Indian Hemp and Cataplay.
 A single grain of the resin of Indian hemp will produce cataplay in a man. A few hours are required for the effects to reach a climax, when his limbs may be placed in almost any position without difficulty, and when once placed they remain in the given position indefinitely, although the natural influence of gravity would cause them to fall. During the cataplay the body is usually insensible to all impressions—exchange.

WHEN IT'S HOT.

Add Your Own Idea to These Pictures of Oppressive Heat.

"Suppose we describe in turn the scene that our fancy pictures as illustrating our notion of oppressive heat," said one of a party discussing the extremes of weather. "What do we think of—that time, what place, what conditions?"

The suggestion was received with favor, and here are some of the responses:

"A new concrete sidewalk at noon, with the sun beating down on it and your heels sinking in, and the heat reflected in your face, and the air pervaded with the smell of tar."

"The desert, with an exhausted caravan struggling to reach a mirage that hovers on the horizon, but doomed to perish of thirst, as parched, the man and the animal whose bleated bones they are passing."

"Washing dishes in the kitchen, with the thermometer at 95 out of doors and a hundred and something within, with your hands so scalded and greasy that you can't lift them to your face to wipe away the perspiration, and with your whole being so tired and cross and miserable that you would cry—if you were not ashamed to."

"The deck of a becalmed yacht, with a glassy sea and a long, slow roll and the brasswork so hot that it burns your hand, the sun high, the sky cloudless, the sails hanging, with not a breath to stir them, the victim prostrate and catatonic, with no consciousness in the present except of heat and nausea and no expectation for the future but sunstroke."

"Standing alone in the middle of a broad, hot field that is flaming with scarlet lilies, with no sound save the notes of the grasshoppers and the locusts."

"Noon on a country road which lies between treeless, barren fields, with no living thing in sight but an ox team lumbering slowly on its way in a cloud of yellow dust."

"A night in August when coolness has not come with darkness, when you cannot sleep and can hardly breathe and when it seems that morning would never come."

Do You Open Your Mouth
 Like a young bird and gulp down what over food or medicine may be offered you? Or, do you want to know something of the composition and character of that which you take into your stomach whether as food or medicine?

Most intelligent and sensible people now-a-days insist on knowing what they employ whether as food or as medicine. Dr. Pierce believes they have a perfect right to insist upon such knowledge. So he publishes broadcast and on each bottle wrapper, what his medicines are made of and what he would say to the people.

Antiquity of Tennis.
 Among all the popular games of today none perhaps is of greater antiquity than tennis, for it is said to have originated in the ball games of the ancient Greeks and Romans. In the first place the ball was struck by the hand, later on heavy gloves were worn or cords strapped round the palm, and the racket was contrived during the fifteenth century in France, where the game was very popular, and thence introduced into England—London Captain.

WOMAN'S WORLD

MISS MAUDE EARL.
 One of the Cleverest Animal Painters of the Day.

Maude Earl is one of the cleverest animal painters of the day. With her widowed father, who taught her the rudiments of her art, she lives in a fine villa near London, and she has amassed a fortune principally by painting the canine pets of royalty and of the fashionable.

Miss Earl is nearly forty, though she looks barely thirty. She exhibited her first picture in the Royal Academy in 1885. Since then she has done pictures of the favorite dogs of Queen Victoria and King Edward and of all the principal winning dogs of Great Britain and the continent.

In speaking of the characteristics of her subjects Miss Earl said to a reporter the other day:

"There are very few dogs that will permit you a favorable opportunity of studying their characteristics."

MISS MAUDE EARL.

catching their points and characteristics. Lieutenant Perry's Eskimos, I think, the most uncivilized creatures I have ever attempted to put on canvas. That was a long time ago, but I shall never forget when these dogs arrived; they were absolutely wild. I had some extraordinary scenes with them during the time in which I was engaged painting their portraits.

"Sleight was the work to which they had always been accustomed, and they were not satisfied until they had turned nearly every piece of furniture in the studio into a sledge during their visit. Still they were nice dogs and most interesting, only I suppose they were frightened at the startling change from arctic snows to London streets."

Miss Earl's picture for this year's academy is an imaginative subject explained by the lines of Plana Macleod: "And the soul is as blown dust within the wood, wherein the white hounds move, where timely shadows brood." Three white dogs are seen stealing through the snow. It is not a picture to be explained by words. Here, too, Eskimos are the types represented.

