

OBSEQUIES OF ENGLISH KINGS

Funeral Of King Edward Recalls Contrasts Of Simplicity And Magnificence — Henry V.'s Most Notable Occasion.

London, May 19.—The obsequies of the Kings and Queens of England have always been historic occasions reflecting the feelings of the nation, and as such the funerals of King Edward VII. and Queen Victoria will rank among the most notable.

The bluff old sailor King William IV. was much lamented and his body lay in state at Windsor for two days. One who was in an official position, used to relate the impression which it made upon his mind, especially the noble form of the good Duke of Sussex as he stood behind the coffin as chief mourner clad in a long black cloak thrown over his marshal's uniform. The nation's sorrow at the death of William showed a marked contrast to the feelings manifested at the funeral of George IV. Still, it was a time of great anxiety, for the Prime Minister, Lord Melbourne, was unpopular, and a young woman came to the throne with no knowledge of the affairs of state.

The funeral of George II. in the Abbey is described by Horace Walpole, who says he walked "as a rag of quality," in the procession, as "absolutely a noble sight." Dean Stanley tells us that William of Orange, "the least popular, but by his public acts one of the most deserving of monarchs was buried in the Abbey with the simplicity which he would have desired," but the funeral of his royal consort, Mary II. is memorable as having been attended by both Houses of Parliament. The Lords retired in scarlet and the Commons in long black mantles. No preceding sovereign had ever been attended to the grave by Parliament, for till then Parliament had always expiated with the movement of the day. Charles II. was very obscurely buried in the Abbey without any pomp, and was soon forgotten after all the vanity of his reign. His royal consort, Mary II. is memorable as having been attended by both Houses of Parliament. The Lords retired in scarlet and the Commons in long black mantles. No preceding sovereign had ever been attended to the grave by Parliament, for till then Parliament had always expiated with the movement of the day.

Charles II. was very obscurely buried in the Abbey without any pomp, and was soon forgotten after all the vanity of his reign. His royal consort, Mary II. is memorable as having been attended by both Houses of Parliament. The Lords retired in scarlet and the Commons in long black mantles. No preceding sovereign had ever been attended to the grave by Parliament, for till then Parliament had always expiated with the movement of the day.

The death of Queen Elizabeth was an occasion of national sorrow. Stow relates that the funeral took place on April 28, at which time the city of Westminster was surcharged with multitudes of all sorts of people in the streets, houses, windows, leads and gutters, that came to see the obsequies of their beloved Queen. When they beheld her statue upon the coffin set forth in royal robes, having a sceptre and a globe in her hands, there was such a general sighing, groaning and weeping as the like had not been known or seen in the memory of man. The funeral train was composed of 1,600 mourners.

The most notable of the funerals of England's sovereigns is beyond doubt that of King Henry V. Shakespeare immortalized it, when he pictured the nobles standing around the coffin, in words which may be aptly quoted at the grave of Edward the Peacemaker.

Hung be the heavens with black, yield day to night! Come, importing change of times and states, Branch'd your crystal tresses in the sky, And with their scourge the bad revolting stars.

That have consented unto Henry's death! Henry the Fifth, too famous to live long! England never had a king until his time!

Henry died at Vincennes in his thirty-fourth year, and his body was embalmed and deposited in Rouen Cathedral. Upon its removal it was placed on an open chariot drawn by four horses, and above it was placed a figure representing the King and painted to life. Upon the head was placed a crown and the body was clad in royal purple.

At Dover the Archbishops and Bishops met the procession and accompanied it to London, where the body was placed in state in St. Paul's Cathedral. Thence it was taken with much pomp. Three of the King's chargers were led up to the altar and banners were carried by great nobles. The King's son being an infant of only eight months, the chief mourner was James, King of Scotland. The tomb of Henry of Agincourt is still one of the sights of the Abbey. The last time that the Roman Catholic mass was celebrated at a royal funeral was at that of Queen Mary I., and the first English sovereign buried with the present English Episcopal service was Edward VI.

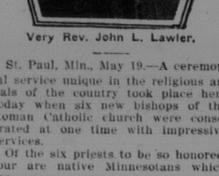

Six New Bishops at One Ceremony

Rt. Rev. Vincent Wehrle.

Rev. Jos. F. Busch.

Very Rev. Patrick Heffron.

Very Rev. John L. Lawler.

