COOLLY CONFESSES TO CRIMES ORCHARD TELLS OF MINERS' TACTICS OF MOST APPALLING VIOLENCE

Ringleader in Plots Which Carried
Death to Operators and Detectives, and Tried to Murder Governor
Peabody.

NOT NERVOUS ON STAND
MET HAYWOOD FIRMLY

BOISE, Idaho, June 5.—Alfred Horsley, alias Harry Orchard, the actual assassin of Frank Steunenberg, went on the stand to-day as a witness against Wm. D. Haywood, and testified to a long chain of brutal, revolting crimes, committed by himself, as well as the leaders of the Western Federation of Miners. Orchard stated that he was born in Ontario, Canada. An undertaking by counsel for the state, that they would, in later stages of the connection, make his testimony legitimate, opened the way like a flood-gate to the whole diabolical story, and through the entire day Orchard went through the recital of one crime to the recital of another, each succeeding one being seemingly more abhorrent than the one that preceded it.

Orchard confessed that, as a member of the mob which wrecked the Bunker Hill and Sullivan mill in the case of A. J. Sweeney, he lighted one of the fuses that carried fire to the giant powder explosion.

Confessed that he set the death trap in the Vindicator mine at Cripple Creek, which killed Supt. McCormick and Foreman Beck.

Confessed that because he had not been paid for his first attempt at violence in the Vindicator mine, he was in charge of the management of the Florence and Cripple Creek Railway that there was a plot to blow up their trains.

Confessed that he was in charge of three charges of buckshot into the body of Detective Lyte Gregory of Denver, killing him instantly.

Confessed that for days he dodged Governor Peabody of Colorado about Denver for a chance to kill him.

Confessed that he and Steve Adams and a companion Fred Bradley of San Francisco, he blew him and his house up with a bomb of gelatine powder.

Went yet further, he testified that he has more brutal crimes to tell some of which will bring his bloody career down to Caldwell.

A great bomb he killed Steunenberg. This will come to-morrow, for he is to resume the stand when the district court sits again. He eyes met those who stood before an anxious rigid crowd, which sternly watched every movement and word of the witness, who stood and he suffered from the fearful details long before James H. Hawley, pleading illness, at 3 o'clock this afternoon obtained adjournment.

Orchard retained control of himself almost from the moment he took the stand and if he suffers much he did not show it. His eyes were bloodshot and his face mottled when he came into the room to confront the man whose life he jeopardized. He was plainly nervous. He quickly steadied himself, however, and was soon talking in soft easy tones. His eyes met those of Haywood several times, and the two gazed freely at each other without flinching.

Entry Dramatic.

Orchard's entry into the court room, after a dramatic pause, was itself intensely dramatic. Five witnesses who traced Orchard's and Frank Simpson's movements at various times before the Steunenberg murder, viz., at Caldwell, at Nampa and at Silver City, and identified Orchard as the man who had signed their names, took up the first hour of the morning session with their testimony, and then Senator Beaman, looking toward the bench, said in a quiet tone: "It will be a few moments before the next witness arrives."

The crowd knew Orchard was to come, and watched the doors of the room.

Haywood's mother, Mrs. Carruthers of Salt Lake City, and her daughters, stood beside the witness and his wife, having arrived yesterday. The prisoner's daughters were absent. Haywood held a notebook, and an interior view of the proceedings was obtained.

Horsley had spent the night and morning at the office of Mr. Hawley, and was brought to this court house in a carriage with three armed guards. In the chambers of the judge he was turned over to Deputy Sheriff Beaman, who is to be his special guard at the trial. Strangers entering the court room during the morning were searched for weapons.

"Call Harry Orchard," cried the state's leading counsel, when the sheriff had signalled that he was ready.

Orchard Appears.

The chamber's door swung open and out marched Orchard, led by Beaman, and followed by two post-century guards and two detectives, well armed. They walked him around the rail and then faced the crowd while he mounted the witness chair. Far back in the room a man rose to get a better view, and a deputy shouted "sit down."

Other deputies instantly moved forward, and if the man had not taken the witness stand, he would have been arrested.

CHAMBERLAIN GIVES
PREMIER BOND A HINT

Suggests that Newfoundland Premier
Look to Union With Canada
—The Conference Incident.

