LOOKED LIKE A TRAP. Clever Oriental Strategist That Was a Complete Success.

Many a man has failed to guess an easy riddle because the simple solution looked like a trap to him. Here is an instance in which this trait of human nature was cleverly played upon by a Japanese nobleman.

The old lord had been forced to flee with only 500 men before an enemy with 10,000 and barely had time to reach his castle ahead of his foes. There were no reinforcements near at hand, and he knew that if an enemy was made to storm his defenses he and his men would be dead before help could come.

The enemy's forces advanced rapidly, and scouts rode up near the castle to reconnoitre. To their amazement they found the gates, doors and windows open and all the appearance of a holiday celebration. They rode hastily back to inform their master that the foe was dancing and that bands were playing music in the castle.

The powerful enemy was too wise a man to put his head into such a trap as that. The defenders of the castle must have some plan to slaughter his forces by wholesale or they would never invite him in that way. He grew back a safe distance and encamped to await developments.

Telegraph Says B. McKeown Tried to Kill Himself.

He Says It's a Lie - Wonderful Escape from Death on the Suspension Bridge.

"It is all a lie." Such is Barney McKeown's characterization of a long account in this morning's Telegraph, in which he is said to have attempted to commit suicide by jumping off the Suspension Bridge yesterday afternoon. The Telegraph's story describes McKeown as, frenzied with liquor, making a desperate attempt to kill himself by leaping from the Suspension Bridge into the roaring falls below and says he was only kept from the death by a strong grip of the death by the rope which he was holding in his right hand. A sensational description is given of the efforts to free himself and continue his dive and of his frantic attempts to frustrate the heroic attempts of his rescuers. The story concludes with an account of his rescue and quoting him as giving utterance to the following statement, after he had been removed to a place of safety:

"I only wanted to leave the world. I was a right, haven't I? Why was I stopped?"

To a Star reporter this morning, Mr. McKeown talked freely and expressed himself as astounded when told that a morning paper attributed to him an attempt to do away with his life. He said he had not seen the Telegraph, but would take immediate steps to have the account corrected, as he regarded it as grossly slanderous and hurtful to his reputation.

Mr. McKeown says that he was crossing the bridge yesterday afternoon, between the hours of three and four, going in the direction of Fairville, when suddenly a gust of wind blew him off his hat. He was close to the side of the bridge, and as he saw his hat carried up over the wire nothing he made a violent dash for it in the hope that he might capture it before it had passed beyond the bridge. He says he was slightly intoxicated and in jumping up over the netting he lost his balance and toppled over. He thought it was a joke when he saw his hat flying in the air, but he was not laughing when he found himself hanging by his arms from the netting and the beams and he was called for help and was somewhat assured when he heard voices above him. Words of encouragement were sent down to him from his rescuers, who by climbing over the side of the bridge succeeded in raising him up and finally lifting him over the netting and on to the bridge.

It is said that he was very grateful to the men who so courageously saved him, and he has since been very careful to keep his temper and to avoid any more such escapades. He has since been very careful to keep his temper and to avoid any more such escapades. He has since been very careful to keep his temper and to avoid any more such escapades.

POLICE COURT.

Brilliant Love Today - Marshall's Evidence Again Not Accepted - Fined For Sexsickiness.

The police magistrate's levee this morning was a brilliant affair, and he entertained his guests with a variety of amusements. There was only one regrettable feature and that was the unavoidable absence of Lavina Buntary. Lavina was in the building, but sent her regrets by Officer Earle that she was unable to attend. She was very sorry, however, some present were so mean as to say that Lavina took an overdose of gin last evening. She was locked up last night, having been found drunk on Mecklenburg street. Charles Todd, 70 years of age, said he had no home or relations in this country. He had worked here for 40 years and wanted to go to the almshouse. Mr. Wetmore agreed to send him there.

Fredrick Stewart and Joseph Gibbons were arrested shortly before midnight by Officers Marshall and Rolan. Stewart was charged with drunkenness and using profane language and Gibbons, who came here from Bermuda, had a week or so ago, returned and was charged with interfering with the police. Both men pleaded not guilty and considerable time was taken up hearing this evidence. Officer Marshall stated that the two men had been loitering about Sheffield street, that he had ordered them to move away and that they only did so by degrees. Finally Stewart used obscene language, threatening him. The man then ran, but at the corner of British and Carmarthen streets he fell. Marshall then arrested him. Gibbons returned and demanded that he allow Stewart to go, and laid hands on both Stewart and the officer. Marshall said he was forced to hit Gibbons on the arm with his baton. Just then Officer Rolan came along and placed Gibbons under arrest.

Gibbons swore that while they had a few drinks of ale they were perfectly capable of taking care of themselves and did move away when the officer asked them. He, however, followed them and frequently pushed and pulled at witness. Stewart denied using any profane language. His honor declared Gibbons not guilty of any interference and fined Stewart $8 for being out so late, the fine being allowed to stand.

Harry Lyons, better known as Snowball, a large and very jovial negro, has been living at Eastport for some time. He came here last night on the St. Croix, intending to go to Coldbrook to see his sister, but while waiting for the train had a couple of drinks of ale. Now a few drinks more at any time under ordinary circumstances either Harry, but, as he explained in court this morning, the ocean voyage had made him searish and he supposed that was the cause of his getting drunk. He was fined four dollars and paid up.

Thomas Young was arrested for wandering about Dock street and not giving a satisfactory account of himself. He explained that he was a hard working young man and was usually in bed at 10 o'clock. Last night he had a few drinks and was annoyed when questioned by the officer and refused to answer any questions although he had nothing to conceal. He was cautioned about being out late and was allowed to go.

One common drunk was fined four dollars.

The Board of Health cases were then taken up. Some thirty-five parties have been reported for not having their back yards etc. as clean as they should be. Only a few were present today, and all promised to have things fixed up.