St. Paul, Minn., May 19.—A ceremonial service unique in the religious annals of the country took place here today when six new bishops of the Roman Catholic church were consecrated at one time with impressive services.

Of the six priests to be so honored, four are native Minnesotans which makes it appropriate that their promotion should be conducted in the historic old cathedral from whose predecessor, St. Paul's chapel, the state capital takes its name.

The new bishops are Rev. Timothy Corbett, Duluth, bishop of Crookston; Rt. Rev. Vincent Wehrle, Richardson, N. D., bishop of Bismarck; Rev. Jos. F. Busch, Excelsior, Minn., bishop of Lead; S. D.; Very Rev. John J. Lawler, St. Paul, bishop of St. Paul; Rev. Jas. O'Reilly, Minneapolis, bishop of Fargo, N. D.; and Very Rev. Patrick Heffron, St. Paul, bishop of Winona, Minn.

Among the visiting guides in the city yesterday was one gentleman who has attained an enviable reputation as a guide and a purveyor of the best to be had in the fish and game line. He is John Connell, of Chatham, the veteran guide who is held in high esteem by the hundreds of sportsmen whose guide and friend he has been during visits to the game and fish resorts of this province.

John, however, is deserving of special commendation as a sportsman and sportsman. He it was who hunted the North Shore wilds until he found a young moose and tamed it to eat out of his hand, haul water, cut the wood around the farm and do other chores while John was absent showing the haunts of big game to wealthy sportsmen as so much per show.

This tame moose was responsible in securing for the energetic guide much free advertising in the large papers of the United States. The animal's picture appeared in the tourist publications as an example of the sportsman and Mr. Connell benefited much thereby. His resources were not confined to the moose however. He had other wonders to show to his friends and incidentally to provide material for a quiet little joke, sometimes at their expense.

A Great Achievement. But all of Mr. Connell's adventures or achievements pale into insignificance in comparison with the story he told at the dinner to the guides held in Wilder's restaurant last night. Mr. Connell, be it understood, is a modest man. He was urged to tell the story but he did it against his will. So good is it, however, that it will bear repetition so that the sportsmen who have the honor of numbering Mr. Connell among their friends may learn of his exploit.

Some years ago he conceived the idea that a monster trout larger than anything ever seen before would prove a good attraction for the section of country where his camps are located. Nature did not provide one large enough, so Mr. Connell had one made to order.

Rubber was used in its construction and it was so lifelike that the ordinary fishermen would be calculated to have an attack of heart failure on looking at it. In fact this Broadwaggon of the fishy tribe, was nine feet long and built in proportion.

FRANCE Root Stands By President Taft

RICHARD A. BALLINGER

ELIHU ROOT.

Washington, May 19.—Indicating his firm conviction that a time had come when calm, hypocrisy and pretense should be put aside and words and actions should receive their plain meaning, Senator Root called a spade a spade at the Ballinger-Pinchot hearing yesterday. He made it clear that he has become convinced that the critics of the Interior Department, under the guise of promoting a movement for conserving natural resources are in fact bent upon a plot to malign the administration and place President Taft and his cabinet in a position of embarrassment before the nation.

Although the committee did not take formal action on the statement of Senator Root, a vote was taken which indicated that all the Republicans on the committee share the views expressed by the New York senator. The committee voted 7 to 4 to sustain Mr. Root's objection to a question asked by L. D. Brandeis, counsel for Elihu Root, which for its purpose bringing the President into the controversy.

Paris, May 19.—Some time ago it was announced that the ruler of Monaco was taking steps to eliminate his only son, Crown Prince Louis, born of his first marriage to Lady Mary Douglas Hamilton, now Countess Festetics, from the succession to his throne. The official gazette at Monte Carlo now formally announces that the crown prince has abandoned his rights of succession, and the question arises as to what is to become of Monaco on the death of its present sovereign.

Falling the crown prince and his daughter, a twelve-year-old girl, the throne of the principality would, according to its laws, devolve upon the German Duke of Urach, whose mother, Princess Florestine, was a sister of the late Prince of Monaco. But the Duke, who is married to a princess of the reigning house of Bavaria, and whose father was the offspring of a morganatic union between the royal duke and a commoner, is not only not an enthusiastic officer of the German army, commanding an important cavalry brigade.

