COLLEGE RESIDENCE
THE DAYS OF TWENTY YEARS AGO AT TORONTO UNIVERSITY.

Demands For Rooms Always Outran the Accommodations—Residence Students the Gentlemen of the University—How "Scotty" Played the Role of the Ghost and Had the Tables Turned on Him.

In the old days, twenty years ago, Toronto University had a residence, housing forty students, the pick of the land, says a writer in the Toronto Sunday World. Parents who knew the ways of English boarding schools, and some whose information was got only from Tom Brown's Schooldays, and could afford it, sent their sons first to Upper Canada College, and then, on their matriculation, to University residence. Reared in homes that exuded an atmosphere of refinement, trained on college fields in all manly exercises, and imbued with high ideals of life, these residence students were par excellence the gentlemen of the University.

Applications for rooms in residence were made, the accommodation was scarce was popular. It became the custom for an Upper Canada College student, long before he had matriculated, to apply for a room in residence. Even after he had entered the University, and had become a resident, the rivalry for rooms lived on. His chum, let us say, was Brown, but Jones roomed next to Brown. Then it became the object of our student's life to get the room Jones occupied, so that he might be near Brown. Perhaps Jones was a senior, and the term was nearly over. Then our student would apply for the room already occupied. The first applicant, other things being equal, got the room. With this preliminary, let us come to the story.

In the fall of the year 1884, Tom Darling was taken ill with typhoid fever. He was a third-year medical student, and one of the most popular in residence. He was a stone wall as half-back in the Association football team, and was needed to help in a certain match, now drawing near, that would decide the championship of the league. As the days went by, that kept Tom in his bed, the inquiries from students regarding his health became so numerous that the Dean of residence daily posted up, on the outer door of the Third House, a bulletin specifying the exact condition of the patient. In a week it was announced that Tom could not get well. There was sorrow in the student body everywhere. The residence men were particularly saddened, and an unusual quiet fell upon them. Tom passed to his reward on Nov. 1, 1884. His room, No. 34, on the second floor, facing the quadrangle, and was draped by the students for the three days with his death till he was buried. From the quad one could look up to the window in the hall of which Tom's room ran, and all the time students enter the death chamber to take a last look at Tom.

The funeral over, the resident students in knots of five and six gathered in some fellow's room, and in a tone talked of the exploits of the dead. In room No. 1, in the First House, had met "Scotty" Henderson, Phil Cane and Mac Young. Scotty was a tough bit of a Welshman from Oshawa, quick-tempered and known to everyone as the fastest printer at college. On this particular night his gloomy face showed he had a grievance. He was on the point of airing it to his fellows, when he was interrupted by his door being opened. Big, rawboned, blue-eyed Charlie Caldwell, a freshman, half entered and waited an invitation to join the three. His appearance was like red rag, shaken before the eyes of an infuriated bull. Scotty jumped up, ran over to Caldwell, and shouted in his face, "Get out of here, you cad! We don't want any sacrilegious juvenile mixing with us. Go down and interrupt the waiters." And, without a word to the word, Caldwell, being too surprised to resist, Scotty bodied him out of the room and locked the door.

When Caldwell's long, easy-going steps had taken away along the hall, Phil Cane and Mac Young interrupted the angry Scotty's promenading about the room, to ask what it was all about. "What has the kid done?" they asked.

Caldwell, punctuated with highly-colored denunciations of the meanness of Caldwell, Scotty informed the two, that the freshman, on the very day of Tom Darling's death, had made application for room 34 in the Third House in order that he might be near John McLennan, who had No. 35. "Asked for Tom's room before the poor old fellow was dead," snorted Scotty. "That's what the low-born cad did."

One night, at the end of the week, Scotty broke into Phil Cane's room, where Mac Young sat half buried in a huge armchair, with his feet on the mantel over the roaring fire in the grate. Phil was working. Mac was smoking. Scotty was excited. He had a scheme. He proposed that very night to "scare the leather-livered Caldwell out of a year's growth" by playing ghost. He dilated on his method of revenge for the slight offered to his dead chum, till he won over his two comrades to take a part in it.

Let us leave Phil and Mac at the door of Caldwell's room at 11 p.m., and go with Scotty as he scurries along the corridor to the physical laboratory, joining the First House. Scotty had laid his plans deep. Joe Bowers, the lecturer in physics, was in the laboratory, and greeted Scotty with, "Well, how goes the game? Got everything ready?" For answer, Scotty threw down a bundle containing some old clothes and a sheet, and remarked, "Phil and Mac are wrestling with the cad this very minute. We'll scare him to death." The two worked on for an hour, with phosphorus, paint and flour. Scotty got into his old clothes. The sheet

POOLS USE WASHES AND SNUFFS.