Reading for Children.
 The child should read, must read and will read, whether or no proper reading matter is given him, and it is here that the responsibility of the parent comes in. A great many people think that so long as the body of the child is well cared for, healthy food given him and later on a suitable school selected enough has been done. But it is not so—indeed, far from it—for the intelligence is growing, too, the mind is developing and the imagination stirring to all those calls so clear to children, though we lose them as we grow older and only with an effort stoop once more to the same point of view. This intelligence and this imagination of childhood are forces which we must consider and meet with all the means in our power. Thus the pertinent question becomes, What are the means? It is often necessary to substitute simple words than those used in the book, when reading aloud, to young children and in some cases to make a short, simple sentence give the sense of a whole paragraph. This probably will need to be done when reading such a book as Pyle's "Robin Hood" to children of seven or eight. It is also well to stop and ask if the child understands certain words. Never take anything in the way of understanding or anything else for granted with children. You usually will find if you take the trouble to inquire that they have only the remotest idea of what a word they constantly hear means, and this learning to know the meaning of words is the chief part of the education of reading aloud. The child hears words pronounced as they ought to be pronounced and the right expressions used in narratives, and thus his ears become adapted to hearing good language. Then when he begins to read for himself he will look for the right words, when he begins to write he will select the right words, and when he begins to talk he will use in them to describe his own ideas. Thus we have the seed planted for the good taste of later years.

Baked Sweetbreads.
 Wash the sweetbreads carefully, freeing them from skin and strings. This done, drop them into boiling water slightly salted and cook for ten minutes. Turn off the water and cover the sweetbreads (in a cold vessel) with cold water. In five minutes drain and cover with more cold water. Leave them in this for one hour. Take out and wipe dry.

This process is known as "blanching." It is necessary to the right preparation of sweetbreads, making firm and white what would else be flabby and dull red.

Cut fat salt pork into thin strips (lardons) and make incisions in the sweetbreads with a narrow, keen blade. Thrust the lardons into these. They should project half an inch on each side of the sweetbreads. Arrange the larded sweetbreads in a deep bake dish, pour a cupful of well seasoned stock about them, cover and bake for twenty minutes. Several times during the cooking lift the cover and baste the sweetbreads copiously with the gravy.

Remove the sweetbreads to a hot dish. Stir into the gravy left in the dish a couple of more of browned flour. Add a teaspoonful of onion juice and three olives, minced fine. Cook one minute, add a glass of brown sherry, and pour the gravy over the sweetbreads.

New Women Inspire Men.
 The sons of men rule the world, but the daughters of men govern it through them. It is woman who founds society in its artificial aspects. It is woman who creates class distinctions and insists on maintaining them.

It is woman who imbues man with desire to emulate, who instills into him social ambition that inevitably brings in its train the restless fever of acquisition, the madness of greed, the ambition for power through financial success.

It is woman who imbues man with desire to emulate, who instills into him social ambition that inevitably brings in its train the restless fever of acquisition, the madness of greed, the ambition for power through financial success.

Men fight each other in the struggle for wealth, but they fight for woman's admiration. They fight that their women may maintain position in the front ranks of the social world, and as the fight goes on in each lower stratum of society, individual man fighting first for what is necessary for his existence, and then for the social supremacy he may give his women.

Umbrella Renovating.
 Old umbrellas may be recovered to do excellent service for everyday use or for children's school umbrellas. Remove the old cover and metal cap which held its top edge. A good, smooth sateen with a dull finish is good material.

Use one of the sections of old covering for a pattern. Lay it always with the outer edge on the selvedge and cut as many as required.

Sew together in French seam, first a tiny one on the right side, then turn in and sew again. Slip cover over the rod and tack strongly at the points of the ribs. Tack the top and replace metal cap. Tack seams at the middle of ribs also.

Codfish Cakes.
 Pick enough salt codfish into small pieces to make two cupsful. Soak overnight, drain and bring to boiling point. Make a white sauce by melting two tablespoonfuls of butter and blending it with two tablespoonfuls of flour and one cupful of milk, cooking to a thick cream. Have ready one pint of hot seasoned mashed potatoes. Beat the fish into the sauce, add the potatoes, mix thoroughly and form into small cakes. Place them on a buttered baking sheet, brush with melted butter, sprinkle with breadcrumbs and brown in the oven.

Use of Scrapbooks.
 To keep clippings where they can be found readily it is a good idea to have several cheap scrapbooks, devoting one to each subject. One book may be used for recipes, a second for games and entertainments, garden hints may take a third and fancy work suggestions another. One with poetry or other with funny sayings and pictures may brighten some hours for an invalid. A strong manila envelope should be pasted in each book, where the clippings may be filed when cut out until there is an opportunity to paste them in the book.

Massage Cream.
 A massage cream must necessarily be a little heavier than the ordinary cold cream. Formula: Two and one-half ounces of lanolin, three-fourths of an ounce of spermaceti, two and one-half ounces of white vaseline, two ounces of coconut oil, two ounces of oil of sweet almonds and one-half dram of tincture of benzoin. Extract of violet may be added for perfume.

Salt For the Hair.
 Salt is a tonic for the hair, and a most excellent dry tonic shampoo may be made of it. A coarse quality should be stirred so that no lumps remain and then mixed with powdered orris root, two ounces to a pound of salt; sift again to mix well, and then rub well into the hair and scalp. Brush out with a bristle brush.

How a Woman Woke Up Gotham.
 It has been discovered that a woman laid the first pavement in New York. She was Mrs. Samuel Prevost, who found the authorities unwilling to make the attempt to do the work. Her sidewalk became so famous that people came all the way from Philadelphia to see it.

