The Subject of an Interview With Explorer Baldwin.

New York, Sept. 6-Evelyn B. Baldwin, who has participated in various Arctic versation today with a representative of return from the Arctic regions of the Italian expedition, said:

"The achievements of the young Duke of Abruzzi in exceeding Dr. Nansen's highest north is a matter of deep interest. It proves that a dash to the pole is as feasible as an effort to reach it by the long continued drift plan or by the establishment of relay stations. The young duke has moreover clearly demonstrated that it does not require 'a physical giant' to achieve success in the field of explora-to achieve success in the field of exploration."

Upon being asked whether in the event of the failure of the other Peary and Sverdrup expeditions to attain the pole,
he would again undertake such a voyage,
Mr. Baldwin replied:

"Yes, in that event the year 1901 will again find me within the Arctic circle.
My plans are being carefully matured
and through the generousity of Americans whose names are well-known in the financial world I shall be in a position to enter the race—with the pole merely as inancial world I shall be in a position to enter the race—with the pole merely as a goal. Science and art are also to bear no small part in the effort. The expedition will be thoroughly equipped."

Edison Promises the World a Machine Which Grinds Out Electricity.

New York, Aug. 31-The electrical world today is marvelling at what is be-lieved to be Thomas A. Edison's greatest nvention, namely, a machine for the gen-ration of electricity without engine and dynamos.

This machine, if successful—generating an electric current as simply as steam is generated in a boiler—will in all proba-bility revolutionize all known methods of propulsion.

This atest and greatest machine of the famous wizard is the result of ex-periments extending over a period of years and realizes his ambitions voiced prophetically six years ago.

It is a contrivance to generate electrical power directly from coal. If Mr. Edison's expectations are borne out, the passing of the steam engine is now in sight.

The details of the new electrical wonder have not yet been announced, but it is said they are ready to be made public in a few days.

The new plan, it is asserted, will not The new plan, it is asserted, will not only revolutionize travel both on land and sea, supplanting the throbbing triple expansion engines of the liner with a small oil stove and the monster boiler of the ponderous locomotive with a light cylinder, but also revolutionize the use of electricity in homes and offices.

The new machine is simple and inexpensive. It can be operated anywhere and under all conditions; in an automobile or an ocean liner, in a barn or power house.
