Agriculture is the great centre around which all the other occupations of Society revolve—Trade, Commerce, Manufactures—even the learned professions, owe their welfare to it—these all stand together, like pillars in a cluster, the largest in the centre, and that largest is Agriculture. Let us remember that we live in a country of small farms, and freehold tenements; in which men cultivate with their own hands, their own fee simple acres; drawing not only their subsistence, but also their spirit of independence and manly freedom from the ground they plough. They are at once its owners, its cultivators, and its