While France has tolerated the existence of the nominally independent principality of Monaco on what is virtually part and parcel of its soil so long as the throne was occupied by a house of the old French aristocracy, namely, that of the Grimaldis, which she possessed through a marriage alliance with the only child and heir of the last of the Grimaldis, it could hardly afford to permit the establishment of a thoroughly German dynasty at Monte Carlo and its passing into the hands of a ruler who by his birth, marriage, affiliations and sympathies would not only be wholly subject to the influence of the Kaiser, but as an officer of the Kaiser's army, would undoubtedly bring the principality within the sphere of the Teutonic empire. Indeed Monaco under the Duke of Urach would afford an opportunity to Emperor William to secure a station on the Mediterranean of incalculable value to his navy and which would necessitate a change in the maritime and land defenses of France.

Inasmuch, therefore, as France could not possibly tolerate the duke's political influence, but, as an officer of his very pronounced religious sentiments and great piety he is understood to be firmly opposed.

In the anticipations of the completion of the canal, the duke's prospects are that the programme for this year will be one of the most brilliant and will probably be attended by the largest crowd in the history of the university.

The anniversary functions begin Saturday evening, May 28th, with a concert in College Hall by an instrumental sextette.

Sunday, May 29th, at 11 a. m., the baccalaureate sermon will be preached by Rev. R. S. McArthur, D. D., of Calvary Baptist church, New York. At 7:00 p. m. an address, under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A., will be given in the College Hall by Professor Cross of Newton Theological Seminary.

Monday, May 30th, the closing exercises of Horton Collegiate Academy will take place in College Hall at 7:30 p. m.

Tuesday, May 31st, the class day exercises of the college graduating class will be held at 10 a. m. Then at 7:00 p. m. the annual business meeting of the Alumni Association; at 10 a. m., the graduating exercises of Acadia College.

Otherwise The Principality Under The German Duke Of Urach Would Become A Possession Of The Kaiser.

Paris, May 19.—Some time ago it was announced that the ruler of Monaco was taking steps to eliminate his only son, Crown Prince Louis, born of his first marriage to Lady Mary Douglas Hamilton, now Countess Festetics, from the succession to his throne. The official gazette at Monte Carlo now formally announces that the crown prince has abandoned his rights of succession, and the question arises as to what is to become of Monaco on the death of its present sovereign.

Falling the crown prince and his daughter, a twelve-year-old girl, the throne of the principality would, according to its laws, devolve upon the German Duke of Urach, whose mother, Princess Florestine, was a sister of the late Prince of Monaco. But the Duke, who is married to a princess of the reigning house of Bavaria, and whose father was the offspring of a morganatic union between the royal duke and a commoner, is not only not an enthusiastic officer of the German army, commanding an important cavalry brigade.

While France has tolerated the existence of the nominally independent principality of Monaco on what is virtually part and parcel of its soil so long as the throne was occupied by a house of the old French aristocracy, namely, that of the Grimaldis, which she possessed through a marriage alliance with the only child and heir of the last of the Grimaldis, it could hardly afford to permit the establishment of a thoroughly German dynasty at Monte Carlo and its passing into the hands of a ruler who by his birth, marriage, affiliations and sympathies would not only be wholly subject to the influence of the Kaiser, but as an officer of the Kaiser's army, would undoubtedly bring the principality within the sphere of the Teutonic empire. Indeed Monaco under the Duke of Urach would afford an opportunity to Emperor William to secure a station on the Mediterranean of incalculable value to his navy and which would necessitate a change in the maritime and land defenses of France.

Inasmuch, therefore, as France could not possibly tolerate the duke's political influence, but, as an officer of his very pronounced religious sentiments and great piety he is understood to be firmly opposed.

In the anticipations of the completion of the canal, the duke's prospects are that the programme for this year will be one of the most brilliant and will probably be attended by the largest crowd in the history of the university.

The anniversary functions begin Saturday evening, May 28th, with a concert in College Hall by an instrumental sextette.

Sunday, May 29th, at 11 a. m., the baccalaureate sermon will be preached by Rev. R. S. McArthur, D. D., of Calvary Baptist church, New York. At 7:00 p. m. an address, under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A., will be given in the College Hall by Professor Cross of Newton Theological Seminary.

Monday, May 30th, the closing exercises of Horton Collegiate Academy will take place in College Hall at 7:30 p. m.

Tuesday, May 31st, the class day exercises of the college graduating class will be held at 10 a. m. Then at 7:00 p. m. the annual business meeting of the Alumni Association; at 10 a. m., the graduating exercises of Acadia College.

