ST. JOHN'S OPPORTUNITY. As It Presents Itself to a Man From Winnipeg.

Israel M. Ross, farmerly one of the best known railroad men in New Brunswick, and now a resident of Winnipeg is spending a few days with friends in the city. While in this province Mr. Ross was connected with the onstruction of the C. P. R. to Vanceboro, and with the I. C. R. between St John and Moncton. In 1879 he went vest, where he has since prospered in contract work on the C. P. R. and the Great Northern Railway.

Mr. Ross believes that western Canada is the greatest country in the world and regrets that so little is known of it in the east. In conversation with the Star he said: "I have spoken with many St. John people during the past day or two and, with a few exceptions, they simply do not begin to realize what a country lies to the west of them. It is a pity that some of the city fathers do not take a trip to the west and see for them-City road operated by McLean & Holt selves what a magnificent and boundless country is there, and what possisolved. McAvity, low the continued rapid development ments' delay in providing additional facilities at this pont for handling the mmense quantities of western produce which could be brought here. There s not a port on the Atlantic with advantages equal to those possessed by St. John and it is a matter of regret that the people of this city are not more fully alive to the future and to the opportuities ready to be grasped. With proper and sufficient facilities for the handling of western produce St. John would, in ten years, have a population of 150,000. You may think this sounds absurd but it is a fact that the people living in any town are more carless of the opportunities of that town and realize less fully its possibilities than do strangers. In my opinion St. John could in a few years be made rot only one of the most important ian, and are staying a few days in ports in Canada, but a leading manufacturing town. Wharves could be built on both sides of the harbor, right to the Beacon light, and from the Ballast wharf to the I. C. R. Terminus. And when all this space is used there remains Courtney Bay flats. These would require considerable dredging but this could be done. The people of St. John have their future in their own hands. The products of our vondrous west must find an outlet somewhere and it is surely better that they should go through St. John than from an American pont." Warts Removed without Pain. Putnam's Painless Corn and Wart Extractor never fails to remove Warts, Corns or Bunions without pain

A ST. JOHN MAN IN BRIDGE-TOWN, N. S.

The Bridgetown, N. S., Monitor publishes in this week's issue a very complete sketch of the business houses of that thrifty and enterprising town. Among the firms described are Beeler & Peters, the largest manufacturers of barrels and staves in the Annapolis valley. J. W. Peters, who is a native of St. John, N. B., formerly conducted a cooperage at Carleton, N. B., and was a large purchaser of staves from Mr. Beeler. In August, 1990, a partnerthe demands of a steadily increasing trade, Beeler & Peters bought the ildings and machinery of the firm of Curry Bros. & Bent of Bridge town, and transferred the machiner from their factory at Clementsvale to their Bridgetown mill. Beeler & Peters manufacture all kinds of barrels (apple barrels a specialty), fish tubs and drums, staves, headings and lumber, and cut on an average 1,000,000 feet of logs for staves, heads and hoops alone. They are now working on an order for Collis, Whitman & Co. of Halifax, for whom they are making from 12,000 to 14,000 fish tubs this year. They also do all kinds of sawing and planing for the trade.

M. McDADE

Makes Telling Points Against the Tweedie-Pugsley Combine.

His Scorching Arraignment of D. Smith-Some Solid Facts for the Consideration of New Brunswick's Tax Payers.

CAMPBELLTON, Sept. 29.-Michael

McDade made many telling points against the Tweedie-Pugsley combination in his speech tonight. He quoted from the home organ of Mr. Tweedie-the Chatham Advance-which stated that "the St. John Daily Sun; the St. John Globe and Michael Mc-Dade has formed a triple alliance against the local government." The article went on to say that he should take the electors into his confidence and give the reasons for his present opposition to Mr. Tweedle-that "he might, for instance, explain why the reports of the debates, when he made them, cost so much more than they since he resigned." The Advance is said to be owned by D. G. Smith, who was the official reporter of the house of assembly in 1878. Considering that the records of the country show him (Smith) to be a defaulter to the province in connection with his reporting contract, one would think that the natter of official reporting would be a rather delicate question for him to now touch. The debates of 1880 con-ain this information: "Mr. Willis asked when the government expected the reports of the session of 1878. "Hon. Mr. Fraser said D. G. Smith had been promising all along to furnish them. Mr. Smith had not done right in the matter. He should have fulfilled his contract, for which he had been paid. If there was any means of compelling him to fulfil his contract the government would try to secure the fulfilment of his engagements. He was free to admit that the government might have done wrong in the metter, but Mr. Smith made representations of so plausible a character, and ment advanced the money. "Mr. Blair had expected to hear the attorney general deny in the most emphatic terms, the charge that the government had paid a contractor in full before the completion of his contract; but instead of that he acknowledged the truth of the charge, palliated it and said there was no remedy. There of some able legal gentieman whose and said there was no remedy. There ability all recognized. (Applause.) He was a remedy and ought to be a

