well and showed the most speed all the way, easily disposed of Spencer Reiff after going one turn of the field and was eased up after Economy lost her rider. My Grace closed up gamely in the last half and his saddle slipped very badly or he might have been dangerous. Spencer Reiff fenced well, but tired after going one turn of the field. Steve Lane was given an easy ride and is a good jumper when good. Florence II. and Wild Refrain fell at the first jump. Economy lost her rider at the twelfth and Capstan his at the sixth jump. The winner was entered for $500; no bid.

Shimonese ran under stout restraint for the first half mile, then moved up with a rush on the turn out of the backstretch: caught and passed the leaders easily and drew away under restraint in the last quarter. Tollendal, followed the fast early pacemaker closely, but had nothing left when the winner challenged. Fort Garry made entirely too much use of in the first half, showed the most early speed, but tired badly in the last mile. The others were beaten off and are very ordinary.

If you expect to make money playing the races, you must go about in a business-like way. Every successful undertaking is operated by some common-sense method. Playing one race a day is conceded by experts who have made a life-long study of the game to be the only way to beat it. In the history of racing, no man can be found who made money playing the whole card.

Start With Us To-Day