At 1 p. m., the Alumni Banquet, at St. John's, will be held in the hall of the sportsman gazed at the big fish for a second and then sank to the bank.

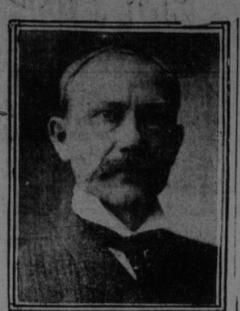

"Great heavens," he said, "I haven't got a thing in my left hand to big enough to hold that fellow." By this time the guide had succeeded in restoring his face to some semblance of gravity and advised his guest to try again. The kit was overhauled and with the largest hook in the lot Mr. Davis tried once more. No result. He advised the guest to try again. The kit was overhauled and with the largest hook in the lot Mr. Davis tried once more. No result. He advised the guest to try again.

Then Mr. Connell pressed the nose again. This time the huge "fish" rose within a few inches of the fisherman and fearful that he might meet the same fate as Jonah, he stepped back, lost his footing and went to the bottom of the pool. The rubber wading breeches, filled with air, quickly brought his feet to the surface while his head was nosing around for the trout at the bottom.

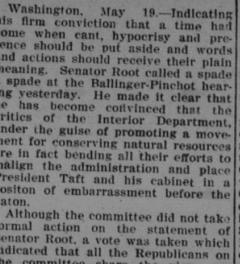

Mr. Connell was forced to call for assistance else his guest would have drowned. During the remainder of his stay on the North Shore he could not be induced to try that pool again, although he admitted that the fish there were larger than any he found in any other spot.

Malone, N. Y., May 19.—Following a cold rain Wednesday afternoon and evening snow began to fall throughout the Adirondacks about midnight and continued steadily until sunrise today. There is about two inches of snow on the level in the woods and the hills are as white as in winter.

The schooner Romeo and Helen G. King cleared yesterday for Fall River and Quincy respectively with lumber cargoes shipped by Stearns, Cutler and Co.

RICHARD A. BALLINGER

ELIHU ROOT.

Washington, May 19.—Indicating his firm conviction that a time had come when calm, hypocrisy and pretense should be put aside and words and actions should receive their plain meaning, Senator Root called a spade a spade at the Ballinger-Pinchot hearing yesterday. He made it clear that he has become convinced that the critics of the Interior Department, under the guise of promoting a movement for conserving natural resources are in fact bent upon a plot to malign the administration and place President Taft and his cabinet in a position of embarrassment before the nation.

Although the committee did not take formal action on the statement of Senator Root, a vote was taken which indicated that all the Republicans on the committee share the views expressed by the New York senator. The committee voted 7 to 4 to sustain Mr. Root's objection to a question asked by L. D. Brandeis, counsel for Elihu Root, which for its purpose bringing the President into the controversy.

Paris, May 19.—Some time ago it was announced that the ruler of Monaco was taking steps to eliminate his only son, Crown Prince Louis, born of his first marriage to Lady Mary Douglas Hamilton, now Countess Festetics, from the succession to his throne. The official gazette at Monte Carlo now formally announces that the crown prince has abandoned his rights of succession, and the question arises as to what is to become of Monaco on the death of its present sovereign.

Falling the crown prince and his daughter, a twelve-year-old girl, the throne of the principality would, according to its laws, devolve upon the German Duke of Urach, whose mother, Princess Florestine, was a sister of the late Prince of Monaco. But the Duke, who is married to a princess of the reigning house of Bavaria, and whose father was the offspring of a morganatic union between the royal duke and a commoner, is not only not an enthusiastic officer of the German army, commanding an important cavalry brigade.

While France has tolerated the existence of the nominally independent principality of Monaco on what is virtually part and parcel of its soil so long as the throne was occupied by a house of the old French aristocracy, namely, that of the Grimaldis, which she possessed through a marriage alliance with the only child and heir of the last of the Grimaldis, it could hardly afford to permit the establishment of a thoroughly German dynasty at Monte Carlo and its passing into the hands of a ruler who by his birth, marriage, affiliations and sympathies would not only be wholly subject to the influence of the Kaiser, but as an officer of the Kaiser's army, would undoubtedly bring the principality within the sphere of the Teutonic empire. Indeed Monaco under the Duke of Urach would afford an opportunity to Emperor William to secure a station on the Mediterranean of incalculable value to his navy and which would necessitate a change in the maritime and land defenses of France.