(Canadian Associated Press Cable)

LONDON, June 5.—Sir Robert Bond was entertained to-night at dinner by the West Indian Club. Joseph Chamberlain wrote apologizing for non-attendance. He said that under Bond's wise administration he hoped Britain's oldest colony was fairly launched on a career of prosperity and trusted the recent differences about fisheries would be satisfactorily arranged, and that the settlement might be a prelude to the union with the great Dominion in the west, which he believed to be ultimately most conducive to the permanent interests of Newfoundland.

Responding to the toast to his health, Sir Robert said that while not prepared to challenge the correctness of Chamberlain's statement, that the permanent welfare of Newfoundland depended upon lending that colony's interests with those of Canada, he was constrained to say that such a union at present was not desirable, nor within the region of practical politics.

"Substantially correct," he intimated, incident at the colonial conference, Sir Robert Bond emphatically repudiated it, and denied he ever said the report was "substantially correct." He intimated, however, that if the colony had been treated with a little more courtesy in the preparation of the publication of facts by a section of the press would have been avoided. During the whole of the conference, he said, he was not only regarded as humiliating to the colony, but would lead to a total repudiation of the publication of facts by a section of the press would have been avoided. During the whole of the conference, he said, he was not only regarded as humiliating to the colony, but would lead to a total repudiation of the publication of facts by a section of the press would have been avoided.

As to the fisheries question, he had told the British government that a repudiation of the action of last year would not only be regarded as humiliating to the colony, but would lead to a total repudiation of the publication of facts by a section of the press would have been avoided.

Power of the Gospel.

If, as had been said, the gospel had lost its power, and the intelligence of the age had outrun it, it was because the cross has been thrust out of its true place. The closer to Christ's heart men kept, the more open were their minds to new interpretations of truth. The preacher must have an authoritative message. A bloodless and starchy pietism resulted from a lack of positive gospel truth. At the same time, authority must be meted with love, and the preacher must deliver his message in the spirit of Christ. The tale of divine piety was never received from lips moved by hypocrisy, and they needed more of the tender constraint of the Lord, and to go forth with high aims, strong faith and fervid enthusiasm.

—House Was Ransacked

SOUTH MOUNTAIN, Ont., June 5.—(Special.)—The home of James Tanshaw's, the victim of last Sunday's tragedy, is a small red house on lot 10 in the third concession of Mountain Township, consisting of four rooms, and entirely surrounded by trees. It was in the front room on the east side of the house that the body was found.

Deceased spent Saturday afternoon in Inkerman Village, four miles from home. While returning home, he met Fred Jackson on the road, and purchased three loaves of bread. After getting home he assisted Ben Storey to load a ton of hay, and was as jolly as ever. Then he went over to his brother's farm, and stayed there till dark, which was the last place he was seen alive.

Mrs. Storey, his housekeeper, who spent Sunday at Albert Tanshaw's, was very anxious not to have seen him all day, but he promised to come on Sunday to his brother's home, and she was sure to see what was wrong. She found the back door locked and the front door shut, but not locked. She went in the room where he lay, and supposed he was asleep, and called him, but received no answer. She touched him on the cheek, but found it cold, and, being frightened, ran back and told his brother, Albert, who went to South Mountain and notified Drs. Ferrier and Porter. The latter found a bullet wound thru the brain. It seems that Albert Tanshaw, when he saw the body, did not know the cause of death, because the head was covered almost entirely by the pillow, thus hiding the bullet wound. Dr. Porter summoned W. C. Whiteaker, M. D., who thought things looked very suspicious, and ordered an inquest.

Everything Broken Open.

The representative of "The World" was with the coroner when the house was opened. Trunks were smashed open; the writing desk lock broken open, and not a cent was found in the pockets of the deceased's clothes, which lay on the floor. In one corner of the house were his long-legged boots, just where he had left them, and under the stove was kindling wood, prepared for the Sunday morning fire.

The body lay upon the bed about six inches from the edge, with the quilts drawn up over the shoulder. The head was as natural as if in sleep; the right arm lay across the breast, while the left arm lay at full length close along the body, and the pistol was four inches from the hand on the bed. The bullet entered the head one inch behind the ear, and was extracted one inch below, on the right side.

The Fatal Shot.

In the room where the body lay, about a foot from deceased's head, was a pane of glass, which looked as if lately removed, because it was only

MUTINY AMONG HUSSARS OF CZAR'S BODY GUARD

Promptly Quelled—Said to Be Due to Discipline, Not Disloyalty.

