SENTIMENT IN JAPAN FOR PROHIBITION GROWS FAST

By J. H. Larimore

That temperance and Prohibition sentiment in Japan is growing even more rapidly than Christianity itself, was the assertion of Rev. Warren Hayes, United Brethren missionary to Tokyo made to me the other day. Mr. Hayes has been representing his denomination in the missionary fields in Japan for five years. He and Mrs. Hayes have been home on a furlough for a year and are now ready to go back for a period of seven years.

Rev. Mr. Hayes has been in close touch with some of the most influential men of Japan and his wife has come in close touch with the women of the country and he has readily noticed the evidences of the development of Democratic tendencies and the influence of Western ideals in the Island Empire.

Of course, as he points out, Christian missions and temperance sentiment go hand in hand, for many of the best Japanese who have religions different from the Christian religion, have come to see in Prohibition great possibilities for the economic, mental, moral and patriotic development of their country.

As everybody knows, the Japanese is the most intensely patriotic of all people. Ever since Commodore Perry in 1853 opened the ports of Japan to the world, the people of that country have been adopting modern methods in all lines.

According to Rev. Mr. Hayes, the Japanese have come to see that in competition with other countries they must cast aside everything that hinders, while the present tendency seems rather more toward peaceful penetration of other countries than toward military aggression. It is known that there is a strong military party in Japan and in that sense also the country is awake to the dangers that beset a soldiery that is not sober.

Japan is Friendly

Japan is very friendly to the United States. We are her largest customer. She has seen the United States go dry and she has seen America take the leadership among the nations. She is realizing that she cannot do less along the line of sobriety than we have done.

The present government of Japan is not at all unfriendly to the movement toward Prohibition. Of course the country is conservative. The Prohibition ideal along with other Democratic ideals must move slowly, but from what Mr. Hayes and others have told me, I have gathered that there is a strong friendliness in many cases toward the abstinence of the beverage liquor traffic.

It is related by the Hon. Taro Ando, a leader in temperance reform and an official of the National Temperance League of Japan, that even before he became a Christian he became a temperance man. He decided to dispense with all liquor except the Japanese "Sake" but felt that perhaps occasions might arise when he would need some of that liquor in his home. Accordingly he purchased a number of casks and put them in his cellar and Mrs. Ando who was a Christian and who was praying for his conversion, emptied the casks and let the liquor run out. Instead of becoming angry at that, he listened to her and became a Christian and advocate of Prohibition for more than thirty years. Mr. Ando is one of the vice-presidents of the World League Against Alcoholism and a member of the General Council.—Forward.

"MONTE CRISTO" WINS YOUNG AND OLD ALIKE

The name "Monte Cristo", despite its nineteenth century origin, is as easily recognized as are the names of our most expensive automobiles, or the soap that floats, or a popular breakfast food. This is because millions have read the famous Alexandre Dumas novel. It is one of the most popular of the Public Library novels.

The William Fox production of that name, adapted from the story, therefore has an appeal that is universal. The dwellers of Manhattan and the residents of Waterloo, Iowa, alike will be interested in seeing this marvelous drama of love and adventure. It comes to the Opera House Anniversary Week.

Old people and young have read the book. Many who have not read it will do so after seeing the screen drama. It has been called a classic of adventure.

The screen version is sufficiently true to the original story to please and thoroughly entertain the reader of the novel. The entire cast is capable and each actor is said to do justice to the role assigned him. It has, indeed, an all-star cast.

The production has been accorded a splendid reception in a number of the large cities and in many instances has broken all local theatrical records.

HOW TO PICK MAYFLOWERS

(From the Pictou Advocate)

As the Mayflower season is just opening, it would be well for those who like to gather this dainty little flower, to take heed of the slogan of the Society for the preservation of Native plants—a slogan which might well be adopted in Nova Scotia—"Don't pick wild flowers; cut 'em."

This organization is trying to educate people in three ideas: not to pick flowers at all, but to cut off the blossoms wanted with a knife or scissors; always to leave part of the blossoms so that they may form and leave the seed that will produce next year's crop; to remember that there are certain flowers which will not stand carrying away at all.

Speaking of the Mayflower the Boston Globe says: "Trailing arbutus has practically disappeared, as a result of the practice of those who seek for it of pulling up holly-holus the long trailing strands which run just under the surface of the ground, feeding on the moisture underneath. If the blossoms only were picked the same growth would produce abundantly through the spring. Pulled up away from its source of nourishment, the plant's day is done, and there is so much less arbutus left in existence."

