TUESDAY EVG, JANUARY 6, 1880. The Ontario Legislature.

The Ontario Legislature meets to-morrow in Toronto. Being the first meeting after a general election, more interest will be felt in its proceedings, and in the policy which will be enunci-ated in the Lieutenant-Governor's ech. LThe Government meets the House with an increased and compact majority, which is sufficient to carry ugh any measure initiated so long as it meets the approval of members, and is calculated to advance the interests and develop the resources of the Province. In some respects Mr. Mowat and his colleagues have an easy task, and yet their responsibilities are increased in system responsibilities are increased support. Every Government with a large majority following at its back is maturally inclinded to be too self confident, and to act on the impression that secure as they are in power, they can carry things with a high mad irrespective of the feelings and wishes of those who helped to place them in power. We hope the Movat Government will not follow such a suicidal course, but learning a wholesome leason from the past failures of the party in that respect, will, true to the policy of its Premier, continue to manites the same deference to public opinion as he has hitherto done, and by the force of argument and reason and justice convince his followers and the Government will be as cautious and courteous disposition, your readiness to lead a design of the Province of the wisdom of his policy. We have full faith that this course will be pursued, and that the Government will be as cautious and careful in their measures and in their general conduct as they were when they could scarcely count a majority of a dozen.

So far as we can judge no special interest will attach to the proceeding politically, for the result of the elections was so decisive as to excite little fear on one side or hope on the other, with the exception of the announcement that a vote for the erection of the announcement that a vote for the erection of the announcement that a vote for the erection of the announcement that a vote for the erection of the announcement that a vote for the erection of the announcement that a vote for the erection of the announcement that a vote for the erection of the announcement that a vote for the erection of the announcement that a vote for the erection of the announcement that a vote for the erection of the announcement that a vote for the erection of the announcement that a vote for the erection of the announcement that a vote for the erection of the announcement that a vote for the erection of the announcement that a vote for the erection of the announcement that a vote for th proportion to their increased support. very.Government with a large majority

Mr. Armstrong, who was overcome with motion, said: 1. y dear friends and neight provise of political affairs in referring to the Local elections: "Dispassionate and intelligent observers, if they are minded to speak plainly on the subject, will have little difficulty in discovering the main cause of the Conservative disaster; the rock on which the party made shipwreck, or we should say rocks, for there were two, poverty in men and poverty in measures. We will venture to say that out of all the candidates the party had in the field no man would venture, in sober earnest, to name six capable of taking the places of Mr. Mywat and his colleagues, had the verdict of the people called for a change of government. Then the opposition did not go before the people advocating a single measure worthy of the name. They were destitute of a policy, and their platform had only one plank, office. Victory without a policy was impossible, but had the impossible happened a victory without leaders capable of administering the affairs of the Province would have been more fatal even than defeat. When a political party, by its actions plainly intimates that it knows ofton reasons for its existence, it need not be surprised.

Owing to the deflection in the route of the Pacific Railway, Mr. Miller, of Muskoka, contends that he can lay a line that will be fortysix miles shorter than the route of the line advocated by J. D. Edgar.

THE Monetary Times torecasting the financial prospects for the coming year says: "Ketailers are enjoying a general wave of prosperity and failures are very sensibly diminishing. Not that there will be no more bankruptcies, nor that we shall have no more commercial or financial trouble. It would be vain to expect that. No doubt there are sore places that still require healing. No doubt there are persons who have been distant day.

And failures may yet transpire that will develop a wide circle of indirect consequences. But in spite of this, we firmly believe that the worst is past, that trade on the whole is good, that most of our sores are healed, that the greater part of the rottenness has been cut out, and that we as a community have as nopeful a future before us as any similar number of people in any part of the world.

Mr. Perrault, who is a harmless tellow, is no doubt afflicted with the annexation craze to some ex-tent, and Sir Francis Hincks' story that he was in Washington and announcing a coming annexation movement may not be far from correct.

Social and Presentation. A very pleasing social and surprise party took place at the residence of Mr. Thomas Armstrong farmer, residing near Gourock Post Office, on Friday evening. Mr. Armstrong having taken up land in Muskoka, and being about to remove to his future home, his friends and neighbors resolved that he should carry with him some token of esteem in which he was held by them. Accordingly on Friday evening last, Jan. 2nd; about sixty of his friends and neighbors, old and young, repaired thither with well filled baskets of choice provisions, and took quiet possession of the house.

He climbed to the highest point in the roof of the barn, fastened the rope to the ratter, then around his neck, and deliberately jumped into eternity. A novel wedding took place at Uxbridge on Tuesday the 23rd inst. Mr. Henry Boden, the bridegroom, being in the neighborhood of 68 years, whilst the blooming bride, commonly known as "Granny Wren," was said to be of the ripe ago of 72 years. The "happy couple" seemed to enjoy their position very much, and we hope they will have no cause to regret the important step they have taken at this late hour of the day. May they be happy. Truer words than these were never spoken or written, and the candor and outspokenness are all the more craditable to a journal that has fought long and valiantly for its party.

If we judge aright, the chief feature of the approaching session will be the large number of private bills to combefore the people's representatives. If we may judge from the official Gazetts these are likely to be unusually numerous, and in many cases the legislation desired is of such a nature as to call for very careful scrutiny on the part of our legislators.

NOTHING LIKE LEATHER. The above old saying is flatly contradicted. Leather may be a very good thing in its way, but the people of Canada say there is nothing like Wilson's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry for ouring Coughs, Colds, Catarrh, Croup, Hooping Coughr, &c., and the fact that they spend thousands of dollars; yearly in buying it, shows that they mean what they say.
Wilson's Wild Cherry is sold by the principal druggists and general dealers throughout Ontario. It never fails, and it is as safe and certain for an infant as for the strongest man. In buying it you will save money by getting the larger size, as they hold more in proportion than the small.