Inasmuch, therefore, as France could not possibly tolerate the duke's political influence, but, as an officer of his very pronounced religious sentiments and great piety he is understood to be firmly opposed.

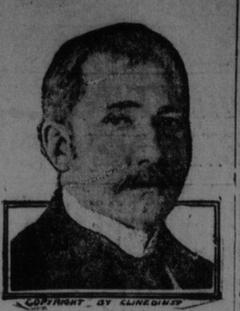

In the anticipations of the completion of the canal, the duke's prospects are that the programme for this year will be one of the most brilliant and will probably be attended by the largest crowd in the history of the university.

The anniversary functions begin Saturday evening, May 28th, with a concert in College Hall by an instrumental sextette.

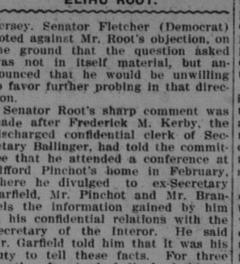

Sunday, May 29th, at 11 a. m., the baccalaureate sermon will be preached by Rev. R. S. McArthur, D. D., of Calvary Baptist church, New York. At 7:00 p. m. an address, under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A., will be given in the College Hall by Professor Cross of Newton Theological Seminary.

Monday, May 30th, the closing exercises of Horton Collegiate Academy will take place in College Hall at 7:30 p. m.

Tuesday, May 31st, the class day exercises of the college graduating class will be held at 10 a. m. Then at 7:00 p. m. the annual business meeting of the Alumni Association; at 10 a. m., the graduating exercises of Acadia College.

RICHARD A. BALLINGER

ELIHU ROOT.

Washington, May 19.—Indicating his firm conviction that a time had come when calm, hypocrisy and pretense should be put aside and words and actions should receive their plain meaning, Senator Root called a spade a spade at the Ballinger-Pinchot hearing yesterday. He made it clear that he has become convinced that the critics of the Interior Department, under the guise of promoting a movement for conserving natural resources are in fact bent upon a plot to malign the administration and place President Taft and his cabinet in a position of embarrassment before the nation.

Although the committee did not take formal action on the statement of Senator Root, a vote was taken which indicated that all the Republicans on the committee share the views expressed by the New York senator. The committee voted 7 to 4 to sustain Mr. Root's objection to a question asked by L. D. Brandeis, counsel for Elihu Root, which for its purpose bringing the President into the controversy.

Paris, May 19.—Some time ago it was announced that the ruler of Monaco was taking steps to eliminate his only son, Crown Prince Louis, born of his first marriage to Lady Mary Douglas Hamilton, now Countess Festetics, from the succession to his throne. The official gazette at Monte Carlo now formally announces that the crown prince has abandoned his rights of succession, and the question arises as to what is to become of Monaco on the death of its present sovereign.

Falling the crown prince and his daughter, a twelve-year-old girl, the throne of the principality would, according to its laws, devolve upon the German Duke of Urach, whose mother, Princess Florestine, was a sister of the late Prince of Monaco. But the Duke, who is married to a princess of the reigning house of Bavaria, and whose father was the offspring of a morganatic union between the royal duke and a commoner, is not only not an enthusiastic officer of the German army, commanding an important cavalry brigade.

While France has tolerated the existence of the nominally independent principality of Monaco on what is virtually part and parcel of its soil so long as the throne was occupied by a house of the old French aristocracy, namely, that of the Grimaldis, which she possessed through a marriage alliance with the only child and heir of the last of the Grimaldis, it could hardly afford to permit the establishment of a thoroughly German dynasty at Monte Carlo and its passing into the hands of a ruler who by his birth, marriage, affiliations and sympathies would not only be wholly subject to the influence of the Kaiser, but as an officer of the Kaiser's army, would undoubtedly bring the principality within the sphere of the Teutonic empire. Indeed Monaco under the Duke of Urach would afford an opportunity to Emperor William to secure a station on the Mediterranean of incalculable value to his navy and which would necessitate a change in the maritime and land defenses of France.

Inasmuch, therefore, as France could not possibly tolerate the duke's political influence, but, as an officer of his very pronounced religious sentiments and great piety he is understood to be firmly opposed.

In the anticipations of the completion of the canal, the duke's prospects are that the programme for this year will be one of the most brilliant and will probably be attended by the largest crowd in the history of the university.

