh from the bones.

In a beautiful grove upon the top of a hill overlooking the city and the sea, surrounded by a high, ugly wall, are the so-called Towers of Silence, upon which these hideous birds can always be seen, waiting for their feast. They roost upon the eaves of the towers, and often in their flight, drop pieces of human flesh from their beaks or their talons, which are allowed to lie rotting in the streets below. An English lady driving past the Towers of Silence not long ago was naturally horrified when the finger of a dead man was dropped into her carriage by one of these awful birds; and two or three years ago, an army officer tells me, he picked up a dead dog which had been torn from a body only a few hours dead and had eventually fallen during a fight with the vultures who stored the water supply of Bombay is situated upon the same hill, not more than half a mile distant, and for obvious reasons has been covered with a roof. Some years ago the municipal authorities, having had their attention called to possible pollution of the water supply, resolved to remove the Towers of Silence to a distance from the city, but the rich members of that faith preferred to pay the expense of erecting a reservoir to abandoning what to them is not only sacred but precious ground. The human remains are placed in almost any conditions of association, and a cultured Parsee will endeavor to convince you by clever arguments that their method is not only humane and natural, but the best sanitary method ever devised of disposing of the dead. And they regard these awful ceremonies as much as we regard a funeral, for they have practiced them for centuries.

Funeral ceremonies are held at the residence of the deceased, where a number of friends and relatives are invited. Then a procession is formed and the bier is preceded by the priest and followed by the family and friends. The body is not placed in a coffin, but is covered with rich shawls and vestments. When the gateway of the Towers of Silence is reached, priests who are permanently attached to the Towers of Silence and the bier is carried upon a palanquin, which is first carried to a temple, where prayers are offered, and then, where the body is kept burning there, is replenished.

While the friends and mourners are engaged in worship, Nasir Salars, as the attendants are called, are engaged in the burning of the body. There are five, of circular shape, with walls forty feet high, perfectly white, and each is surrounded by a platform 275 feet in circumference and cost $150,000. The entrance is about fifteen or twenty feet from the ground and is reached by a set of steps. The inside plan of the building resembles a circular gridiron gradually depressed toward the center, and at the center is a pit, five feet in diameter. The pit is cement walks radiate like the spokes of a wheel, and between them are the spokes of the gridiron. The body is placed in the center, and the attendants stand around the entire tower. Those nearest the center are about four feet long, two feet wide and six inches deep. The next tier is about six feet long, and the third, larger still, and they are intended respectively for men, women and children.

When the bodies have brought the body into the anteroom of the tower they strip it entirely of its clothing. The valuable coverings are carefully laid away and sent to the chamber of purification, where they are thoroughly fumigated, and afterwards returned to the friends. The wrappings are burned. The body is laid in one of the compartments entirely naked, and in half an hour the flesh is completely stripped from the bones. The vultures, which have been eagerly watching the proceedings from the tops of the tall palms that overlook the cemetery. There are about two hundred vultures around the place; most of them are old birds and are thoroughly educated. They know exactly what to expect, and behave with the most perfect composure. They never enter the tower until the bearers have left it, and are as deliberate and solemn in their movements as a lot of undertakers. By and by, when they are particularly hungry, their greed gets the better of their dignity and they quarrel and fight over their prey.

After the bones are stripped they are allowed to lie in the sun and bleach and decay under the compartment they occupy is needed for another body. When the Nasir Salars enter with gloves and tongs and cast them into the central pit, where they finally crumble into dust. The floor of the tower is so arranged that all the rain that falls upon it passes into the pit. The bottom of the pit is perforated and the water impregnated with the dust from the bones is filtered through charcoal and is allowed to pass through a sewer into the bay. The pits are the receptacles of the dust of generations, and I am told that so much of it is drained off by the rainfall, as described, that they have never been filled.

The carriers are not allowed to leave the grounds, and when a man engages in that occupation he must retire forever from the world, as much as if he were a Trappist monk. Nor can he communicate with anyone except the priests who have charge of the temple.