Out flowers will retain their freshness much longer if a little salt and charcoal are added to the water in which they are put. The charcoal should be broken into small lumps.

A small pad with a pencil attached will be found most convenient to hang in a kitchen closet. When an article is needed from the store, a note should be made on the pad.

Bits of velvet can be freshened and their nap raised by an application of damp sand.

MRS. STRANGEWAYS SENTENCED.
 Faints on Hearing She Must Stay One Year in Prison.

New York, Sept. 14.—Eva Fox Strangeways, who swindled a number of business houses by bad checks, was sentenced yesterday by Judge McAvoy of the General Sessions Court to a year in the penitentiary. She had pleaded guilty to two indictments for grand larceny.

She was arrested in Toronto some weeks ago, being caught after having swindled several hotels and business houses here. One of her victims was Susan B. Clarke, a dressmaker, from whom she got $125 worth of goods on a bad check.

The young woman, who has been a governess and done some writing for western magazines, expected to get off with suspended sentence, and when she heard that she would have to stay a year in jail she collapsed and had to be carried from court.

PULLED TO HIS DEATH.
 Foot Caught in Line and Man Was Dragged Into Water.

Kingsport, Sept. 14.—Passengers arriving yesterday morning on the steamer Toronto brought the news of the drowning of a man at Charlotte, N. Y. He was a fireman on the tug Florence, taken of Charlotte. The tug was assisting in turning the steamer around and the fireman's foot caught in the eye of the line. He shouted to those on board that he was caught and the line was let out its full length.

It was supposed that he had been trying to free himself from his dangerous position, but when the line was pulled in the deckhands were horrified to see the fireman's body hanging on the end of the rope, his foot being fastened tight into the loop.

Rebels Attack Europeans.
 Calcutta, Sept. 14.—Serious demonstrations by revolutionists have occurred here. They followed the sentencing to prison of a Nationalist leader who refused to testify in a case in which sedition was charged.

The excitement lasted many hours, great crowds appearing near the courts and attacking the police, including some European sergeants. Other attacks on Europeans are reported, especially in Eastern Bengal, where racial feeling is steadily growing.

Wife Accused of Murder.
 Calgary, Sept. 14.—Following the shooting of Owen Fetterman, near Nanton, who some time ago was shot on the side of the head one morning while lying in bed, his wife was yesterday arrested and brought to Calgary on a charge of committing the deed.

Ready for Peace.
 Paris, Sept. 14.—Marine Minister Thomson yesterday received a cable message from Vice-Admiral Philibert, announcing that the Chouans and some of the other warring tribesmen in the vicinity of Casablanca had reopened negotiations for peace.

Punishment Fits the Crime.
 New Zealand fits punishment to crime. Thus, at Wanganui, when certain sawyers troubled their neighbors by their drunken frolics the delinquents were made to pay the fines imposed in such labor as they were accustomed to and were set to sawing wood with which to build a prison. The result was that rather than transgress again they vanished from the locality as soon as the building was completed.

Men who are not considered criminals are subjected occasionally by experiments in this country to a course of Turkish baths, followed by showers and by a cold douche, the idea being that their criminal instincts are due to physical degeneracy which may be thus counteracted.

A Massachusetts town punishes its male offenders by giving them as first poor clothes and cracked crockery from which to take their food, good dresses and better table equipment being provided and leave being given to keep pet animals as an improvement in their conduct is made manifest.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

MOONLIGHT IN MUSIC.

Story of How Beethoven Created His Wonderful Sonata.

Beethoven's famous composition, the "Moonlight Sonata," is said to have been composed under the following circumstances:

One evening as Beethoven and a friend were hurrying through the streets of Bonn they heard the familiar notes of the "Sonata in F." Something in the musician's touch attracted the attention of Beethoven, and he stopped and listened. Suddenly the music stopped, and the despairing words of the musician came to them through the open window, "Oh, if I could but hear some really good musician play this wonderful piece!"

"Let us go in," said Beethoven. They entered and found the player a young girl, poor and blind. Beethoven sat down at the old harpsichord and played as he had never played before. His listeners were spellbound. "Tell us," they begged, "who are you?" For answer he played the opening bars of the "Sonata in F." "It is Beethoven!" they exclaimed in awe and admiration. Suddenly the candle flickered and went out. Beethoven ceased playing and bowed his head upon his hand. His friend threw open the shutters. A flood of beautiful moonlight entered the room. Its transfiguring light touched upon the poor old instrument and rested upon the noble figure bowed before it. The profound silence was broken at last by the musician, who said: "Listen. I will improvise a sonata to the moonlight." Then was created this wonderful sonata, beginning a sad, tender movement, the embodiment in sound of the gentle moonlight transfiguring and glorifying the dark earth.

Suddenly the music ceased, and with a brief farewell Beethoven hurried home to put upon paper this famous composition.