In answer, e desired to say "that during the 15 years that he occupied the post of reporter of the assembly the average cost to the province for a year less than D. G. Smith's 2,000 word report per day-with this difference, that he always carried out his contract while Mr. Smith did not. (Applause.) Mr. Tweedie and Mr. Pugsley could have told Mr. Smith that there was no doubt that his (McDade's) resignation as reporter was voluntary; and that on the eve of the session of 1901 he was urged by both of them to reconsider his decision to withdraw from the reportership. If their memories failed them, he had documentary evidence in proof of his present statement. (Applause.) The object of Mr. Smiths' reference to him was because he had written a letter to the St. John Globe, pointing out why, in his opinion, the independent liberals of the country were not called upon to vote for the Tweedle-Pugsley government. In consequence of that letter he had also come under the lash of the St. John Gazette, the property of his genial friend, John A. Bowes, who cannot be charged with having very strong political convictions, a gentleman who for a consideration is prepared to prove today that black is white and the next day that white is black-a gentleman whose chief service to the local government seems to be in throwing mud at such eminent liberals as Senator Ellis of the Globe and Mr. Hawke of the Transcript. (Applause.) After having at-tempted to hold the speaker up to ridicule, Mr. Bowes's paper said: "How the gentlemen who supported the leaders of the past can explain their opposition to the present government is difficult to understand;" and then the paper explains to its own satisfaction that the whole opposition by those who formerly supported the local government, but whe now ask liberals to oppose it, is an attempt to strike at Mr. Blair from behind the hedges. It was not necessary for him to put on the housetop his friendship for Mr. Blair. In advocating the policy that provincial politics should not be run on don lines he was putting forward the docrine which Mr. Blair, Mr. Mitchell and Emmerson had put forward so forcibly for years in and out of the egislature—a policy which even Mr. Sowes now supports. The speaker was not trying to strike Mr. Blair either from behind or in the front. He had all along recognized the difficulty of Mr. Blairs' position in having conser-vatives like Messrs. Tweedle, Pugsley and Labillois dominate to a consider-able degree dominion liberal patronage, and he felt that he voiced the sentiients of very many liberals through the province in this regard. (Applause The Moncton Transcript recognize how the liberal party has suffere through the influence of the Tweedie-Puggley government, but it looks at times as though that staunch liberal journal would support the government if Messrs. Tweedie, Pugsley and La-billois would only call themselves librals and declare that their adminis-

thinks that the condition of things are as they were some 20 years ago, when liberals and conservatives united for a change of government at Fredericton. (Applause.)

In his setter to the Globe he (Mc-Dade) made no reflection upon any member of the local government. He thought it would have been bad tastefor him to have done sol. Now that he had been attacked and belittled by the party hacks, he felt that he might give some additional reasons why he could not see his way clear to support the present government. Many things had happened since Mr. Tweedle and Mr. Pugsley assumed the reins of power to lessen the public confidence. They had palliated the Rothesay forgery. (Applause.) They had passed legislation giving five per cent. to the attorney general for tling succession duties, when under Premier Blair, Premier Mitchell and half per cent. was charged for such work (applause) and they passed this legislation during the absence of one of their colleagues, who had been promised to have the settlement of such duties in lieu of portfolio recognition. (Applause.) They had paid in year to the attorney general of the province some $9,000—a sum larger than that received by the premier of Canada. They had also paid the leader of the government four times as much for travelling expenses as paid any other provincial secretary. These were some of the reasons why he could not see his way clear longer to support the present government. He had the same feeling of distrust in the present leaders that many of the business men of the province had, and he was sorry to find a feeling among that class that there was a danger that the laws of the land might be changed over night in the interest of the client did not wish to reflect upon ge like Messrs. Dunn, Farris, Hill and Labillois; but he had seen enough to Tweedle and Pugsley. There is one gentleman in the government — Mr. McKeown—who, if he recognized his power as his friends do, would have ong ago taken a leading place in the sovernment, Had he insisted upon his rights we might have had a real liberal government in power at Fred ton. He went into the governmen der Mr. Emmerson and his friends looked for his rapid advance-ment. Since Mr. Emmerson's re-tirement from provincial politics Mr.

clared that the present premier wrote honorable before his name by methods the most dishonorable. Neither does Attorney General Pugsley appear to have forgiven Mr. McKeown for his having reminded the legislature in 1890 what the St. John Globe said of him (Mr. Pugsley) when he was appointed to the office of solicitor general. This is what the Globe said on that occasion: "The question comes more strongly to the liberal mind when the administration is added to-we can scarcely say strengthened-by the admission of a person of the speculative nature and uncertain conservative proclivities of Mr. Pugsley. It is possible that under the control of a strong leader like Mr. Blair, the peculiar elements of Mr. Pugsley's political composition may be so moulded and kneaded that one need not fear for the government of the province, the safety of the provincial treasury or the security of liberal principles." (Applause.) (Applai Within a few months Mr. Pugsley called himself a conservative, an independent and a liberal. Premier Tweedie, after having been a conservative all his life, doing what he could to defeat the liberal candidate in Northumber land in the last election, he now asks the liberals of the province to save his government from destruction. His position and that of Mr. Pugsley is like that of the drowning infidel. was going down the last time the infidel cried out for help, that he was a believer in the Christian teaching. The man who might have rescued him shouted out: "It is the first time you were in a state of grace, and you may mever he in such a state again, so I will let you go." (Laughter and applause.) So I believe it will be with Messrs. Tweedle and Pugsley. If they are liberals now they may not be in "a state of grace" later, and it was his state of grace" later, and it was his honest belief that the liberals of the province will let them share the fate of the infidel. (Applause.)

In conclusion. Mr. McDade paid a splendid tribute to Mr. Mott, than whom he set to me.

Tweedie seems never to have forgiven Mr. McKeown for the speech the latter made at Andover in 1890, when he de-whom he said no more honorable man ever sat in the legislature of his native province.