The anniversary functions begin Saturday evening, May 28th, with a concert in College Hall by an instrumental sextette.

Sunday, May 29th, at 11 a. m., the baccalaureate sermon will be preached by Rev. R. S. McArthur, D. D., of Calvary Baptist church, New York. At 7:00 p. m. an address, under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A., will be given in the College Hall by Professor Cross of Newton Theological Seminary.

Monday, May 30th, the closing exercises of Horton Collegiate Academy will take place in College Hall at 7:30 p. m.

Tuesday, May 31st, the class day exercises of the college graduating class will be held at 10 a. m. Then at 7:00 p. m. the annual business meeting of the Alumni Association; at 10 a. m., the graduating exercises of Acadia College.

INTERNATIONAL UNION FAVORED

Business Men In Peace Conference At Lake Mohonk Prepare Resolution Endorsing Roosevelt's Idea Of Court.

Lake Mohonk, N. Y., May 19.—The business men's association of the Lake Mohonk conference on international arbitration representing between 50 and 60 chambers of commerce in the United States and Canada, adopted a declaration today to be presented to the conference tomorrow in part as follows:

"The business interests of the world are keenly alive to the abnormal conditions that from time to time destroy the confidence of peoples and interrupt the workings of their industry. The greatest and most distinctive of these are those of the apprehension or the possibility of realization of war. Nothing can be of greater importance than such agencies as will prevent these conditions from arising or will quickly end them when arising do appear.

"Among these agencies the first in importance are those that develop mutual confidence and respect and beget a love of justice and a devotion to the right. We reaffirm our conviction that commerce is and will increasingly continue to be a powerful factor in preserving the peace of the world.

"We hold that justice and righteousness are pre-requisite conditions to true business prosperity and while we recognize that arbitration of disputes between individuals and nations is the best means yet available for settling them, we regard as but an intermediate step on the way to the final consummation to be found in an international union whose court of justice will be the final court of the world from whose decision there can be no appeal."

Reference Made In Public Schools To Death Of Late King—Rev. D. McOdrum Is Presented With Purse.

Moncton, N. B., May 19.—Memorial services for the late king were conducted in the different schools this afternoon, appropriate addresses being delivered by school teachers, trustees and local clergymen. Among the speakers at the civic memorial service tomorrow will be the Rev. D. McOdrum, U. S. Consul. Services will be held during the afternoon in the city churches and the local Orange Lodge and Scotch and English will meet in a special service.

Rev. Donald MacOdum, pastor of the Presbyterian church here, who has shortly to attend the World's Missionary Convention in 1910, was tonight presented by his congregation with a purse of $300.

John A. Hall, Who Stole $104,000 From Southbridge Bank, Pleads Guilty—Gave Away Large Amount.

Worcester, Mass., May 19.—After a plea of guilty to an indictment charging the larceny of $104,000 from the Southbridge Savings Bank, and a subsequent recital of his disposal to charities, relatives and in bad investments of a sum of money which he estimated at $270,000, A. Hall, defaulting treasurer of the bank, was sentenced by Judge Robt. Raymond in the superior court today to serve not less than 12, nor more than 15 years in the state prison at Charlestown. One day of this sentence is to be passed in solitary confinement.

Paris, May 19.—The members of the Chinese mission, which is headed by Prince Tai Tsao, visited the French aviation station at Issy, near Paris, yesterday, and found a number of budding aviators busy tuning up the machines. The Chinese officials were immediately bombarded by offers of flights, but all declined, one adding that he had no intention of dying at present.

Alfred le Blanc made a splendid flight, which the Chinese cheered in European fashion. Later they visited the military airship sheds, where they showed a marked preference for the dirigibles. Two of their number made an ascension in the Astra, one of the Government's large dirigibles.

New London, Conn., May 19.—Arrived—Schr Vineyard, St. John NB for New York; Eva May, Calais for New York.

City Island, N. Y., May 19.—Bound south—Schr Harry Miller, St. John, N.B.

Found east—Str Hird, New York for Amherst.

HAS PARALYTIC STROKE. Frederick, May 19.—Wm. McKinnon, an aged resident of the city, was seized with a serious paralytic stroke at his home on York street. He was for many years and was superannuated when the present retirement regulations came into force some years ago.

TELEPHONE CO. HAS GOOD YEAR

(Continued from page one) this continues to increase the earning possibilities of the company.