ST. PETERSBURG, June 5.—The Fourth Squadron of the Hussars of the Guard, stationed at Tsarsko-Selo, so called the Imperial family had just removed, revolted to-day against the strict discipline which recently had been instituted by a new commander. The trouble for a time threatened to spread thru the entire regiment, but the mutinous troops were promptly surrounded and disarmed by other troops and order was restored without bloodshed. The ringleaders have already been turned over to a court-martial.

The news of the mutiny at Tsarsko-Selo was received during Foreign Minister Isvolsky's weekly reception of the diplomats and caused considerable apprehension, the first news reported the affair to be far more serious than the revolt of the soldiers of the Preobrazhensky Regiment, in June, 1906.

The officers of the Hussar Regiment say that the outbreak was not political.

GOVERNMENT CONSENTS TO BE SUED BY COATES

London Financiers Will Ask Courts
For Commission on Provincial Loan.

The provincial government yesterday issued a fiat granting the legal firm of Barwick, Aylesworth, Wright & Moss permission to sue the province for £1000 on behalf of Coates & Co., the London (Eng.) financial company, who claim that that amount is due them for commission on the provincial loan of £1,200,000, which was raised in England last year.

The consent of Coates & Co. is that before the present government practically gave them the commission to float the loan. Before the loan was put thru the late government was defeated, and when the present administration came in they employed the Bank of Montreal as their agent in the matter.

As it is impossible to sue a government without its own consent, the London firm applied for leave to enter an action to recover what they claim is their due. The government gave the subject long and serious consideration, but eventually decided that the ends of justice would be best served by having the whole matter ventilated in the courts.

"TIGHT" MONEY MAY HURT SALE

Gas Company Find 3 Months Notice Detrimental to Their Stock Sale.

While the city will not be a bidder at the sale of Consumers' Gas Co. stock, to be held at noon to-day, the event is creating considerable interest, particularly in view of the rather stringent money conditions that obtain in the local share market.

Manager W. H. Pearson in discussing the outlook last night remarked that the recent enactment of the legislation under which the company is obliged to give the city three months' notification of the date on which a new stock issue was to be disposed of by auction, did not conduce to the best results, as the sale could not be timed so far in advance, so as to be held under the most favorable money conditions. Under the old statute the serving of three weeks' notice only was required.

There are 6000 shares to be knocked down to the highest bidder, representing at $50 value, $300,000. The sale will bring the total stock issue of the company up to $2,900,000. The last sale of the shares was around the $200 mark, but for some time the stock has been very inactive. The stock will be offered in blocks of 10 shares, at Townsend's auction rooms.

Province Nearly Doubles Its Income
In Last Five Months.

The revenue of the province for last month was $467,000, an increase of $53,000 over that of May, 1903.

For the five months, from Jan. 1, the province took in $2,410,000, which was nearly double the receipts for the same period of last year. To be exact, the increase was $1,569,000, the greater portion of which, however, is accounted for by the sale of Cobalt and Kerr lakes.

SCOTCHMEN ON JURY; IT IS DISMISSED

National Sentiment

Fraser Inquest Verdict.

Following a letter from the attorney-general's department, Coroner Johnson yesterday dismissed the jury sitting in the inquest into the death of John Fraser, killed at the Bay-street crossing May 27.

The letter referred to a protest lodged by Leighton McCarthy, K. C., counsel for the G. T. R., setting out that two members of the jury, P. A. Glenn and John Donohoe, were improperly upon it, being members of the St. Andrew's Society.

Protest was also made against the questioning of witnesses by counsel for interested parties, seeking information upon which to base actions against the railway company.

The letter was read by County Crown Attorney H. L. Drayton at the opening of yesterday's session at the city hall. Coroner Johnson took occasion to refer to the matter as "delayed fireworks." He said that counsel's objection was well taken, but he thought should have been urged directly before himself. He did not know that the men were members of the Scottish Society when he had sworn them in.

He could not see that there was any wrong in there being Scotchmen upon the jury.

"Whenever two or three lawyers are gathered together, I naturally expect trouble," said he.

The new inquest will open at St. Michael's Hospital at 3 o'clock this afternoon, when the body of Francis Hart, the second victim of the accident, will be viewed.

News of Hart's death was yesterday called to the Lord Provost of Edinburgh by the St. Andrew's Society here, with a request that the news be broken to his parents there.

Hart's body will be buried in St. Andrew's church, and the Canadian Lake and Ocean Navigation Co. will share the expense with the society.
