

HE LOST HIS LIFE TO SAVE HIS NIECE

Sad Drowning Accident Takes Place at Ottawa.

G. T. R. CAR CHECKER MANGLED

Three Boys Drowned in Attempting to Save a Baby—Other Casualties.

Ottawa, June 15.—Captain Louis H. Pouliot, of the postoffice department, was drowned in the Rideau canal, near the exhibition grounds, on Saturday afternoon, in an effort to save a little niece, Miss Alice Lorange. The girl was in bathing, and the uncle and aunt were sitting on the bank watching her. Shortly after she went in the steamer Rideau King, which piles between Ottawa and Kingston, came along, and the waves caused by the big side wheels tipped the girl off her feet. Captain Pouliot jumped in to the rescue, and sank to the bottom. It is thought that the excitement and the sudden contact with the water must have caused heart failure. Mrs. Pouliot rushed in to the help of her husband, but her little son twice followed her, screaming with fright, and twice she had to take him back to safety. Willie Headley, a boy of 14, who was on the opposite shore rescued Miss Lorange, and then dived for the captain's body, but could not find it. Captain Pouliot belonged to an influential family in Temiscouata, county of Quebec. His father, the late J. B. Pouliot, represented the county in the coming the Mackenzie regime. His brother, the late C. E. Pouliot, was elected from the same county in 1896, and died shortly afterward. Captain Pouliot was a member of the Papal Zouaves, who went from Canada to fight the battle of Rome against Garibaldi. With others he was taken prisoner, but benefited by the fact that he was a British subject.

He had his left leg cut off at the knee and his left arm so mangled that it had to be taken off at the shoulder. His recovery is scarcely expected.

THREE CHILDREN DROWNED.

Dyersburg, Tenn., June 16.—Three boys lost their lives by drowning in Albion River at Dyersburg, Tenn. A Mrs. Cooper was washing on the bank and had her children with her. Her baby fell into the water. The mother rushed to its assistance, and Pearl, Cleveland and Robert, aged 15, 13 and 11, respectively, followed their mother, and were drowned before help arrived. The baby and Mrs. Cooper were rescued.

Beebe was in the engine room of the Grocers' Specialty Company and eight feet from the window. El La Fever and Charles Algorie stood near the window watching the storm, when the bolt passed between them and struck Beebe. He was knocked down, but did not receive a scratch, though he complained of much pain about the head and shoulders when he came to consciousness. He will live. ing From Ceiling in Their Home.

MURDERER.

Coronado, June 14.—T. C. Robinette, counsel for Fred Lee Rice, the murderer of County Constable Boyd, visited the prisoner at the jail this afternoon and informed him of the supreme court's decision. When Rice learned from his counsel that the supreme court had refused to hear the appeal, he took the intelligence stoically. "Too bad, but I can't be helped," was all he said. He is still hopeful that the minister of justice will commute his sentence.

St. John, N. B., June 15.—Word came by letter tonight of a sad case of suicide and murder, which occurred on Thursday near Grand Falls, N.B. Dennis Cyr, a young widow, took her little boy and girl to the bank of the St. John River. She threw the girl, aged 6, into the rushing water, and then attempted to seize the boy, aged 7, for a similar offense, but he freed himself, and ran home crying. The woman then jumped in herself and was carried away. She was in poor circumstances and demented.

CHESS BY WIRELESS

TELEGRAPH AT SEA

Passengers Play a Game on Steamers Seventy Miles Apart.

New York, June 16.—Chess by wireless telegraph was played between a passenger on the steamship Campana and another on the Philadelphia during the passage of these vessels which ended with their arrivals here on Saturday. Last Tuesday the operator on the Campana got in communication with the Philadelphia. The Philadelphia was then about 70 miles ahead of the Campana. After passing the usual courtesies, the Campana's operator suggested a game of chess, which was agreed to by the other. Notice was posted in the music room of the Campana and a passenger was found to play.

The Philadelphia announcing readiness, the game commenced at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and lasted until 6:45 the same evening. At that time the Campana came in touch with her ship, the Lucia, bound from New York for Liverpool, and being obliged to attend to business communications the chess game was suspended. At the time of the suspension of the game the Campana's player had the better of it.