Financial Statement. Assets: Plant, $1,266,728.18; Real estate and buildings, $4,623,056.51; Miscellaneous equipment, $5,541.35; Supplies, $29,279.17; Cash in bank and on hand, $8,084.14; Accounts receivable, $6,904.04; Rentals and tolls outstanding, $21,292.31; Total, $1,293,472.74.

Liabilities: Capital stock, $1,175,960.00; Debentures, $10,000.00; Bank of British North America, $10,525.54; Reserve for depreciation, $2,061.52; Accounts payable, $2,912.61; Interest accrued, $1,250.00; Dividends declared, March 17, 1910, $37,278.80; Total, $1,287,998.47; Surplus, $5,474.27.

Grand total, $1,293,472.74. Current Account. Earnings: Rentals, $173,477.95; Tolls, $7,243.71; Miscellaneous, $1,616.98; Total, $182,338.64. Expenses: Operating, $60,862.52; Maintenance, $48,993.10; General, $33,421.65; Reconstruction, $2,656.40; Depreciation, $4,090.90; Total, $149,924.57; Net earnings, $32,374.07.

Profit and Loss. Credit: By surplus March 31, 1910, $33,728.90; Less dividend paid May 1, 1910, $29,899.00; Net surplus, $3,829.90. By net earnings for year 1910 provided for all expenses and allowances for depreciation, $67,019.97; Total, $70,849.87; Debt: To interest on debentures, $5,000.00; To dividend Oct. 15th 1910, $35,278.80; To dividend declared March 17, 1910, $37,557.70; Total, $77,836.50; Carried forward—$4,742.27.

ADVENTUROUS TALE OF A 9-FOOT TROUT

John Connell, the Guide, Gives Boston Sportsman His Money's Worth—Thrilling Experience on the North Shore.

Among the visiting guides in the city yesterday was one gentleman who has attained an enviable reputation as a guide and a purveyor of the best to be had in the fish and game line. He is John Connell, of Chatham, the veteran guide who is held in high esteem by the hundreds of sportsmen whose guide and friend he has been during visits to the game and fish resorts of this province.

John, however, is deserving of special commendation as a sportsman and sportsman. He it was who hunted the North Shore wilds until he found a young moose and tamed it to eat out of his hand, haul water, cut the wood around the farm and do other chores while John was absent showing the haunts of big game to wealthy sportsmen as so much per show.

This tame moose was responsible in securing for the energetic guide much free advertising in the large papers of the United States. The animal's picture appeared in the tourist publications as an example of the sportsman and Mr. Connell benefited much thereby. His resources were not confined to the moose however. He had other wonders to show to his friends and incidentally to provide material for a quiet little joke, sometimes at their expense.

A Great Achievement. But all of Mr. Connell's adventures or achievements pale into insignificance in comparison with the story he told at the dinner to the guides held in Wilder's restaurant last night. Mr. Connell, be it understood, is a modest man. He was urged to tell the story but he did it against his will. So good is it, however, that it will bear repetition so that the sportsmen who have the honor of numbering Mr. Connell among their friends may learn of his exploit.

TWO INCHES OF SNOW IN ADIRONACKS

Malone, N. Y., May 19.—Following a cold rain Wednesday afternoon and evening snow began to fall throughout the Adirondacks about midnight and continued steadily until sunrise today.

The schooner Romeo and Helen G. King cleared yesterday for Fall River and Quincy respectively with lumber cargoes shipped by Stearns, Cutler and Co.

FOR ACADIA HAMILTON HAS NEW INDUSTRY

Preparations Well Advanced For Closing Exercises Which Begin With Concert On Saturday The 28th Inst.

Wolfrillo, N. S., May 19.—Preparations for anniversary exercises of Acadia are well advanced. The prospects are that the programme for this year will be one of the most brilliant and will probably be attended by the largest crowd in the history of the university.

The anniversary functions begin Saturday evening, May 28th, with a concert in College Hall by an instrumental sextette.

Sunday, May 29th, at 11 a. m., the baccalaureate sermon will be preached by Rev. R. S. McArthur, D. D., of Calvary Baptist church, New York. At 7:00 p. m. an address, under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A., will be given in the College Hall by Professor Cross of Newton Theological Seminary.

Monday, May 30th, the closing exercises of Horton Collegiate Academy will take place in College Hall at 7:30 p. m.