Hidden Skin Troubles

Have you on some part of your body a sore, or eruption, or ulcer, or eczematous patch which, hidden from the gaze of others, yet causes you hours and hours of pain and inconvenience? Have you tried this, and that, and the other remedy in vain, and are you feeling disheartened and discouraged? If so read the following instances of Zam-Buk's healing power, and apply it to your case.

"I had an ulcerated leg for several years. Several doctors treated it, but it would not heal. One suggested amputation. None but Zam-Buk healed the leg. So says Mrs. Gilmour, of Princess St., Kingston, Ont. and this—

"My mother tried many things for a skin eruption in vain. In Zam-Buk she found a complete cure." So says Miss A. Copeland, of Wapella (Sask.).

Sufferers from these "Hidden Skin Troubles" of a nature should profit by such experiences as this. Zam-Buk is used at its best when applied to cases which have defied ordinary treatment. Write for trial box, and test it at our expense.

ZAM-BUK
THE GREAT SKIN-CURE.

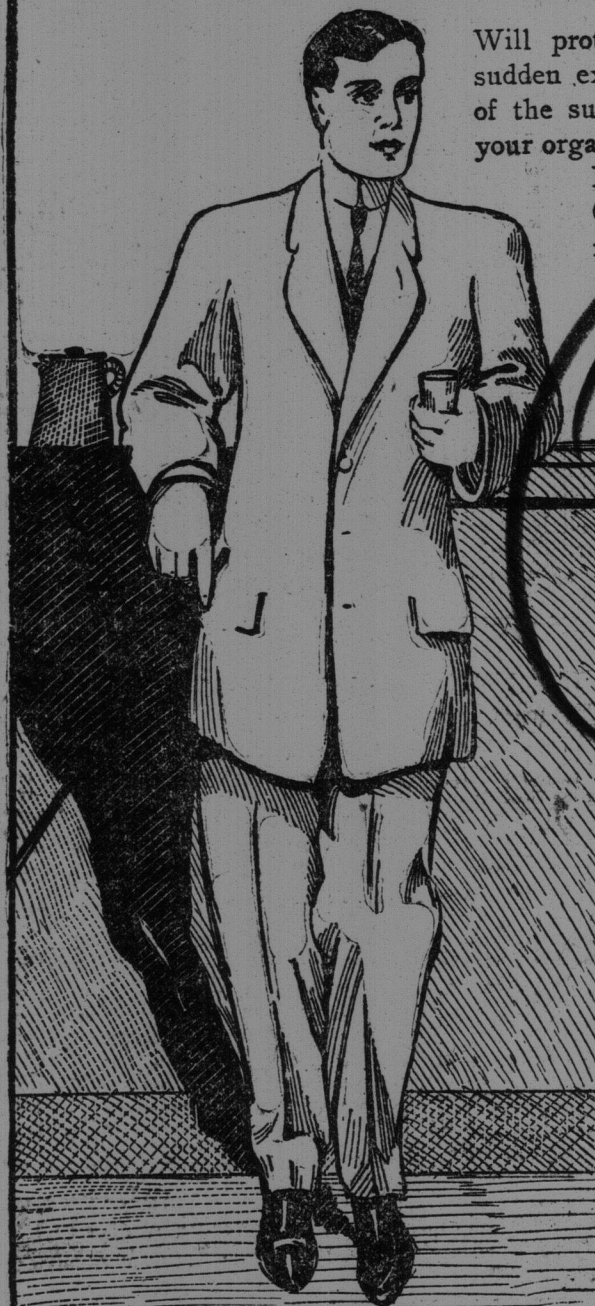

ZAM-BUK AND A MIRACLE OF HEALING

Over and over again Zam-Buk has performed a miracle of healing when applied to sores and skin injuries which have refused to heal under any other form of treatment. Why not let it heal your trouble? Immediately Zam-Buk is applied to a sore or wound or diseased portion of flesh it commences its work in two directions. It attracts the exudate and its antiseptic properties prevent any germs and bacilli from creating trouble. Then the herbaceous and juices so finely purified and concentrated, penetrate the subjacent layers and stimulate the weakened or diseased cells to active, healthy operation. These cells then push forth their building products and replace the diseased outer layer with fresh and healthy tissue. By degrees the whole diseased surface is thus replaced by new healthy skin.

In this way Zam-Buk cures cuts, burns, bruises, ulcers, abscesses, itch, eczema, eruptions, pustules, scurvy, salt rheum, blood poison, and other forms of skin trouble. Zam-Buk also cures piles, varicose ulcers, etc. All druggists and stores sell at 50c per box, or from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price, 6 boxes $2.50.

