true friend of the white workingmen to "worry" that road as much as possible, has been largely acted upon. Nevada and California hoodlums preach the gospel of Denis Kearney in British America. The auti-Chinese feeling has been fanned into a flame. A few politicians adopted Denis Kearney's well-known slogan, "The Chinese must go," and the agitators were strong enough to cause the adoption of certain anti-Chinese resolutions in the provincial house of assembly.

But as John Chinaman, in this instance, is protected by that other John, who understands and looks after his own interests, the movement against the "Asiatic hordes" ended in smoke. Hon. A.
