Is it not about time that our contemporary the Telegraph had called a halt in its crusade against Mr. Ellis and the Globe? Can the Telegraph not see the absurdity of its course, and the unwisdom of persisting in it? For four weeks and more, day after day, it has been charging Mr. Ellis with treason and persury. because forsooth he, in his paper the Globe, discussed the question of Canadian annexation with the United States and advocated its consummation. It has and advocated its consummation. It has called upon him to reeign his seat, and has made dire threats if its orders are not obeyed. It has called charging Mr. Ellis with treason and perjury because forsooth he, in his paper the Globe, discussed the question of Canadian annexation with the United States Supreme Court bench. His appointment has already been additionable of the Senate to Mr. Lamar's appointment and advocated its consummation. It has called upon him to reeign his seat, and the bloody shirt was waired to its aid the liberal press, and in its extremity of anger, it has charged liberal conspicuous in some liberal candidates and their friends. To all of this, not one honcest word of approval seems to have found expression. Its charges have fallen flat on the intelligent ear, and its demands on the mander of the constraint of the constraint of the constraint of the mander of the mander of the constraint of the mander of the constraint of the cons flat on the intelligent ear, and its de- with the Mail, but so far without success.
