How the Singing of Yankee Fishermen Charmed a Twenty Foot Grampus.

Sch. Josie, 140 tons, Capt. Wyman, from Barbados with a full cargo of plasses for L. G. Crosby, reached St. John yesterday afternoon and anche the stream. The Josie was 24 days coming up. She had changeable weather all the way through. At the start N. and N. E. winds were the order from day to day. In lat 41.30 and lon. 67 the Josie ran in with an Amboard a crew full of music.

schooner boarded the fisherman, and during their festivities a grampus came alongside attracted, as nearly all the people thought, by the singing. The whale was about 20 feet long. The mate of the fisherman attempted harpoon the big fish, but the harpoon had no effect. After spending about half an hour alongside the fishing schooner the grampus departed. The Josie brought up five passengers and one stowaway in addition to her crew. The passengers are colored men and seem to be all right.