The Dominion Atlantic Railway Co. will erect new stations at Paradise and at Clementsport during the coming summer. Both contracts have been awarded to E. S. Langille, of Wolfville, and the work will begin immediately.

B. C. FRUIT GROWERS ORGANIZE POOL

absorbed at prices fair to the producer without imposing an undue burden upon the consumer.

And that is the aim and purpose of the one big union that will control the flow of ninety per cent. of the coming season's crop marketwards. In the course of his addresses Sapiro warned the growers repeatedly to guard against the temptation to endeavor to create a monopoly, asserting that any such effort would be certain to result in failure. Service to the growers and service to the consumers should, he said, be the keynote of all co-operative effort and it is the intention of British Columbia growers to follow his advice, realizing as they do that the most valuable asset they can build up is the confidence and good will of the purchasing public.

SUPPORT FROM ALL QUARTERS

With efficient management this big co-operative should be able to make good because it starts out with the goodwill of every institution and class of people that can help it along. The independent companies, practically without an exception, having confessed the inability to control the situation and having lost their growers, are selling their packing houses to the Co-Operative Growers of British Columbia. A committee of the Vancouver Board of Trade is looking after the details of the financial end of the deal. The packing houses will be merged into a holding company and the half million dollars required to acquire them raised by the sale of preference stock. A charge of five cents per box on apples will provide interest on the stock and establish a sinking fund for its ultimate redemption. When it is redeemed common stock for a similar amount will be issued to the grower, who will then own the plants.

The banks welcome the determination of the growers to get together. They regard the long-term contracts as providing ample security for large advances to cover the cost of marketing and to make initial advances to growers early in the season. They will back the new enterprise to the limit if it succeeds in stabilizing the market. The transportation companies likewise are heartily in support of the co-operative movement, believing that continuance of present conditions for another year or two spells disaster for the fruit industry, in which millions of dollars have been invested.

With 90 per cent. of the tonnage now assured for the new organization the working out of the details of the selling end of the business will proceed. The packing will not occasion any worry because the grower; have for years been familiar with that phase of the business and all the packing plants and machinery necessary will soon be in their hands. The appointment of a general manager who will carry a great load of responsibility is now engaging the attention of the provincial board of directors.

The co-operative intends to follow the footsteps of the orange and raisin growers of California by establishing a publicity department to advertise British Columbia products wherever it it possible to find a market. The summer months will witness an intensified advertising campaign in all publications in the prairie provinces designed to increase the consumption of fruit. A special effort will be made to wrest the box apple market of Great Britain from Washington State apple growers. The fruit will be sent in cold storage on ships through the Panama canal. On the whole it will be realized by those who take the trouble to read this rough outline of what the fruit growers are doing to save themselves from disaster that they are tackling things in a big way; that having got together in such numbers and having the unanimous support and sympathy of all classes of the community there is no valid reason why they should not be as successful as the co-operatives of California which have made the agriculturists of that state easily the most prosperous of this continent.

ALL BUT THE HOLE

Auntie had come to stay, and little Mary, with some pride, was showing a sweater she had knitted herself.

"And did my little niece make this all by herself?" asked Auntie.

"Nearly, Auntie—all but the hole you put your head through, and that was there before I started."

Get ready to fence up your chickens and thereby preserve neighborliness in your corner of the moral vineyard. An industrious rooster or an active old hen can raise a big ruffle when they are too inquisitive in resurrecting the early garden seeds in a neighbor's flower pot or vegetable area. There are often things said on such occasions that are not always in the every day vocabulary.

No man ought to make the same mistake twice—considering how many people there are to tell him about it.

The Secret of a Beautiful Skin

Palm and olive oils—nothing else—give nature's green color to Palmolive Soap.

Cleopatra knew it. That was the secret of her power. Every day her skin was thoroughly cleansed with palm and olive oils. Then as now these oils were famed for their mild, soothing, cleansing qualities.

She too used other cosmetics, but every day these were removed by thorough cleansing. In this way she was able to keep her skin smooth, firm, fresh and youthful.

Today these same oils are scientifically blended in famous Palmolive Soap. They give it mildness, wonderful soothing qualities, profuse creamy and refreshing lather.

Powder and rouge will not harm the skin if you wash daily with a mild soap. A thorough cleansing with Palmolive will tone your skin and help it do its own beautifying. Smoothness and a charmingly natural color will result.

You can buy Palmolive Soap at all first class dealers