MEN GETTING SCARCE

New York Has 50,000 Girls Doomed to be Old Maids

"In spite of writers who give formulae to girls 'how to get husbands,' assuming that every girl can win one if she makes herself attractive, there are thousands of girls today who haven't a ghost of a show at matrimony. There are not enough husbands to go around."

This, girls, is not the sentiment of the army of unmarried, but is the statement of Dr. John Jackols of New York, who supports his statement with figures.

Dr. Jackols' mother and sisters are among the pioneer suffragists of Finland, where women have full suffrage and where there are 100,000 more women than men in 3,000,000 population. Dr. Jackols says there would be a better understanding between the sexes.

fragettes and Hemstead citizens recently. He also carried his message of despair to Boston's unmarried army of suffragettes when he spoke there before the Massachusetts Suffrage association.

Mrs. Belmont's former suffragists were set down by Dr. Jackols' statement that there are 50,000 more women than men in Greater New York alone and that no matter what interest they had in looking forward to matrimony, for thousands of them there was absolutely no hope.

"Then," added Dr. Jackols, "when you consider the big number of 'undesirable' bachelors, whose no woman of refinement would marry, your chances of matrimony are lessened still further."

Dr. Jackols gives the unmarried girls one ray of hope, saying that, in his opinion, the day will come when custom will not compel a woman to wait until a man asks her to marry him.

"If the custom were established so that women might propose," he said, "I believe there would be a better understanding between the sexes."

Some Common Errors

The fourteen mistakes of life, as Judge Belmont recently told the Bartholomew Club of London, are:

To expect to set up one's own standard of right and wrong and expect everybody to conform to it.

To try to measure the enjoyment of others by our own.

To expect uniformity of opinion in this world.

To look for judgment and experience in youth.

To endeavor to mold the dispositions of everybody alike.

Not to yield in unimportant trifles.

To look for perfection in our own actions.

To worry ourselves and others about what cannot be remedied.

Not to allocate if we can all that needs alleviation.

To make allowances for the weaknesses of others.

To consider anything impossible simply because we ourselves happen to be unable to perform it.

To believe only what our finite minds can grasp.

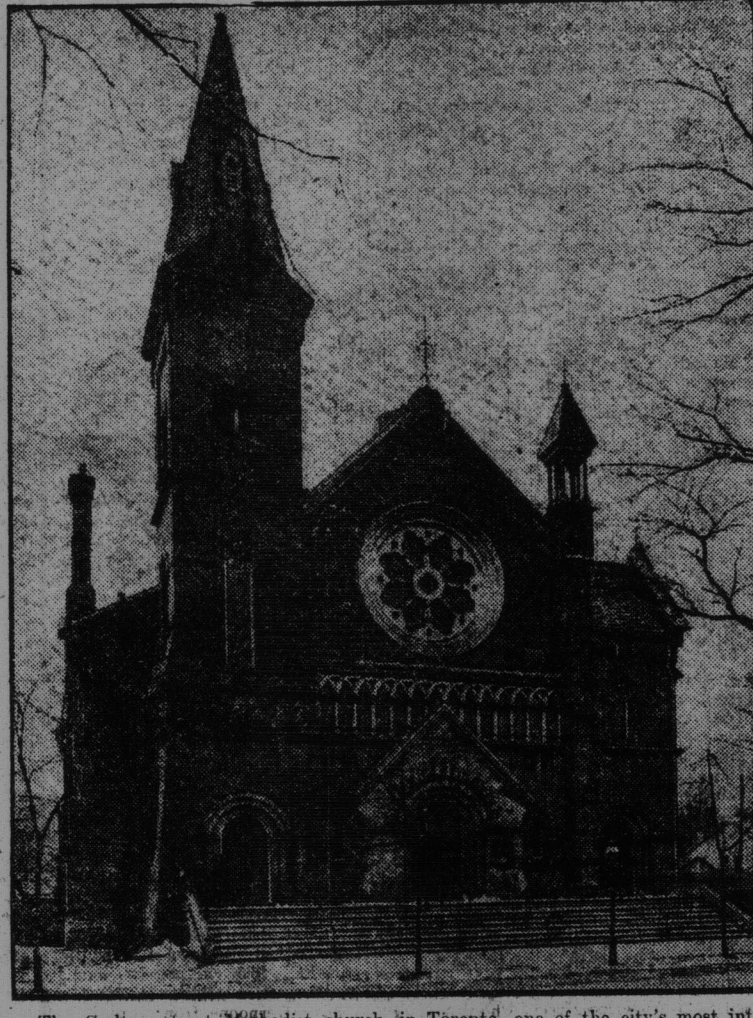

To live as if the moment, the time, the day were so important that it would live forever.

