The Customs Boat, Ephie L. burned and sank at her berth next to the city ferry slip at 2:36 o'clock Sunday morning and two men, Captain Bruce Weston, and George H. Finding it impossible to clear the rope, Captain Weston went down a hatchway to the engine room for the purpose of procuring an axe to sever the rope and allow the float to right itself.

To enter the dark engine room of the boat, Captain Weston took a lantern with him and while Mr. Hayter was looking down through a small hatchway to see how the captain was progressing, suddenly and without the least warning there was an explosion and a health down a small his helical.