The Town Council of Aldershot presented his majesty with an address in a silver casket. On their way to the royal pavilion their majesties reviewed 2,000 or 3,000 school children. CHARLATANS IN AUSTRALIA

Numerous, Prosperous, and Not Legally Liable for Errors.

Methods by Which He Victimizes the Public.

As there is no proper medical law in Australia, nor, indeed, any legislative enactment in force by means whereof the practice of medicine may be confined within the hands of its duly qualified exponents, quackery flourishes exceedingly, and in the most rampant and barbaresque fashion conceivable.

Statistics prove that each legitimately qualified practitioner living in Australia, no matter how successful, is in competition with three quacks. But if the law does not protect the qualified man, and despises the health of the community, it is not surprising that the quack himself takes to its heart and nourishes as though he were a precious jewel.

Thus! If a man suffer from the negligence or malpractice of a qualified surgeon or physician, and can prove his case, the law gives heavy damages to the injured one. But if a like injury be suffered at the hands of a quack, the law not only fails to protect him, but actually encourages him by the awarding of a reward. The quack, therefore, is not only not liable, but is actually encouraged by the law to practice his craft. The quack, on the other hand, suffers no bushel to hide his light. No attorney can sue him for his malpractice. The quack, therefore, is not only not liable, but is actually encouraged by the law to practice his craft.

Again, restrained by the absurd chains of custom and rigid, iron-bound etiquette, a properly-qualified medic dare not advertise. He may be a gold medalist, an F. R. C. P., an F. R. C. S., he may possess the talents of a Treves, a Gill, or a MacCormac; but if he so much as insert a card in a newspaper, he is out there forthwith for all time by his professional brethren. He is, therefore, obliged to spend the best years of his life waiting idly for a patient, and for the public to discover his abilities. The quack, on the other hand, suffers no bushel to hide his light. No attorney can sue him for his malpractice. The quack, therefore, is not only not liable, but is actually encouraged by the law to practice his craft.

Auto-Expanding

The foot spreads when borne upon!
It contracts again when lifted!
A new shoe, which fits the foot neatly when off the ground, must therefore pinch it when stood upon, till it is stretched to the maximum width of foot.
A shoe which has thus been stretched, fit comfortable across the ball when stood upon, must be too loose when the foot is lifted.
The RESILIA is the only shoe which expands at the ball when the foot does, and contracts again when lifted.
It becomes a size larger inside when the foot sinks down into the resilient cen-tresole, the rebounding of which takes up the leather slack again when foot is lifted.
It is thus as easy as an old shoe the first moment it is worn, requires no "breaking in," and retains its shape because the leather is never overstretched.

Origin of Cambridge University.

The University of Cambridge originated through a migration from Oxford. In 1209 an Oxford townsman was killed by a clerk; whether accidentally or not, we do not know. King John, who was under sentence of excommunication, and so had no desire to protect the clergy, allowed the people of Oxford to have their revenge by putting two or three scholars to death. Their fellow students became alarmed, and began to migrate—some to Paris, some to Reading and some to Cambridge. There is no evidence that Cambridge had acquired any special pre-eminence as an educational center before the beginning of the thirteenth century. No doubt it possessed one of the grammar schools which, by this time, were to be found in most English towns. The rise of Cambridge received a check from a return of scholars to Oxford in 1214, on John's reconciliation with the church, but it had, some fifteen years later, an accession of strength, from the dispersion of the scholars of Paris. The distinguishing mark of the English universities today is the collegiate system. Yet Paris, not Oxford, was the original home of the college as an academic institution.

Sleeplessness.
You can't sleep in the calmest and stillest night if your stomach is weak, circulation poor and digestion bad.
Hood's Sarsaparilla strengthens the stomach, improves the circulation, per-fects digestion and brings about that condition, in which sleep is regular and refreshing.

It does not do this in a day, but it does it—has done it in thousands of cases.

Curiously enough, it is the strawber-
