

Labor Day At Nanaimo

The Celebrations in the Coal City Were, as Usual, a Decided Success.

Prize Winners in the Procession and Sports-Speeches in the Evening.

(Special to the Times.)

Nanaimo, Sept. 4.-Nanaimo rather prides itself on being a labor centre, and in past years Labor Day has been the day of all days in the coal mining metropolis of British Columbia. But yesterday the celebration was far ahead of that of any previous year in more ways than one. Beginning with the splendid procession in the morning and ending with the dance in the evening, everything passed off most pleasantly. And never was there more perfect weather for a celebration.

The parade left the Crescent at 10:30, and following the regular line of march arrived at the railway station at 11:15, just in time to meet the special train men. from Victoria. The flattering comments from the arriving excursionists as they gazed at the beautiful floats was praise enough for the committee having the arrangements in charge.

In the procession, following the Nanaimo Silver Cornet band, came the floats of the New Vancouver Coal Company, one representing the interior of a mine, another showing the blacksmith and machine shops, and a third displaying the labors in which the woodworkers. were engaged. In all three floats it was evident that much time and labor were spent in their preparation, and they were splendid, representations of the industries carried on by the company that has made Nanaimo what it is. All were decorated with colors and adorned with motions appropriate to the occasion. Following the coal mining float marched a number of the members of the Miners and Mine Laborers' Protective Association, and after the other two floats came the Artisans' Club, composed of members of the Carpenters and Machinists' Association in the employ of the New Vancouver Coal Company. Then followed the Tailors, Cigarmakers and Typographical Union members. Next came a float from Stevenson & Co., that attracted attention all along the line of march. A number of other floats following this were handsome ones. As a representative of industry that belonging to Stanley Craig was particularly notice- of this town, was drowned while playable. Two wagons were joined together and on them was represented every yesterday. Deceased was 7 years old. branch of employment in his carriage building and blacksmithing establishment, fourteen men being at work. All told there were twenty-eight floats in the procession, and these were followed by carriages containing the guests, civic officials and others. Following the parade, the guests of the Trades and Labor Council were entertained at an elaborate luncheon at the Windsor, and then came the sports of the day at the Oaledonian grounds. Following are the winners in the different events: Baseball match, Victoria vs. Nanaimo Former won by a score of 17 to 4. 100 yards race for boys under 12-Mc-Kinnon, 1; Nicholson, 2. 100 yards for boys under 16-Marshall, 1; McKinnon, 2. 100 yards, professional-W. more moderate than when he made his debut in this city during the fishermen's strike on the Fraser. He spoke of the discontent that was existing among the working classes at the present time. He asked the workingmen to educate them-selves up to a point to protect themselves and advised unity of action. In closing he referred to the prospect of trouble in this city between the miners and the owners of the colliery. Mr. MacClain was followed by Mr. Hawthornthwaite, who differed from the previous speaker on many points, and then Mr. Maxwell, of Vancouver, made one of his characteristic speeches, which was received with loud applause. Mr. Andrew Haslam then made a short speech and Mr. Ralph Smith wound up the evening's speaking with a talk on the labor cause, that was frequently interrupted with applause. Mr. Smith was in favor of exhausting every means possible before going into a strike, and said that if this was done the striker would always have the sympathy of the public, citing as an instance of this the recent trouble on the C. P. R. In his opinion capital and labor should not be always diametrically opposed to each other, and he had no patience with a man or men who talked in that way. If workingmen would elevate themselves through education and unity of action capital would be forced to respect them. The speaker also offered a plausible suggestion as to ing or to-morrow.
