MacLEAN'S MAGAZINE
Pointing out that until the beginning of the present century Canada was little better than many scattered settlements in the wilderness, and those settlements for the most part composed of people who came from other countries to "engage in the desperate struggle" with the bush and the Indian, H. T. A. Cresser, leader of the National Progressive Party, in a leading article in MacLean's Magazine, seeks to be leaning more toward the public interest in the review of the "Review of Reviews" department comment on the people and happenings of the world-wide interest is, as usual, carried. Mr. Cresser's article is one of many interesting features in this exceptionally attractive issue of MacLean's. BUILDING INDUSTRY.
Winnipeg, Jan. 31.—(Canadian Press)—All construction industries and labor in the building trades should recognize the definition which has taken place and place their respective activities upon a basis consistent with the public interest in the revival of building so that construction activity may be resumed and the needs of the people met. Saturday afternoon, Jan. 30, at the Hotel Victoria, a meeting of the building trades and labor in the building trades should recognize the definition which has taken place and place their respective activities upon a basis consistent with the public interest in the revival of building so that construction activity may be resumed and the needs of the people met.
