

be blamed for this but only time with intercourse with others can change this. The people seem thus thrown on what they can get from their little farms with the help of fishing & hunting. They have no stock or supplies from the past.

The previous plagues of Grasshoppers have been very trying and have reduced their cattle to a small number as they can well go on with.

When then it is considered that the Grasshopper last year did not allow a single crop of any kind to rise out of the ground and that the Fishery last Fall was a failure it is a matter of surprise how they have hitherto provided