Thinking perhaps they will cure Carruth, but no one ever heard of a genuine cure following such senseless treatments. There is just one prompt and thorough cure for Carruth and it is fragrant, healing Carruthozone which goes right to the root of the trouble. It destroys the germs, heals the inflamed membranes and cures any case no matter how obstinate or long standing. "I experimented for years with Carruth remedies but found Carruthozone the most rational and satisfactory," writes W. J. MacEachern, of Waterville. "It cured me for all time." For a sure cure use only Carruthozone. Complete outfit, $1.00; trial size 25c.

PNEUMONIA IS FILLING THE HOSPITALS.

Every day we hear of someone being taken with pneumonia. The only preventive is to get strong and keep your body healthy. Take Ferrozone which makes the rich, red kind of blood that nourishes and stimulates the entire system. "I was all run down and an apt subject for pneumonia," writes A. B. Charters, of Burlington, when I tried Ferrozone. I didn't believe it was possible for Ferrozone to build me up so quickly. In a few days my appetite improved, color came into my cheeks and I felt stronger. I gained eight pounds and regained my old time vigor through using Ferrozone." Try Ferrozone; it assures health. Price 50c.

Where It Always Rains.

There is a group of islands to the south of New Zealand, called the Sisters, or Seven Sisters, which are reputed to be subjected to a practically constant rainfall. The same may be said of the islands and mainland of Tierra del Fuego, saving for the difference that rain often takes the form of sleet and snow. It would be running round the world from four to 8 or 9 degrees, there are patches over which rain seldom ceases to fall. This is called the "zone of constant precipitation," but at the same time there are several localities along it with very little rainfall.

THE WORST KIND.

After Piles have existed for a long time and passed through different stages, the suffering is intense—pain, itching, throbbing, smarting, and finally to bursting with blood. The symptoms indicating other troubles may appear to a thoroughly Pile-sick person.

Whiskey Medicines.

The temperance press is emphasizing the danger to the home in the use of "medicines" which are loaded with whiskey or alcohol. In this respect, as well as in the remarkable character of their cures, Dr. Pierce's medicines differ from other preparations. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and "Favorite Prescription" contains no alcohol, whiskey or other intoxicant, and are equally free from opium, cocaine and other narcotics. Every family should have a copy of the People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, sent absolutely free, on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing and customs. Send 31 one-cent stamps for the book in paper covers, or 30 stamps for cloth binding. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

CREDIT DUE TO SOMEBODY.

Where Did We Get the Right to Borrow in Mathematics? "Where did we get the right to borrow in mathematics?" asked a man who takes an interest in curious things. "We always pay back—a thing we sometimes fail to do in other relationships in life—but where did we get the right to borrow in the first instance? Take a simple illustration in subtraction: The teacher will tell the pupil to subtract 4,322 from 6,421. We put the problem down after this fashion:

-4,322

2,099

Here we have the problem and the result. We know that we cannot say "two from one." So we borrow one and say "two from eleven," and we get the result "nine." We pay back promptly; for instead of saying "two from eleven" we say "two from twelve." But by what authority do we say this? When did we discover that this method would give us correct mathematical results? That's what I would like to know. How we have one of the problems which the doctrine of evolution may deal with. I suppose some old fellow in the long ago found that it was necessary to devise a method of meeting this mathematical emergency, so he hit upon the idea of borrowing from one row of figures and paying back to the next, and so met and conquered a very serious difficulty. The idea originated with some one, and to that some one we owe something. Mathematics would be a meaningless science without this convenient plan, just as other things would be useless but for the clever inventions of men who have gone before. There is the thing, for instance, which stands for nothing, the naught, that rounds off the famous prison. We know how they calculated before it came into existence. But I will not tell you about it now. I was speaking about the borrowing habit in mathematics, and that is enough to think about at one time. Do you know how and when it originated?"

Killing Sharks by Electricity.

In the British navy the engineers have a curious way of killing sharks. They seal up a dynamite cartridge in an empty can and put the can inside a lump of pork. The pork is thrown overboard on a wire which has been connected with an electric battery. When the shark takes the bait, the engineer presses a button, which explodes the cartridge and kills the fish.

To Rebuild Brooklyn Bridge.

New York, Dec. 25.—The bridge commissioners recommend the rebuilding of the Brooklyn bridge at a cost of $3,500,000. The work could be done without suspending traffic, but it is recommended that it be postponed until the Manhattan bridge is open.

NEURALGIC HEADACHE IS USUALLY

Attended with blinding pain, but relief comes quickly when Nerviline is applied. For it is the strongest pain-reliever in the world. "I consider Nerviline a most magical remedy for neuralgia. I am subject to violent attacks," writes Mes. E. G. Harries, Baltimore, but never worry if Nerviline is in the house. The prompt relief of Nerviline brings makes it priceless to me. A few applications never yet failed to kill the pain. I can also recommend Nerviline for stiffness in the joints and rheumatism." Try Nerviline yourself. Price 25c.

Mrs. Cobwiger—How is it you have lately brought home so many bad reports from school for being mischievous?

Freddie—Oh, well! The new teacher is cross-eyed.

The shadowing process doesn't require a detective to stand in his own light.
