

After this first partial session the college moved to a house on Queen street opposite St. Andrew's church, and its staff was increased by the appointment of Rev. Doctor Williamson to the chair of Mathematics and Physics. It was at this stage that Sir Richard Bonnycastle, on having the building pointed out to him by the Principal, said that it was the rummest college he ever saw, and undoubtedly he was right. But it is not well to despise the day of small things.

The following is a copy of the public notice of the first meeting and opening of Queen's:—

NOTICE
QUEEN'S COLLEGE
KINGSTON

It is hereby publicly intimated that the first session of Queen's College, Kingston, will be opened on the first Monday of March next, and that the Professors who have been appointed will begin to teach classes for the following branches of study:

LATIN AND GREEK
MATHEMATICS
AND NATURAL PHILOSOPHY
LOGIC AND MORAL PHILOSOPHY
Theology, Church History and Oriental Languages.

It is particularly requested that ~~those~~ those who, for some time past, may have been expecting, according to previous announcements, an earlier opening of the first session, and which has been prevented by circumstances over which neither the Trustees nor the Professors have had any control, will lose no time, after the appearance of this advertisement, in intimating their intention to enroll themselves as students. Communications from students or their friends as to enrolment may be made either personally or in writing, previous to the day of commencement, to Alexander Pringle, Esq., secretary to the Trustees of Queen's College, Kingston, who will also give in-