To estimate people by some outside quality, for it is that within which makes the man.—The Interior

LORD MINTO SPEAKS OF MATTERS IN INDIA

His Advice as to the Administration of Affairs in Country Where he Has Been Viceroy

In recognition of his distinguished services as viceroy of India, the Earl of Minto was recently presented the freedom of the city of London in the Guildhall, with all the customary formalities. Lord Minto has had a long and distinguished career in many lands, and the honor has seldom if ever been more justly conferred.

After the presentation Lord Minto made an interesting speech in which he briefly reviewed the period of his viceroyalty in India. He began by expressing his gratitude to Lord Curzon for the perfect working of every wheel of which he had personally supervised, and for the peace and the frontiers which were largely the result of the policy fostered by his predecessor.

But before he had been in India many months it became evident to him that there would be before long confronted with a mass of popular discontent. As far as they could judge, the discontent was justifiable and was due to a growing belief that neither opportunities nor the official representation of Indian public opinion, and a greater share be granted to Indians in the government of their own country.

We were called upon to recognize the rights of western civilization and our own duties introduced into India.

"So far," said Lord Minto, "I have referred to what I ventured to call in India 'loyal unrest,' the unrest due to what many loyal Indians believed to be a disregard on our part of just political hopes. But we were suddenly brought face to face with an agitation of an entirely different nature."

Now, the first duty of every government is to insure the public safety, and that we are determined to do with all the power at our command. But the really crucial question to decide was the policy to be adopted toward the political state of the country generally. Personally I never had any hesitation as to the lines to be followed. The government of India was compelled by force of circumstance to adopt a dual line of action, to recognize the necessity for administrative reforms, and simultaneously to repress sedition.

Speaking of the present position in India as affected by the enlarged council, Lord Minto said that their inauguration marked the commencement of a new era.

So well-known is this medicine and so universally used that we need scarcely tell you of its merits. But we want to warn you against imitations and substitutes.

BEATS JARNDYCE CASE

A Suit in Chancery Still Undecided After Six Hundred Years

A law case, which was begun in 1348, and was interrupted because Richard de Maundeville left to leave for the crusades, has just been resumed in the Chancery court, England.

The point at issue is the right to hold a market at Stowmarket, Suffolk, and the suit was originally brought by the Abbot of St. Omer, Essex, in the twelfth year of Edward III., against Richard de Maundeville. According to the Abbot, who claimed to be the lord of the manor, Richard had wrongfully obtained the grant of the right to hold a market in Stowmarket, and his claim was "to the grave damage of the said abbot."

Richard claimed the king's protection, and eventually the case was adjourned sine die because of his departure abroad.

At the resumed hearing the modern representatives of Richard asserted that the modern representative of the abbot had no right to set up a rival market. This assertion was supported by Mr. Oden, a famous London lawyer, who cited the Domesday Book and other authorities to prove his case.

"When Richard de Maundeville went abroad," remarked the judge, "the little town of Stowmarket was a village of the same question 600 years afterwards."

The hearing was adjourned for the second time after extracts from the abbot's pleadings had been read.

THEIR LAST HOPE GONE

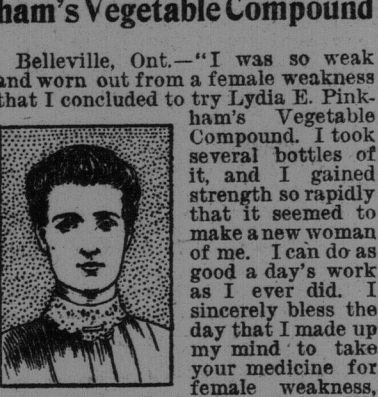

When the minister praised the raspberry jam at Mrs. Green's bountiful Saturday night supper, he could not imagine why Angie and Horatio, the twins, gazed at him so reproachfully. "Don't you like raspberry jam, my little man?" he asked Horatio.

"Yes, sir, I do, and Angie does," said Horatio in distinctly resentful tones, "and another told us that she was afraid the last she made wasn't quite up to the mark and if you didn't praise it Angie and I could have it for luncheon on our bread."

For Mrs. Willis and Mrs. Shield never said a word when they ate it, and you've made the third. But now she'll use it for the church socials." And Horatio looked gloomily at his twin, who returned the look in kind.—Youth's Companion.
